TAKES OFF ANYWHERE

MOSCOW (UP)—The Russian aviation magazine Sovetskaya Aviatsiya today reported the successful test of a rocket-catapulted fighter aircraft which can take off literally from any place—a field, forest, mountain top or ravine.

The streamlined, arrow-like, silvery plane with swept-back wings is catapulted into the air by a rocket attached to its tail. When the plane reaches a certain height the rocket drops away and the piloted aircraft continues on its course.

Election Upset,
Queen's Visit
Top 1957 News

Victory of the Conservative party in the June federal election was the top news event in Canada during 1957.

Running a close second in the opinion of Canada's newsmen was the visit to the nation by Queen Elizabeth in October, highlighted by the first opening of Canadian parliament by a ruling monarch.

A close third was the suicide in Egypt in April of Canadian Ambassador E. H. Norman. The envoy's death was the culmination of a long developing story involving charges of Communist associations during his student days.

Chronological list of major happenings in Canada during the year follows:

JANUARY

8—George Drew, former Progressive Conservative leader, resigns seat in Commons. 10—Gordon Commission on Canada's economic prospects forecasts 26,500,000 population in 25 years. 11—CPR firemen's strike ends; pay increases awarded by conciliation board to be paid. 17—New RCAF aircraft carrier Bonaventure commissioned at Belfast.

200 Dead in Ceylon's
Worst Flood Disaster

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—More than 200 persons are reported dead as one of the worst floods in Ceylon's history still spreads its trail of devastation across the island.

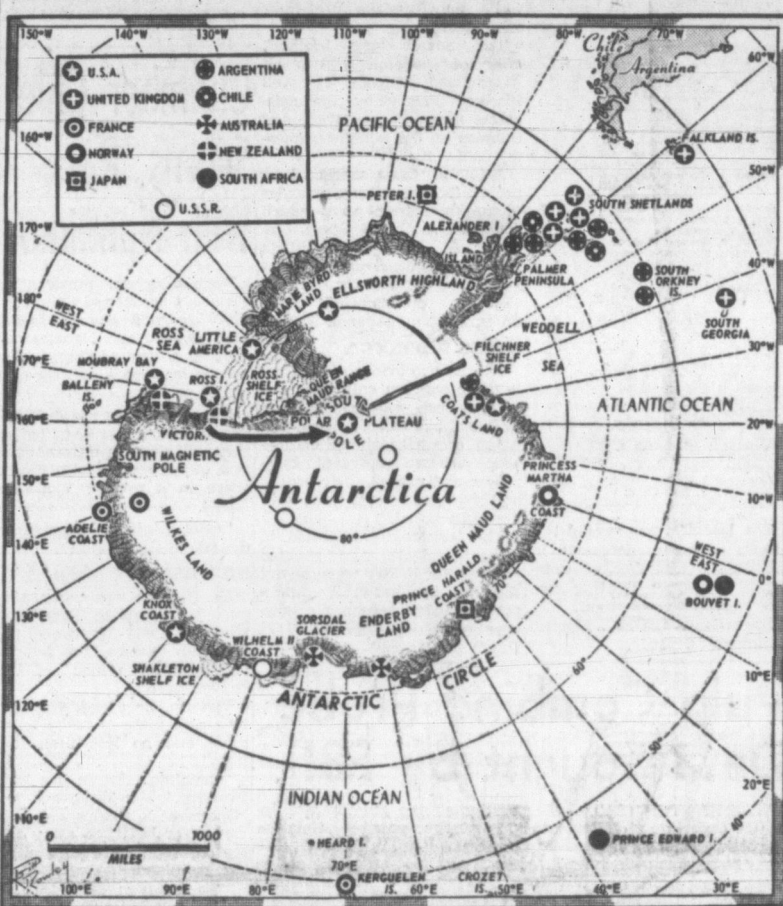

Some 300,000 are homeless and destitute in the wake of floods and landslides following week-long rains.

The east-coast fishing town of Muttur is under water and its 5,000 inhabitants evacuated. Some 100 families are missing from the area around Parakrama Samudra, largest artificial irrigation lake in the north central province.

Casualty figures are based on unofficial estimates, since disrupted communications have made official tallies impossible. Low-lying areas of northern Colombo were submerged to day, and thousands of citizens were being evacuated. Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike Friday night appealed for help from neighboring countries. He thanked Canada and India for their immediate aid. Planes of Air Ceylon, the Ceylon Air Force and the RAF took off today for stricken areas with food, medicine and clothing.

U.S. Not Weak in Arms,
White House Declares

ROUTE OF 'HELL-BENT' DASH

Arrow on left in centre shows approximate route of Sir Edmund Hillary in his overland dash for the South Pole where the U.S. has already established a depot by airlift. Arrow at right shows roughly direction of Dr. Vivian Fuchs' British party attempting to cross the Antarctic continent. Bases established by 11 countries shown by legend.

'Point of No Return'
Reached by Hillary

By HUMPHREY DAVY

Friends of Sir Edmund Hillary, who visited Victoria in March, 1954, today turned their eyes to the Antarctic where the conqueror of Mount Everest is making his "hell-bent dash" for the South Pole.

The famous alpine climber is a member of a British-Commonwealth expedition presently engaged in one of the last great adventures left to man—the crossing on foot of the vast Antarctic continent.

Among those watching with interest the progress of the expedition is Esquimaux Capt. Eric Revem of the Royal Canadian Navy, who served time in the polar region several years ago.

Capt. Revem who is well acquainted with the climatic and physical difficulties of the Antarctic, said the British-New Zealand explorers have only six or seven weeks to reach base camp before winter sets in.

He did not rule out the possibility that the expedition may become trapped in the vast expanse of ice, rock and snow covering over six million square miles.

Failure of the expedition to reach base camp in time would leave the explorers exposed to frigid winds—winds which blow constantly with a velocity more than twice that on any other continent.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, Giver of all life and source of every blessing, may I ever be mindful of my personal accountability to Thee. Let me see my duty clearly and never seek to evade its responsibility. Lift me above fear of reproach or criticism, above mere acquiescence to popularity or public opinion. May my conduct be determined solely by the purpose to fulfill Thy will for my life; through Christ, Amen.

said that Hillary and his four-man Antarctic team, tired and suffering from "strain" have passed the "point of no return" on their dash to the Pole.

The New Zealanders, riding converted farm tractors and helped by two dog teams, clipped another 41 miles off the trip during the night. They are now only about 240 miles from the pole.

The party have enough tractor fuel to make it to the pole, but not enough to return to their inland advance base, Depot 700.

TO WAIT AT POLE
Hillary plans to wait at the South Pole (where the Americans have established a base by air—not by land), for an 11-man British party led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs who are making the 2,000-mile trek across the continent.

Serving on the Fuchs team is John Lowe, also an Everest, and one of Hillary's best friends.

Lowe was a member of the Mount Everest team who lectured with Hillary in Victoria three years ago.

Fuchs left Shackleton Base on the Atlantic side in November and began his journey across the continent. This party is now behind schedule. They were expected to reach the South Pole by Christmas and a week later meet Hillary advancing from the Pacific side.

Hillary Doing Right
Says Scott Veteran

Scientist Sir Charles Wright, 920 Admirals Road, who took part in the famous Robert Scott expedition to the Antarctic in 1911-12, said today Sir Edmund Hillary "is doing the right thing" in "dash to the South Pole."

"This will place Hillary nearer the British team trekking from the opposite side of the Pole," he said. "It will enable him to prepare the way for Fuchs and his men."

Sir Charles said Sir Hillary had no other alternative but to travel to the Pole when he had nothing else to do but wait for the British expedition at a base 350 miles from the South Pole.

Fuchs is behind schedule in arriving at the Pole, he said. Sir Charles in 1912 was, in the party that discovered the body of Scott and his companions in a tent. He was navigator for the search party.

Scott and his companions reached the South Pole, but died on the return journey.

After dashin' across th' bedroom I shut th' window these cold mornin's I know just how Hillary feels.

These days, yer on' choice is t' be armed or alarmed.

'THROW BOOK
CLAIM MADE

SEATTLE (AP)—Arguments on motions seeking new trials for Dave Beck and his son were in abeyance for 12 days after the defence played its trump card—an affidavit accusing a jury foreman, Charles Hickling, of saying "they ought to throw the book at Beck."

The foreman, who headed the jury which convicted the teamsters' union president of grand larceny, denied making the statement.

After Charles S. Burdell, defence attorney, submitted the affidavit and also one of his own explaining how it was obtained, superior Judge George H. Revelle recessed the hearing until Jan. 9 because of prior commitments.

Wolves Score
Shutout Win
To Hold Lead

LONDON (UP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers, whose 18-game unbeaten streak was snapped Thursday, retained their six-point lead in the English soccer league's first division race today by defeating Sunderland, 2-0.

West Bromwich, the second place team, scored an easy 5-1 victory over Burnley.

Preston replaced Manchester United in third place by shutting out Portsmouth, 2-0. Manchester United, the defending league champion, was held to a 2-2 draw by Manchester City.

Tottenham, fresh from its Thursday triumph over Wolverhampton, entertained Newcastle and was held to a 3-3 tie.

In the day's major surprises, Bolton invaded Blackpool and won, 3-2, while Leicester, a club far down in the standings, shut out Bolton 3-0.

The Sherpa made the four-day march from the village of Melmiche, north of Kathmandu, to complain that a Yeti or Abominable Snowman had broken into his mill.

"My own watermill was raided by one Yeti," he said. "When I reached my mill with a fresh load of maize about 10 in the morning about 15

Gaither Report
Stories Scored

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—The White House said today that the United States is not weak in defences in relation to Russia "at this time," despite unofficial versions of the Gaither report to the contrary.

As for the future ability of this country against the growing power of Russia, press secretary James C. Hagerty said that President Eisenhower would go into this matter in some detail in his State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 9.

The president worked on the message at his farm here today. He planned to continue preparation of the document next week when he confers with key administration officials.

The Gaither report is a secret document. It is the result of a

Secrecy Still Shrouds Report

The White House, according to Hagerty, was particularly concerned about accounts published and broadcast within the past few days to the effect that the U.S. now is in a woefully weak world position. Hagerty said these reports credited the Gaither report with such a conclusion.

Reporters asked Hagerty when and if they could expect to get copies of the report, and if the versions published thus far were true.

Hagerty said first that the document still was secret and could not be released. He said he had anticipated questions on the report and had a three-point position to state today:

"As far as I know there is no factual information in the Gaither report that has not been available to the committee of Congress, particularly the Johnson committee." (This referred to the Senate preparedness subcommittee headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson.)

"Stories that have been printed which indicate that the U.S. is in a position of weakness at this time are not true; they are not in the report and are completely contrary to the report. The report says just the opposite."

"The president will give in the State of the Union message his estimate of the military posture of our country as it is now and what has to be done in the future to continue that strength."

Hagerty said the president's conclusions on American defences in his message to Congress would be based on recommendations and reports from the Gaither committee, and also another survey group headed by Dr. James R. Killian, now special scientific adviser to the president, plus Eisenhower's own estimate of the situation.

Macmillan Readies
Answer to Bulganin

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan today called a meeting of key ministers reportedly to decide on Britain's answer to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's 3,000-word letter earlier this month.

Macmillan hopes to get the answer off before he begins his Commonwealth tour Jan. 7. The prime minister returned to No. 10 Downing Street this morning from the Christmas holidays at his Sussex home.

TOP LEVEL MEET
Within half an hour he had called in key ministers, including Minister of Defence Duncan Sandys and Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft.

Britain, the U.S., and all other NATO countries got similarly worded letters from Bulganin before the Paris summit conference.

Among other things, the letters suggested "personal contacts" between Soviet and Western leaders.

The NATO summit meeting agreed, under considerable pressure from the smaller European nations, to pave the way for talks—at least on the disarmament issue—with Moscow.

But the NATO communique stipulated that these talks should be held later next year at the foreign ministers' level and only after diplomatic and UN disarmament commission channels have been exhausted.

WEST DIVIDED

The Western allies are known to be divided on the question of what level the talks with Russia should be held and how broad an agenda should be discussed.

Informed sources here today said that Macmillan, in his reply to Moscow, will not exclude the possibility of summit talks. But like the U.S., he is not likely to commit Britain without a definite objective.

Man's Body Found

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—The battered body of a man was found today in his apartment and police said he had been dead at least 72 hours. They believe he was slain. Police withheld the man's name.

It was the most recent report on the elusive Abominable Snowman, which has been described by natives as a hairy half-man, half-ape animal that walks upright like a man.

Although footprints reported to be that of the Yeti, have been seen by reputable Westerners, elaborate British and American expeditions over the last 10 years have failed to capture one.

Hanna blamed the publicity he received in his attempts to get permission to stay in Canada for his failure to make a go of it here.

After being found aboard the freighter, on which he had been detained for 19 months, the 22-year-old stowaway went through a series of court appearances which resulted in him being given permission to stay here on a good-conduct basis.

... HILLARY

TO HELP BRITISH

Hillary instead of waiting at Depot 700, about 350 miles from the pole, decided Friday to make a dash for the pole.

Apparently he is making the extra journey to be of greater assistance to the British party.

The British explorers are now 465 miles from the pole in their hazardous approach from the opposite side of the continent.

It may look as if Fuchs has plenty of time to reach the South Pole, but according to Capt. Revem this is not the case. The British explorers can run smack into summer gales which can last several days and prevent them from making any headway, he said.

Cmdr. Revem said the team could also run into a series of 100-foot wide crevasses, which also would slow up their progress.

Then again, a warm blizzard could change the snow and ice into slush and water. This could bog down the snow vehicles of Fuchs' team.

REASON FOR DELAY

The British explorers have already encountered such conditions. This is one of the main reasons why they are behind schedule.

“Hillary and the British and New Zealanders are presently faced with a challenge which, in my opinion, is more arduous and hazardous than the climbing of Mount Everest,” said Capt. Revem.

Capt. Revem served for several years on whaling ships in the Antarctic. He also served aboard a vessel which shipped U.S. Admiral Byrd's equipment to the polar continent.

The success of the expedition will mean that man has for the first time crossed the Antarctic continent from coast to coast—a feat which explorers have dreamed of since the early 1900's.

The trek across the continent has been called the “worst journey in the world” because of its climatic and physical hazards.

Chamber Chief Scorns 'Race' With Nanaimo

Hugh Stephen, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, today scorned any suggestion that Victoria and Nanaimo are running a kind of “horse race” for the leadership of Vancouver Island.

“The two cities are quite different in character and I believe they will develop differently so that ultimately we will come to share in a greater Vancouver Island.”

“After all, it is the growth of the Island that matters.”

NICE PLACE

Mr. Stephen was commenting on a statement by Recreations Minister Earle Westwood that Nanaimo will be “the flourishing industrial centre” of Vancouver Island.

“Nanaimo's future lies in its industry,” Mr. Westwood said. “One asset in this regard which can never be taken away from the city is its close proximity to the mainland.”

“No one can deny that Nanaimo has great industrial potentialities,” Mr. Stephen said. “But it does not have the tourist potential of Victoria or the income we derive from retired persons.”

“Victoria is infinitely more attractive from this point of view.”

Victoria Labor Council has rearranged its January meeting schedule to avoid conflict with the New Year's Day holiday.

Meetings will be held Jan. 8 and 29—instead of Jan. 1 and 15.

Two of the birds in Baltimore died almost immediately. In recent days one of Vancouver's penguins and seven of the Portland specimens have died.

Mild Boy Kills 2 Men for Cars

BATH, N.Y. (AP)—A mild-mannered 17-year-old boy, who got some money to pay a for-said he uses neither alcohol, tobacco nor coffee, has told police of killing two men who gave him lifts while hitch-hiking. Sommer was charged with first-degree murder.

One victim was the father of 10 children, on his way to a hospital to visit his wife and new-born baby.

Authorities said Fred Sommer Jr. of Cameron Mills, near this south-central New York community, admitted in written statements that he shot Cecil Stratton, 42, on Dec. 13, and Leo W. Brown, 38, on Thursday night.

He said he killed both men for their automobiles. Sommer said he wanted the

Cathedral Rites Set Today for J. Food

Funeral service was to be held this afternoon in Christ Church Cathedral chapel for Joseph Food, retired provincial government worker who died Tuesday.

Mr. Food, 84, retired from the civil service in 1942 after serving in the dikes and public works departments for 24 years.

He came to Canada from England in 1888 and after home-staying in the Qu'Appelle Valley of Saskatchewan, moved to B.C. about 1909.

Mr. Food worked for the CPR in a number of B.C. interior towns before going overseas in 1914 with the 29th Battalion, "Tobin's Tigers."

He took an active role in veterans' affairs after the war and was a past president of the Great War Veterans Association, the Canadian Legion, Britannia Branch, and the Pro Patria Branch.

Survivors include the widow, Ethel, at the family home at 888 Cowichan; a son, Alfred B. 1981 Roslyn; two grandchildren, Mrs. Lois Stueck, Nanaimo, and Robert A. Food, a student at UBC and one great-grandson, Glenn Stueck.

Bodies of 11 Miners Found in Mine Blast

AMONATE, Va. (CP)—The bodies of 11 coal miners killed in a gas explosion 500 feet underground late Friday were found this morning more than six hours after 14 fellow workers were rescued.

An official of the Pocahontas Fuel Co., operators of the southwest Virginia mine, said all the men originally trapped by the blast have been accounted for.

The 11 bodies, shrouded in canvas, were carried from the mine through a shaft nearly three miles from the main entry shaft where the survivors had been brought out earlier. Families of the dead men were informed of their fate before the bodies were brought out.

The survivors had been found by rescue workers about 1,000 feet from where the 11 other men met death.

The rescue work was painstaking as rescuers were forced to inch their way along slate-clogged passages filled with smoke and deadly gases. They carried oxygen tanks strapped to their backs.

Officials said the mine was known as a "gaseous" mine. It was indicated that equipment used to disperse the gas—present in varied quantities in all coal mines—had failed to function properly, and that the accumulation had been touched off by a spark of unknown origin.

Families of the trapped miners kept a vigil at a station two miles from the disaster scene through most of the night.

Ironically, some of the 11 might have been due for a lay-off today because of a 70-per cent cut in personnel.

Survivors said the concussion was worse than the blast itself. "It knocked the sandwich out of my hand and knocked me over," said Mitchell Harris, a 10-year veteran at the mine.

W. C. Carrico, a mechanic who was lying on the ground repairing a shuttle car, said he was "rolled over against the wall by the force of the blast."

The speed exceeds the 1.185-mile-an-hour official world record for level flight.

Pearson, Martin Hit Vague Economic Policy

QUEBEC (CP)—The two candidates for Liberal party leadership criticized the Diefenbaker government Friday for too vague an economic policy.

Lester B. Pearson, former external affairs minister, and former health minister Paul Martin, here to visit local Liberal leaders, told a press conference the Progressive Conservative government's attitude was failing to create confidence and economic stability.

They said, however, it would not be fair to assign the government all the blame for the economic slowdown which is creating unemployment.

Mr. Pearson said the planned 15-per cent shift of Canadian trade from the United States to Great Britain will work against Canada.

Mr. Martin said he saw the trade diversion as a direct cause of 15-per cent restrictions by the United States on Canadian oil imports. It was a curious coincidence that in both cases the percentage was the same.

Both accused the government of hedging on its fiscal policy in relation to the provinces.

Householders Must Ask Tax Rebate by Tuesday

Hundreds of Victoria property owners stand to lose the $28 provincial tax rebate if they don't act quickly.

If they have not applied for the tax concession by Tuesday night, they won't get it, city assessor Alfred Joyce said Friday.

The provincial government introduced the province-wide tax relief legislation at the last session of the legislature. All homeowners became entitled to paid their tax bills less $28. But they did not make out the declaration of qualification. The unpaid $28 will appear on their 1958 tax notice as arrears unless the form is completed.

Mr. Joyce said a check of his records shows many residents

John D., Wife Fly to Bahamas For Holiday

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mrs. Diefenbaker left Prince Albert by plane early today for a vacation in the Bahamas. He is expected to return to Ottawa Jan. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker spent Thursday and Friday in Prince Albert, his home constituency, visiting old friends. They were in Saskatoon Christmas Day with the prime minister's mother, Mrs. W. T. Diefenbaker.

A few friends were at the airport early today to see the Diefenbakers take off. Friday afternoon 1,500 persons gathered at a reception for the Diefenbakers.

Twelve Words that Open a New World

One sentence, in a book read today probably more often than any other except the Bible, has opened the door to an entirely new outlook on religion in daily life: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need."

This sentence is found in the Christian Science textbook SCIENCE AND HEALTH with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

Through this book the healing power of the Bible promises has been made practical and provable. Christian Science has restored Christian healing to the modern world.

Police reported that Guildford bankruptcy court reporting Dec. 17 on Lecky's affairs said that "What amounted to a suicide note" from Lecky had been received by at least three people.

At the time of his disappearance Lecky reportedly had debts amounting to about $53,200.

Second Black Friday

LITTLE NOTED IN THE RUSH of the Christmas season but certain to emerge clearly later on, a grave issue of parliamentary behaviour recently arose in the House of Commons.

Mr. Coldwell, who cannot be accused of much sympathy for either of the great political parties, said that this latest development had made him as heartsick as he had felt on the famous Black Friday of 1956. His heartsickness had been induced then by the behaviour of a Liberal Government. It is revived by the similar behaviour of a Conservative Government.

The first Black Friday occurred during the well-remembered pipeline debate when the Liberal majority in effect over-ruled the decision of the Speaker. It did so to suit the convenience of the Government and to keep the pipeline scheme on schedule, though in fact it was not kept on schedule as events turned out.

At that time and other times Mr. Diefenbaker pronounced certain lofty dicta on the sanctity of the Speaker and the rules of Parliament. Among other things he said: "Members have a right to know that the rules of the House will be observed and will not be dependent on the caprice of the majority." Again: "They (the members of Parliament) have a right to ask that the decisions of today shall not be reversed tomorrow by the presiding officer, whatever the consequences may be to the majority of this House."

But things do not always look the same in Opposition and in Government, as the present ministry has found out already in several cases. Thus on the second Black Friday Mr. Diefenbaker's majority did precisely what he condemned the former Liberal majority for doing. It reversed the ruling of the presiding officer. And it did this, exactly like the former Government, to suit its own immediate convenience and extricate itself from its own mistakes. Hence the heartsickness of Mr. Coldwell.

The Diefenbaker Government wished to make certain taxation changes but it did not wish to introduce a budget. It was obviously afraid to introduce a budget, which it had promised last summer, and reveal all the present difficulties of the treasury. That would have involved an exposure of next year's huge deficits under a ministry pledged to a balanced budget and drastic economy.

By one of Parliament's most sacred rules only a member of the Government can propose a reduction in taxes when a budget is introduced. This is the rule, and a sound one, because only the Government, in framing a budget, can fit tax changes into the whole financial structure. Accepting the responsibility for the budget, it must also take responsibility for the taxes supporting it.

Since the Government did not introduce a budget, but only a series of tax-reducing resolutions, the CCF moved to amend these resolutions and cut taxes below the Government's proposed figures. The presiding officer of the whole House in committee decided that in these circumstances the old rule did not apply. He twice ruled that the CCF amendments were in order and could be debated.

This immediately put the Government in a dilemma, the same dilemma of expediency faced by the former Government in the pipeline debate.

The present ministry could have allowed the CCF amendments to be debated and then have voted them down, but it did not wish to risk such a debate which might have exposed the full effects of its financial policies next year.

It therefore challenged the ruling of the presiding officer (a Conservative) and was able to persuade a majority of the members present (mostly Conservatives) to repudiate and reverse him.

In short, it did precisely what Mr. Diefenbaker had said no Government must ever do. Under Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership the members, in his own words, do not "have a right to ask that the decisions of today shall not be reversed tomorrow."

Liberals in Parliament have no right to gloat over the present Government for doing what they did in office—an offence which, more than anything else, assured their defeat. But it is remarkable that a new Government, elected largely on its defence of Parliament's sovereignty, should violate it so soon.

Now a Liberal, Mr. Pickersgill (probably not without a pipeful conscience) proposes to prevent such offences by making the Speaker's rulings final and beyond reversal, as in Britain. His resolution to this effect has been lost in the rush and may not re-appear before an election, but sooner or later it will have to be faced, now that both the great parties have sinned against Parliament.

Blind Eyes

PROF. PHILIP H. BACON, OF Columbia University Teachers' College, has performed a valuable service for Canada. It will be even more valuable if his remarks are taken to heart by educationists and the public generally in his nation.

Says the professor: "We simply don't know what's going on in Canada. We can't keep up with the pace of Canadian progress... We don't try hard enough."

In the schools of the United States course material on Canada is thoroughly inadequate, he suggests. In consequence, Americans keep finding to their surprise and embarrassment that this country is not merely an extension of their own. United States young people, he adds, are given no preparation for what is often brought to their notice later—that Canadians have interests and world views that often are disturbingly different from those held generally in the United States.

What Prof. Bacon says is true enough. Canadians, moreover, would welcome a broader understanding of their country, peoples, ideals and institutions on the part of their friends across the border.

But most honest Canadians will restrain their indignation against citizens of the United States for the latter's apparent ignorance of Canada. They have to, for no other reason than that too many Canadians are not only woefully ill-informed on the United States, but also on Canada as well.

It would be highly beneficial if Prof. Bacon could stimulate greater interest among his people in this country—even better if he could arouse more interest among Canadians in their own affairs and those of their neighbors.

As Our Readers See It

Animal Slaughter

Public opinion is at last aroused over the inhumane methods of slaughter in our packing houses. As further disclosed by Mr. Tom Hughes, SPCA; these methods still exist.

As a farmer, I have killed scores of animals for meat and with no complaint from my customers, and if I, an amateur, could do this without causing suffering, then the big people can do so. Cattle and horses I shot before bleeding, calves I stunned and pigs I stunned with a 22.

Humane slaughtering has long since been the law in England and the export of live horses to the continent stopped, but they have not been able to stop export to Ireland, where that nation of horse lovers (?) ship 3 boatloads a week to the continent, there to be strung up and bled via the electric pump—a cruel death, that not even the Nazis thought of.

Lets hope Mr. Tom Hughes and his Society will force the Government to insist on humane slaughter and so remove this blot on our copybook.

The people who fussed over the wretched Sputnik dog, apparently forget, or ignore that in the interest of another Science we condone dog vivisection with all its horrors.

A Closer Look at the Socialists in Disguise

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE thoughtful man, with plenty of time to think during the Christmas holidays, must have been deeply amused by certain changes in our society, among them the appointment of Mr. Gordon Sloan as the so-called "czar" of British Columbia forests.

I say that this appointment and other developments less noted are amusing but only because of their source. There is nothing amusing in Mr. Sloan or his new position. I can think of no able man in British Columbia or any position more serious and important.

But it is highly amusing, in a somber, philosophical fashion, to find a government which calls itself the last refuge of private enterprise thus embarking on a gigantic socialist experiment.

For that is what the new forest system means. It is what many other new public policies mean. However wise or unwise they may be, they are amusing because they are invariably introduced as anti-socialist.

If they fail to amuse the reader, they must amuse socialists like Mr. Coldwell who, though surely one of the finest men in our public life and probably our ablest parliamentarian, is also himself a little amusing to his friends and admirers, including this writer, because he is so obviously disenchanted with his earlier brand of socialism.

At these brash remarks your eyebrows may rise. What, you may ask, has Mr. Sloan's appointment to do with socialism? Is any man less attracted by socialism than Mr. Sloan with his salary of fifty thousand a year? Are the great forest industries not left in private hands? Is a single share of their stock being transferred to public ownership?

SUCH questions overlook the broad sweep and infinite variation of that misused word, "socialism." Like most other things, it has taken on new meanings until the old meaning is quite obsolete and is believed nowadays only by a few doctrinaires.

Once socialism meant the ownership of industry by the state or by the workers themselves in those foolproof syndicates imagined by Marx as part of a classless and stateless society.

But if nothing has turned out as the old socialists (and the old capitalists) expected, if hardly anyone longer believes that state ownership is a panacea, if that theory has been abandoned by the British Labor Party and its Canadian child, the CCF, nevertheless the original and primary intention of socialism remains and is growing stronger all the time.

That intention, in all its myriad aspects and contradictions, is the control of the economy by authorities outside, or as far outside as possible, of the free competitive market, for the general good.

BY that definition the new forest policy is clearly socialistic. It puts the forest industry effectively under the domination of one eminent public servant who is called an "adviser" but whose "advice" you may be sure, can never be resisted by the government.

Nor does the government wish to resist it. On the contrary, you can almost hear Mr. Bennett's long, hoarse sigh of relief as he tosses the vast problems of forestry (and certain other famous difficulties) into the competent hands of Mr. Sloan. All this is socialism in the broad, practical sense and it is too important to be trusted directly to the government.

NOW, I am not quarreling with this policy. I think it thoroughly sound in a particular case and the country fortunate to have a controller like Mr. Sloan. But please don't tell me that this is private enterprise. For the vital question here is not who owns the stock of the forest industry—the stock holders, in fact, having no control over even their own companies which are managed by persons who may own no stock at all; the vital question is who controls the general climate of the industry and in this case the public undertakes to control it through Mr. Sloan.

Many other aspects of the general economic climate are controlled in the same way, some directly through government, others indirectly through independent public servants where, as in the case of money, we do not dare to trust the government. We prefer to trust men like Mr. Coyne and Mr. Sloan who will not listen to politics—in other words, to us. And the significant thing is that the state's intervention is increasing all the time under the direction of politicians who deny and may even believe that they are doing nothing of the sort.

FOR another example, while the free enterprise, anti-socialist government of British Columbia was handing the forest industries over to Mr. Sloan the "Conservative" government of Canada was preparing to increase public subsidies to farmers, was actually subsidizing one private company at Britannia while refusing subsidies to others, was planning to subsidize other interests through the tariff, was devising a national scheme of hospital insurance, and doing many other things which may be wise and necessary or unwise and unnecessary but in any case are not "conservative" by any known definition, are certainly not intended to keep enterprise "free" or "private" and are all collectivist and socialistic in principle and direction.

THIS need not surprise us in the least. Such is the direction of society in our time and it began long ago, with the invention of the first machine, though there was a deceptive lull and apparent reversal in the nineteenth century.

The thoughtful man, therefore, need not be surprised or excited but he can hardly fail to be amused when every socialistic experiment is solemnly announced as another safeguard of private ownership.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Mid the Quiet Pleasures of the Rural Life

FOLKS who live in big cities often wonder how anyone can endure spending their days in small, isolated rural communities. Some city-bred types look on village life with the same degree of horror with which they regard a prison sentence. Fact is, except for certain maladjusted people, life in a small community is filled with interest and activity. True it is a different sort of activity from that of great urban centres and it lacks—or did before the advent of television, radios and hi-fi record players—the cultural amenities of large centres.

This lack, however, is one of which your true country type is unconscious and in even the most isolated places one is never as lonely as it is possible to be in teeming cities.

In the country one has neighbors—real neighbor folk—whose lighted windows at night, a mile or so away are like kindly beacons in the night. As one walks from place to place one has the company of trees which talk to one in their myriad voices; geese fly overhead and at dusk a fish plops, leaving wave rings on the still water.

Then there are all the small intimacies of life in which the tribulations, the joys the successes of neighbors have a personal impact that is impossible in large centres.

No doubt when we live in isolated communities we become insular and perhaps a little narrow-minded but even that can be overlooked when one considers the hard-shell insularity of people living in apartments in cities.

Well, the first time I lived at Quatsino for a spell, many years ago, I thought it was the most wonderful life that a boy could imagine. It was particularly interesting at the Ildstad home where a rifle or two and a couple of shotguns stood handily behind the kitchen door at all times. And fishing gear was always available.

Dull? My goodness, life was pulsating with interest and every dawn was a challenge.

You could take one of the boats and row over to Limestone Island just to stroll along a trail and watch the deer that browsed there without any fear of man. I remember once pretending to be hunting deer on the island with a loaded .22 calibre rifle.

I stalked the trail as silent, I thought, as an Iroquois in one of Fenimore Cooper's stories, just daring a bear to crash suddenly out of the thick bush. As I moved slowly along there was sudden rustle of leaves and there, right in front of me, at a distance of about ten feet a young deer dropped to the trail as softly as a thistle-down.

The deer stood quite still looking at me with surprise in her great limpid eyes (she was a doe, of course). But there was no sign of fear.

So I shouldered my rifle and took careful aim at her forehead right between her eyes and said: "bang." The deer moved about a foot sideways with a delicate dance step and then stopped to look at the silly intruder into her domain.

Then I said, "shoo, go on, shoo" and the gentle animal moved about another foot away and again stood still until I walked toward her when, with a little cheeky flick of her tail she leaped into the bush as silently as a blown leaf.

I could not have shot her—or any other deer—under any circumstance.

The small tads of the large Ildstad family shared none of my squeamishness about guns and one of them whom we called "baby," although he was at least eight years old, made enough money for an annual trip to Victoria from the bounty for shooting crows. He would crawl like an Indian toward a spit that stretched into the sea and a low tide was covered with crows picking up small shell fish among the barnacles and blaze away at them.

Each blast brought down its quota but the rest of the flock flew out of range in their crazy, straggling crow-flight and perched safely in nearby trees scolded and derided the boy as only a flock of crows can.

On another day the same boy saw a cougar slithering into the henhouse. The boys rushed to the henhouse and promptly booted the animal in its protruding rear so that it leaped ahead. The boy just slid down the hen door and locked the animal inside.

Then he raced into the house, seized the first gun behind the kitchen door and netted himself a $45 bounty, which assured him of a very merry Christmas, indeed.

The Die for Peace or War May Be Cast During the Year We Are Now About to Enter

By HON. LESTER B. PEARSON. Copyright 1957. All rights reserved.

I HOPE that the Christmas holiday has been kind to you, even though the spirit of goodwill and peace is conspicuous by its absence in many parts of the world. Perhaps there is no better symbol for the state of the world on Christmas 1957 than Bethlehem itself. Christ's birthplace was at peace this year for its pilgrims in the sense that there was no violence. But a few hundred yards away there was barbed wire beyond which the shepherd might be shot.

Pearson

On this day, however, our own and the world's troubles are veiled by the bright Christmas lights or the even brighter lights of children's eyes on Yule morning. Our great festival gives us renewed faith and hope—as always. Those who have public responsibilities, especially, will need these qualities, and courage and resolve, in the year that lies ahead.

In a few days now that "year ahead" will be here. This is the time, therefore, for looking both backward and forward. There can seldom, in a period of technical peace, have been such a stirring 12 months as those through which we have just passed. Nor are we likely to become bored by the monotony of national or international life in the immediate future.

A highlight at home, of course, during the past year was our election and change of government. You would not expect me to rhapsodize over that. I can, however, share the happiness of all Canadians over the civilized way in which the change-over took place, in accordance with the best traditions of parliamentary democracy; and with a minimum of dislocation or disturbance, a civil service which had for 22 years administered policies of governments formed from the same party, became at once the loyal and skilful servant of the new administration.

It was an important test for the stability, efficiency and continuity of our governmental machinery and it was met successfully.

A second domestic development that should be mentioned was the levelling off during the year of many of the indices of our recent spectacular economic growth. This does not mean a halt in that growth but it forecasts new and difficult problems of trade, development and employment in the New Year.

During that year, however, in company with other free countries, we are going to face problems even more vital than economic ones.

This new year comes at a time when western peoples are increasingly questioning the thesis that a nation's greatness—or even its power—can be measured primarily in terms of consumer standards or capital expansion. We are examining with a greater intensity our scales and priorities of social values. We are more aware, I think, than a year ago that man does not live by bread alone, or by a new-model car every year or a television set in every room.

Certain shocks we have received in 1957 from behind the Iron Curtain may have been partly responsible, at least, for this national soul searching.

These shocks have had the greater impact because they occurred in a field of activity in which western peoples in the last century had made their greatest progress and in which achievement was thought to be closely related to conditions of free thought and free life.

Nevertheless, in spite of freed largely because of a standard of material living which North Americans would find intolerably low, a totalitarian despotism has not only developed forms of power comparable or superior to that of the West, it has also moved in 50 years from popular backwardness and illiteracy to the highest achievements in science, engineering and technology, culminating in the conquest of outer space.

The Soviet Sputnik was the startling dramatization of this change, this transformation. With all that it implies in terms of politics and power, of our hopes and fears for the future, it is undoubtedly the major international event of the year—if not of the century.

The event—and the shock it gave the world—can be exploited positively or negatively. It will be the latter if we yield to panicky and short-sighted impulses and think only of restoring the positions in terms of military power; act only to that end.

Sputnik has, of course, a defence significance which must be faced and countered. It has shown that the Soviets are ahead of the West in certain military developments.

I do not suggest that the NATO powers, and especially of course the U.S.A., should not push ahead with their own plans for strengthening their defence position in these fields. But if this is the only conclusion we draw from Sputnik we will be acting very stupidly.

If and when we catch up with and pass the Soviets in this particular aspect of competitive co-existence—and if we do nothing else—we will merely have returned to the pre-Sputnik position of cold war, with both sides on a comparable basis of ability to destroy each other even more quickly and completely than before.

There is another, and even more important lesson to be drawn and there are signs that it is being learned. Indeed these signs are one of the more encouraging portents for 1958.

A new, grim and unchallengeable proof has been given that the destruction of this planet is not only easy, but inevitable if the weapons we have now developed are used. Therefore a further incentive has been given us to take the initiative in a renewed search for a solution to international problems and an easing of tension.

I am not thinking so much of disarmament. Indeed, important as this issue is, it is not in my view so important as certain political problems which have divided the two worlds and made an arms race inevitable.

While summit conferences, UN committees and sub-committees all have their value, surely the best way at the present time to make progress, or prove that progress can't be made and why, is through serious searching, frank and persistent direct diplomatic talks between Washington and Moscow.

In any such talks, three considerations must be kept in mind:

(1) There must be a re-examination of the issues without either side standing rigidly on positions previously taken.

(2) On the U.S.A. side, there should be full and prior consultation with allies on each matter that is brought forward. The NATO council is available and suitable for this purpose.

(3) Diplomatic discussions of this kind should not prejudice or weaken our defence position or slacken our defence effort. If the talks succeed, that success will automatically modify defence policy and effort, by giving us greater political security. Until then, there should be no weakening, but no provocation either.

Perhaps the Soviets, in their post-Sputnik mood, would reject any such peace initiative. Perhaps, it would not succeed if it were tried.

There can be nothing more important in 1958, however, than to make the attempt. The die for peace or war has not yet been cast but it may be during the year into which we are now entering.

And so, Happy New Year.

Life Among the Troglodytes

TORONTO must be the only place in the world where one can travel six miles, do all one's Christmas shopping and return without once having to expose one's face to the December blasts or one's eyes to the light of day.

It's all on account of the city's celebrated (more celebrated than extensive) underground railway. Provided you live near the upper reaches of this municipal marvel, you can get into the thing and emerge, in due course, directly into welcoming arms of Mr. Eaton or Mr. Simpson, whose impressive emporia abut directly onto the right of way. Within the snug confines of these commercial monoliths everything is to be found, and you need go no further unless you are bent on acquiring something really exotic, such as a stuffed dinosaur or a second-hand trombone.

You can wander for miles down corridors laden with $4.98 Yulety; and eventually this wandering raises the problem of how to get back to the subway. Montrealers, Hamiltonians and sundry other foreigners have been found before now, hopelessly lost in Sporting Goods or Ladies Lingerie, but firmly convinced that the underground is just around the next corner.

However, it is really easy to get back. All you have to do is descend to the basement. From there on, the matter is out of your hands. You are spewed forth from the elevator directly into the stream, which surges inexorably through the Bargains, right onto the platform and into the train. All you need is a pair of sharp elbows and a sense of oblivion so far as manners are concerned.

Home, James. All of this is a little startling at first to a staid country cousin from Victoria. But it is surprising how quickly the old skills of wartime come back. Evidently the subconscious retains vivid memories of Tube in London and Metro in Paris, and after a first skirmish to lumber up one can face the Friday rush hour with confidence, if not equanimity.

And talking of rush hour, the lack of it is something we fortunate Victorians can congratulate ourselves on. There are a few of us, I know, who will occasionally let fly a barbed comment at 5 o'clock of an evening, should we be so foolish as to get trapped in the daily migration of the civil service. But anadromous public officials are a mere nothing to a million or so troglodytes intent upon domestic cheer after a hard day at the office. It is an interesting pastime, familiar to the African traveller, to pick a vantage point and observe the emptying of the swarming troglodytes converge on the narrow channel of Avenue Road, on which the mass moves inexorably northward as though impelled by some monstrous cathartic.

However, by six or so the downtown part is fairly clear, and the fun is just starting in the tangled townships outside. This is a great town for an ambitious traffic cop.

A Happy New Year to everyone, especially policemen.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

A British Alcatraz?

LONDON—Is Britain to have an Alcatraz? Will some remote, sparsely populated island off the coast of Scotland be set aside as the equivalent of America's notorious prison for lifers?

This matter which is under debate by the prison commissioners and governors is the outcome of Britain's new Homicide Act which abolishes hanging for most murders. Going on past records, there will be in 10 years' time at least 150 lifers who would undoubtedly have been executed in the days before the act.

As I mentioned the other day, a life term in Britain usually averages only 10 years in prison but by now public indignation against child-murderers has reached such a pitch that it is felt the Home Secretary in office in 1967 surely would not follow the practice of 1956 and let loose such men. That would be carrying "forgive and forget" too far.

Feeling is now that with so many murderers who would formerly have been hanged to be set free once more, the interpretation of "life imprisonment" will have to be altered to mean what it says.

In the past there had never been any great problem as to where to confine people serving life terms. With so-called lifers being constantly released, their numbers in prison never greatly increased.

But now with the majority of killers being imprisoned instead of being hanged and the public demanding that it should be protected by the most brutal of them being kept behind bars for the rest of their days the prison population of murderers must rise annually.

Places like Dartmoor, Parkhurst, Wandsworth and Wormwood Scrubs are considered unsuitable. It seems certain Britain soon will have to have something it never needed before—an Alcatraz.

HOW MUCH do trade disputes hold up production? Apparently not as much as one might think. Statistics for Britain last year show that they meant 50 minutes lost for each worker in industry. But industrial accidents lost eight hours per worker and sickness 100 hours.

Special Services Mark 50th Year Of Nazarenes

First and Esquimalt churches of the Nazarene will join with 4,500 other associated congregations to mark the denomination's 50th anniversary on New Year's Day.

Starting with a union of 288 churches and 10,414 members in 1908, the Nazarene body has grown to 4,500 churches and 300,000 members. The denomination is represented in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Australia and carries out missionary work in 35 world areas.

Radiation Risk

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The Stockholm Radium Clinic, the Swedish cancer treatment centre, will be reconstructed because of serious radiation risks by the staff.

'Watch Night' Services Planned To Herald Arrival of New Year

Birth of 1958 will be heralded by "Watch Night" services in several city churches on New Year's Eve.

At Metropolitan United Church, 250 members of the congregation and their friends will play games and dance until 11.45 p.m., then attend a short service in the church. Following the service, they will return to the church hall for turkey dinner.

Watch Night service will begin in St. John's Church at 11.15 p.m.

Short religious service at Esquimalt United Church will be held at midnight. Turkey dinner and dancing in the church hall will follow.

St. Aidan's United and First Baptist churches will hold Watch-Night services at 11.30 p.m. and Central Baptist Church at 11.

Rosary devotions and benediction will be held at St. Andrew's Cathedral New Year's Eve at 7.30. Mass on New Year's Day will be at 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 a.m., and 12.15 p.m. Rosary devotions and benediction will be held at 7.30 that night.

Bishop James Hill will be host at a reception in the Bishop's House New Year's Day from 2 to 4 p.m.

Rev. Douglas B. Carr will preach on "The Miracle of Little Things" at the morning service. To be broadcast over CJVI at Centennial United Church. In the evening the Canadian Girls in Training will hold their annual vesper and candle-lighting service.

Morning service in St. John's Church will be broadcast over CKDA. Organist Frederick Chubb and the choir will present a Festal Evensong at 7.30 p.m.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a.m. in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday. Rev. R. E. H. Howell will preach at Mattins. Carol service of the Nine Lessons will be held at 7.30 p.m. Rev. C. M. Hubbard will preach at Evensong in James Bay Hall.

Rev. C. Leighton Streight will preach on "In the Driver's Seat" at the Sunday morning service in First United Church. Rev. A. I. Higgins' subject at night will be "Spiritual Stock-Taking."

Preaching at Emmanuel Baptist Church, Rev. A. C. Hamill will take as his Sunday subjects, "The Melody Lingers On" and "See the Christ as the Alpha and Omega."

Dr. J. B. Rowell will outline "The Sanctified Life—Its Peace and Its Power" at services in Central Baptist Church Sunday.

WILLIAM J. SCHNELL
former zone servant for Jehovah's Witnesses in Ohio and Pennsylvania

Mr. Schnell has written a simple, powerful, and inspiring story of his association with this movement, his rise to positions of authority, the hopefulness of his situation, and remarkable conversion in 1954, after an entire night of prayer. This is vividly told in his book, Thirty Years A Watch Tower Slave, Confessions of A Converted Jehovah's Witness. The price is only $2.95.

You owe it to yourself to read this book. Sooner or later you will be confronted by members of this sect. You will be glad you have this information. Buy a copy today.

PUZZLES and PASTIMES

A COLORFULLY-GARBED PARTY

A colorful character en route to a masquerade party is hidden in the diagram above. To see him clearly, apply crayons or colored pencils to the various segments as follows.

R—Red. B—Blue. BK—Black. O—Orange. Y—Yellow. G—Green.

TUNE-UP FOR NEW YEAR'S

Fold this paper keyboard drawing so as to have it before you at the piano. As you play the note shown, sing the words. It's a New Year's favorite, of course.

Should Auld Ac-quantance

C (1) F E (1) F A

G F G

And Ne- ver Brought to Mind?

A F F A C (2) D (2)

FOR THE BACKWARD

Explain to guests that you intend to transfer a coin which you have between your teeth into your back pocket even though your hands are about to be tied behind your back. Ask them if they know how it can be done.

Can you do it? If not, study the explanation below.

WHAT, WHEN AND WHY RIDDLES

What kind of iron is in the blood of a prize-fighter?

When is it most difficult to prepare a square meal?

What is food that does not agree with one like a cook's apron?

WHAT RELATIONSHIP?

What relationship to me is the mother-in-law of my wife's brother's wife?

WHAT IS A SUNSPOT?

Scientists do not agree. Most describe it as a storm in the sun's atmosphere, a whirlpool or eddy in the swirling outer layers of that gaseous furnace.

EVEN SANTA'S NOT HIMSELF HERE

It's not surprising if everyone, including Santa, has a surprised look in the drawing above. Plainly, a great many things in this scene are not what they seem.

Can you, as a test of knowledge and observation, find the 25 or more errors in the drawing?

If competition is at hand, place the drawing in plain sight and see who can list 25 errors fastest.

CATCHY QUESTION

Bill Rounder as a result of his habits always gets up late in the day. Yet he rises when the rays of the sun poised at the horizon first come through his bedroom window. How is that possible?

JUST FIVE NUMBERS

There are five consecutive numbers which will add up to exactly 100. Can you name them?

PUZZLING RESULTS

The number 112 can be divided into four parts which when respectively increased by 3, multiplied by 3, divided by 3, and reduced by 3, all show the same result—21. How is it done?

FIND FATHER TIME'S MESSAGE

There's a message doodled by Father Time in the diagram at left, but it takes some detective work to find.

To begin, cut a "magnifying glass" the size of that shown above from a piece of paper or cardboard.

Place this instrument upon the diagram and shift it about until you have found the message.

If the words are upside down, sideways, etc.

How quickly can you find it? You may prefer to improvise a "magnifying glass" by cupping your hand. Peer through circular opening between thumb and forefinger.

ALLEY OOP

DOC OSCAR: MEET JACK EAST, OUR ANGEL!

ANGEL? THEN YOU ARE GOING TO FINANCE OUR PROJECT?

YES, GENTLEMEN. $35,000 I THINK WAS THE FIGURE NAMED?

WHY, YES, THAT'S RIGHT, MR. EAST! LET ME SEE THAT.

I HATE TO DISILLUSION YOU, OSCAR, BUT LOOK AT THIS STUFF. IT WAS ISSUED A HUNDRED YEARS AGO!

THAT'S RIGHT, BY THE TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA!

YOU THINK IT'S STILL GOOD?

WHY, OF COURSE! DID YOU EVER HEAR OF ANY U.S. MONEY GOING BAD?

MARK TRAIL

GOSH, THERE AREN'T MANY SHELLS IN HERE!

MIGHT AS WELL TAKE THESE TOO!

WHAT LINDA DOESN'T KNOW IS THAT SHE HAS PUT THREE 50-GAUGE SHELLS IN THE BOX OF 12'S.

LAREDO

Canadian Markets Clouded By Atmosphere of Caution

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

To Canadian stock market investors this week was disappointing.

Hoping for a year-end rally, traders got another decline and that was tempered by light trading during the shortened week in which markets were open for three and one-half sessions.

Poor business news continued to keep traders cautious and many paid more attention to Christmas shopping than to markets.

Rising unemployment, declining profits and dividends, a lower steel operating rate, declining freight carloadings and the poor reception of 1958 model cars kept the atmosphere shrouded in caution.

Only two trading sessions remain in 1957 and brokers say there will have to be exciting good news to send stocks up.

Canadian investors enjoyed an extra one-half day holiday more than their American counterparts. Wall Street remained open for a full session Tuesday while Montreal and Toronto closed at noon. All exchanges were closed Christmas Day.

Trading Thursday was light and price changes were narrow. Prices edged narrowly lower Monday and Friday but some selected issues, especially industrials, scored moderate gains.

Several mining and oil stocks broke through 1957 lows recorded in October and many observers predicted by Friday that the markets would test the previous lows in all sections.

Price changes on the Toronto Stock Exchange were narrow. Dominion Stores gained $3.50 to $50.75 among industrials and Ford A lost $5.25 to $61.25. These were the biggest changes. Most mining and oil price changes were less than 50 cents and losses held an edge.

Of 715 issues traded, 212 advanced, 323 declined and 180 were unchanged.

The volume for the week was the lightest of the year at 5,475,000 shares. Sales in the previous week, which had five sessions, were 8,758,000.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up .58 at 397.31; golds up 1.16 to 69.86; base metals off 1.92 to 142.96; western oils off 2.18 to 123.96.

Utilities are off. Index changes at Montreal: Banks up .09 to 44.23; utilities off .2 at 130.9; industrials up .26 to 230.0; combined up .17 to 197.0; papers up 3.97 to 1,050.02; golds off 1.38 to 61.75.

Volumes at Montreal: 111,370 industrials and 1,001,419 mines compared with 229,043 industrials and 1,438,895 mines the previous week. Of 275 issues traded, 58 advanced, 117 declined and 100 were unchanged.

Ottawa Loan For Mainland Housing Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal loans totalling $449,337 for low-rental housing units in Winnipeg and West Vancouver have been announced.

They include $397,337 for construction of 55 apartment units for low-income families in Winnipeg and $52,000 for a 16-unit housing project for old people at West Vancouver. The loans are being made under the National Housing Act to limited-dividend housing companies.

The announcement said that the Winnipeg project, undertaken by the Premier Housing Corporation Limited, will include 44 two-bedroom apartments and 11 one-bedroom apartments.

Monthly rent for the larger apartments would be $73.50 for families with incomes up to $3,510, and for the one-bedroom apartments $66.50 for families with incomes up to $3,090.

Construction of all kinds was cited by the commerce department as one of the strongest spots in the U.S. economy. The Associated General Contractors of America predicted that construction outlays in 1958 will rise to a high of $68,000,000,000, a gain of nearly $3,000,000,000 compared with 1957.

MINE REPORTS BLEAK Not so bright are the latest reports on mine and factory production. Auto output is down 18 per cent from a year ago, with 75,000 workers laid off until after New Year's. Steel production this week totalled 537,000 tons. In Christmas week last year the industry turned out 2,322,000 tons. That's a decline of 41 per cent. Coal production is down 14.8 per cent; crude oil output down 6 per cent.

Railroad carloadings are down 5 1/2 per cent from a year ago.

VANCOUVER TO STAGE PCL ALL-STAR CLASSIC

VANCOUVER (CP)—This city will host the Pacific Coast League all-star baseball game in 1958 as part of the British Columbia centennial celebrations.

General manager Cedric Tallis of the Vancouver Mounties announced Friday that the game will be played some time in July.

Top players from the northern clubs meet their southern neighbors in the annual affair. Vancouver, Seattle, Spokane and Portland players will engage the best from San Diego, Sacramento, Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

CLEVELAND (NEA)—Working his Browns at old League Park here for their seventh National Football League championship game in eight years, Paul Brown talked as if he was pleased with the freezing temperatures and snow.

Brown, the coach with the fantastic record, even turns miserable weather into an advantage for his side.

"When we played Los Angeles in the playoff two years ago," he recalls, "the Rams' front office wanted us to come out there some days before we did. But we said we'd rather work in the snow around here. Our guys worked in stocking caps and bundled up the best way they could. And all it did was rain, sleet and snow."

"We flew out the day before the game, and when our guys started to run on the fast turf of the Los Angeles Coliseum, it was like taking a fat man off the back of each one of them. That was Otto Graham's last game, and we beat the Rams, 38-14."

Another reason why Brown elected to train for two weeks in Cleveland was that he had a hunch that Detroit would knock over San Francisco in the playoff for the Western Division title. Now he has had the Browns training in weather similar to that expected in Detroit Sunday, when the Browns and Lions clash for the professional football crown.

Brown said he hadn't cared who would win the Western Division championship.

"It wouldn't have done us any good to have had a preference, so why have one?" he explained.

"Judging from the way they were knocking one another off in that division, it wouldn't have made a bit of difference which club we played. We were well acquainted with both, and one was as good as the other."

"The only edge we might have had in San Francisco was in the weather. Out there, our guys might have got that weight off their backs as they did in Los Angeles two years ago."

"But it's going to be the Lions and we'll have something figured for them."

"Each game is different. The next game is the only one that counts," Brown replied when asked to explain his tremendous success—in high school, college, the service and with the professionals.

Brown pointed out that the game was much looser than it used to be, but that the basic plays remain about the same.

"The difference is in the blocking and the change from game to game and play to play," he said.

"Brown beats you with execution and influence blocking," said Vince Lombardi, the Giants' offensive coach, after the Browns shaded the 1956 champions in the finale at Yankee Stadium. "He gets the defensive guards outside conscious and then goes over them."

"Once Paul Brown gets the defensive guard following the play, the quarterback gives the ball to Jimmy Brown with no block on that guard at all."

Head coach Jim Lee Howell of the Giants has picked the Browns to beat the Lions.

Paul Brown no doubt is of the same opinion, but he's been pleased with this week's sleet and snow.

That might get the weight off his guys' backs Sunday.

Pass-Catching Hoppy Lions' Major Threat

DETROIT (AP)—Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy's ability to grab a pass is a cinch to be one of the Detroit Lions' major offensive threats when they go against Cleveland Browns here Sunday for the National Football League championship.

A flanking halfback, Cassidy is the No. 2 pass receiver on a team that likes to throw because it has two such accomplished passers as Bobby Layne and Tobin Rote.

In 12 regular season games and one playoff game, the former All-American halfback caught 28 passes for 362 yards. Three times his pass-catching brought a touchdown.

The only man above Cassidy in the Lions' pass receiving list is Jim Doran, a seven-year veteran from Iowa State who snared 33 passes in the regular season for 624 yards and five touchdowns.

LAYNE OUT

This time out, as in his last two games, Cassidy will have only Rote as a front-running quarterback to aim the ball at him. Layne suffered a broken ankle against this same Cleveland team in the Lions' 20-7 victory three weeks ago.

When the subject of Cassidy's pass receiving came up in the Lions' dressing room this week, he gave credit to assistant coach Bob Nussbaumer. Nussbaumer took the job early this year of making Cassidy act like an end.

"I had never run a pass pattern until I came up with the Lions," said Cassidy, whose university days were at Ohio State. "Oh, I had caught a few passes, all right, but they were those little things you flick out to a man in the flat or something like that."

Buc Bonus Baby

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates announced the signing Friday of Raymond M. Looney, George Washington University football and baseball star, to a bonus contract. The price was not disclosed.

Looney, 21, a left-handed hitter and first baseman, will be assigned to Pirates' Columbus team in the International League.

FOR RUDY PILOUS

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Rudy Pilous switches from junior hockey to a National Hockey League coaching job next week. He exchanges a hot team for a sputtering one for the privilege.

Pilous, 42-year-old pilot of St. Catharines Teepees in the Ontario Junior Hockey League, was named Friday as coach of the last-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Teepees are riding high in their league with a comfortable seven-point lead over the second-place Toronto Marlboros. Hawks are seven points behind the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings.

Seixas, Mackay Salvage Some Prestige for U.S.

MELBOURNE (UP)—Vic Seixas and Barry Mackay salvaged some prestige for the United States Davis Cup team today when they outlasted their already victorious Australian opponents in the concluding "exhibition" matches of the challenge round.

Seixas, playing in what he announced was his final Davis

Cup match, turned back lanky Mal Anderson, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 0-6, 13-11, in a gruelling 127-minute duel that ruined the Aussies' bid for their third straight challenge round sweep.

Then Mackay, a newcomer to these time-honored Aussie-U.S. cup matches, outgunned Ashley Cooper in another five-set marathon, 6-4, 1-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Both matches were played in near 100 degree weather.

It was a remarkable recovery for the doughty Yanks but it only served to reduce Australia's winning margin to 3-2 in the best-of-five series. Seixas and Mackay dropped their opening singles matches Thursday and then allowed the cup to slip from their grasp when the Aussies clinched matches in Friday's doubles match.

So today's matches were supposed to be "just for fun," but both Seixas and Mackay played as if their very lives were at stake.

HE GOT HIM!

Seixas, now 34 and a seven-year veteran of the Davis Cup wars, boldly predicted "I'm going out there and get Anderson" before taking the court at Kooyong Stadium.

"Win or lose, this is my last Davis Cup appearance," the dour fighter from Philadelphia added. "I've got a good job waiting for me when I return to the United States next week."

And although the blazing heat sapped his strength and left him dripping wet, Seixas backed up his prediction by producing one of the greatest efforts of his long career.

Even the usually-partisan Aussie fans cheered Seixas wildly at the finish. They had been on his side since early in the final set when they disapproved of some doubtful decisions that went to Anderson.

LENGTHY SERIES

The Mackay-Cooper set produced a record for it marked the first time in cup history that all four singles matches were extended to five sets. The result also convinced Australian fans that in Mackay the U.S. now has a young man that will have to be reckoned with in future cup action.

The gangling giant from Dayton, Ohio, turned the tables on heavily-favored Cooper in a 91-minute power duel that featured crashing deliveries. In fact, Cooper broke his racket strings while matching Mackay's blistering stroking in the third set.

The coveted silver bowl was presented to Harry Hopman, non-playing captain of the Aussie team, who remarked: "After what you saw today, you may consider my grip on the Davis Cup slippery."

Giardello Wants Chance for Title

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—Joey Giardello said today his unanimous decision over Ralph (Tiger) Jones should convince the world he is ready for a shot at the middleweight crown now worn by Carmen Basilio.

The fourth-ranked middleweight fought his way out of trouble in the third round Friday night and rocked Jones with a combination left hook and overhand right that sent the Yonkers, N.Y., "Tiger" to the canvas for only the second time in his 69-fight professional career.

At the end of the nationally televised 10-rounder, Giardello was winging his counter punches home with accuracy to gain the unanimous verdict of the two judges and referee Jimmy Peeler.

A near-capacity crowd of 3,661 in the Miami Beach Auditorium paid $10.046 to see the fight that lagged only slightly in the middle rounds. Giardello, at 159½ pounds, came into the ring as a 4-1 favorite with a two-pound weight advantage over Jones.

NO IMMEDIATE PLANS

Giardello, the Philadelphia "bad boy" who now lives at Rosedale, N.Y., said he has no plans for another fight soon unless "they let me go against Basilio."

"I'm ready now for Basilio, but I suppose they'll make me wait some more. I've been waiting five years for a shot at the title."

The 27-year-old Joey, winning his fifth fight in a row and his 14th without defeat, said he felt tired and rusty coming out for the second round, which Jones won with his boring in style and sharp left jabs. That is when

Only Apology Was Important

OTTAWA (CP)—Judge Allan J. Fraser, Big Four Football Union commissioner, has accepted an out-of-court settlement from MacLean's magazine in a libel action he had threatened against the publication.

He had hired counsel to start the action following references to himself in an article in the magazine's Nov. 23 issue. Written by John Kerns and Trent Frayne, it was entitled Why the West Will Win the Grey Cup This Year and Next and Next.

In its issue dated Jan. 4, 1958, the magazine publishes an apology. It is reported to have paid Judge Fraser damages and legal costs.

"I was only interested in their apology," Judge Fraser told a reporter, "and the matter is now closed."

Centre Bolsters

Canadian Entry

TORONTO (CP)—Whitby Dunlops, Canada's representative at the world hockey tournament at Oslo, Feb. 28 to March 9, Friday announced the signing of centre Connie Broden, last year with Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of the Quebec Hockey League.

Dunlops manager Wren Blair said Broden will make his debut next Wednesday against Kingston CKLCS.

BLACK HAWKS' NEW COACH

Pilous will remain as Teepee general manager. He has guided the club in a dual role for the last eight years. Glen Somner, 27, coach of the St. Catharines' junior "B" team will replace Pilous as Teepee coach.

Pilous takes over the Chicago job Jan. 2, two days before Hawks meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Tommy Ivan, present Hawk coach and general manager, remains with the team as general manager. Ivan has been at the Chicago helm since the late Dick Irvin retired. Irvin died last May 16.

Pilous will meet a lot of old faces in the NHL, most of them in Chicago. In St. Catharines he coached present Hawk regulars Bobby Hull, Elmer Vasko, Ian Cushman and Pierre Pilote. St. Catharines is a Hawk farm team.

"It is with mixed feelings that I leave St. Catharines," Pilous said. "Naturally, I am very happy to have been given the opportunity of coaching an NHL team but my association with hockey in St. Catharines and the many fans who have supported the team made it a very difficult decision."

The Pilous name is synonymous with junior hockey here. He was instrumental in organizing the city's first junior A team in 1943-44. After

Headquarters Quiet, So Pistol May Play

Word has leaked out from Western Hockey League headquarters that Eddie Dorohoy, Victoria Cougars' leading scorer, will be permitted to dress for tonight's game against Vancouver Canucks.

Cougar coach Pat Egan, however, isn't certain.

A threat of suspension hangs over the volatile Dorohoy, who took violent objection to a call by referee Lloyd Gilmour in Thursday's outing against New Westminster Royals.

The Cougar centre drew a 10-minute misconduct and then a game penalty when he went after Gilmour in the second period of Thursday's game. League president Al Leader reported Friday night that he had not received the referee's report. Leader added that he will talk to Gilmour before handing out any suspension.

Unless Leader acts on the report later today, it is quite probable that the Pistol will be permitted to dress for action against Vancouver when the teams square off in Memorial Arena at 8 tonight.

HE'S WAITING

"I'm not making any plans for tonight, until we're on the ice," Egan said this morning.

"Leader has been in this position before. The last time he handed out the suspension, the team was notified a few hours before game time."

"With Eddie, we've just got enough players to go around. Without him, it's going to be a case of make-shift lines and hope we can score more goals than the Canucks."

Balanced precariously on the thin edge of oblivion, and slipping deeper into the league cellar with nearly every outing, Cougars received yet another weighty blow Friday.

Manager Colin Kilburn announced that left-wing Larry Leach had been recalled by Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League, and would leave Victoria Jan. 2.

The move is the final chapter in the negotiations, which brought winger Stan Baliuk to the Cats late last month.

GOOD LINE

It will have the effect of breaking up one of the Cougars' most effective lines, that of Leach, Gordie Wilson and Doug Macaulay. Leach and Wilson have been outstanding as penalty-killers.

Vancouver will be without the services of hard-rock defenceman Brent Macnab, who lost his three-year-old son Thursday.

Macnab has returned to his home in Vermillion, Alta., and Canucks coach Art Chapman is expected to move forward Ed McQueen back to the blue line.

WARRIORS BOW 5-3

Flyers Must Like Boucher's Scheme

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Flyers are putting hockey's latest innovation to its severest test to date.

Last week the Western Hockey League's Prairie division announced they would dress only 12 men a game, instead of the usual 15, in a move to cut rosters.

Friday the Flyers whipped first-place Winnipeg Warriors 5-3 for their second win in two nights.

So far the Flyers don't appear to be tiring. Tommy McCarthy former Detroit Red Wing, banged in two first-period goals and Hugh Coffin, Frank Roggeveen and Len Lunde split a hat-trick as Edmonton built up a 3-0 lead and coasted to within three points of first place.

Pete Kapusta, Earl Ingarfield and Murray Wilkie scored for Warriors, who peppered 37 shots at Dennis Riggins in the Flyer net. Ray Mikulan stopped 25 at the other end.

General manager Frank Boucher of the Saskatoon St. Paul Regals called for the return to less manpower two weeks ago. The WHL's Coast Division turned down the proposal but it was approved by the inland circuit. Christmas Day's Edmonton-Calgary encounter was its baptism.

Critics of the economy move say players cannot be expected to go all-out for 60 minutes without suitable reserves. Edmonton may prove them wrong.

Tonight there is a full card on both the coast and Prairies. The Vancouver Canucks, minus defenceman Brent Macnab play at Victoria and Seattle travels to New Westminster. Eastward, Winnipeg is at home to Edmonton and Regals visit Calgary.

Canucks will likely shift forward Ed MacQueen to the blue line in place of MacNab. Brent's three-year-old son died Thursday and he is at home in Vermillion, Alta., with his wife.

Ollie Dorohoy, veteran New Westminster Royal forward, will be sidelined for some time due to a fractured leg sustained in Victoria Thursday.

Victoria Rinks Move Up-Island For Bonspiel

Seven rinks from Greater Victoria will take part in the annual Vancouver Island high school boys' bonspiel at Nanaimo on Monday.

Foursomes representing city schools will be skipped by Dave Work, Bud Taylor, Don Moss, Charles McLean, Wally Dun, Temple, Dave Bishop and Ron Gardiner.

Teams will leave for Nanaimo at 7 a.m. Monday from the Victoria Curling Club. Parents who plan accompanying the boys to Nanaimo in their own cars are asked to contact Gar Taylor.

All skips are asked to contact Taylor before Monday (phone 4-4818).

Badminton Schedule Resumes on Jan. 6

Action in the second half of the Lower Island Badminton Association schedule opens Jan. 6 when fourth division Belmont will play host to Brentwood.

The meeting will be a prelude to matches through six divisions, including junior, which will carry on to March 14.

Smrke Blazes Amerks' Trail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans erupted for five goals in less than 14 minutes of the third period Friday night, battering Buffalo Bisons 8-4 in an American Hockey League game.

In the only other AHL action, Cleveland Barons edged Providence Reds 2-1.

The Rochester home-town win put the Americans into a tie with Buffalo for fourth place.

Stan Smrke scored three for Rochester and assisted on another. Gary Collins picked up two and three assists, while Mike Nykoluk collected four assists. Fred Burchell scored two and Del Toppo one.

For Buffalo, Dick Gamble scored twice and Bob Hassard once.

First-period goals by Gordie Vejpava and Bill Watson were enough for the Cleveland win—also on home ice. Camille Bedard saved Providence from a shut-out. Goalie Johnny Bower stopped the shot, but the puck fell off his glove into the net.

Eight Fatalities In Boxing Game

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight boxing deaths were reported throughout the world in 1957, five in the amateur ranks and three among the professionals, in a Ring magazine year-end survey. It was the second smallest number in 11 years.

Three of the eight deaths were in Germany, two amateurs and a professional.

Leafs Counting On 19-Year-Old

By the Canadian Press

Frank Mahovlich may be the prophet needed to lead Toronto Maple Leafs out of the National Hockey League wilderness. It's a big burden to place on the shoulders of a 19-year-old hockey player and a dangerous prediction to make about a rookie with just 34 NHL games under his belt, but young Mahovlich has all the earmarks of the explosive scoring star Leafs have needed for many years.

TIME OUT!

"Glad you could make it for the weekend, Tom... You know everybody!"

Leahy Plans Irish 'T' For Texas

CHICAGO (AP) — Plans for rounding up at least part of his old Notre Dame staff and installing the split-T at Texas A and M were described by Frank Leahy Friday even as he underwrote health tests for the proposed Aggie football coaching job.

X-rays and other medical checks were expected to give Leahy the green light for officially accepting the job as head coach and athletic director at the college.

Dr. Clifford J. Barborka, who originally advised Leahy to quit coaching after the 1953 Notre Dame football season, examined the 49-year-old mentor's liver, pancreas and stomach.

Leahy said the reason the question of a physical test came up in connection with his accepting the post, being vacated by Paul (Bear) Bryant, developed because of an incident while he was conferring with Texas officials.

All Proceeds Assist Agricultural Society

PARIS (AP) — The Supreme Court decided Wednesday that race horses and plow horses are brothers—a decision that many a losing horse player reached long ago.

The decision came in a ruling that race tracks are properly an agricultural activity, the betting that goes on there is secondary, and the races are for the improvement of horseflesh.

Under French law race tracks are administered by the ministry of agriculture. However, employees of a track in Algiers complained that race tracks were primarily public entertainment, and therefore their salaries should come under public regulations covering non-agricultural employees.

The trial court decided for the employees. An appeals court decided against. The Supreme Court published the final word Wednesday — in France, the man who takes your bet at the pari-mutuel window is an agricultural employee.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (NEA) — Big Red Jimmy Phillips, Auburn end, is a unanimous choice to the 1957 All-Opponent team selected by Kentucky players.

The burly left-winger's 15 goals to date, including two three-goal flights, have made him the outstanding candidate for the rookie award honors which have escaped the Leafs since Howie Meeker won the Calder Trophy during the 1946-47 season.

The Schumacher, Ont., native entered the NHL this fall—he played three games for Leafs last spring—as one of the most highly-touted rookies since Jean Beliveau made his debut with Montreal Canadiens.

For 19 games he was a disappointment at centre. Then coach Billy Reay shifted him to left wing, where he had most of his junior experience, and he immediately caught fire, scoring four goals in his next five games.

Mahovlich is similar to Beliveau in more than the excitement he caused as a junior. Like Beliveau and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings he is the sort of husky, broad-shouldered athlete who seems to epitomize power.

Like them he is a six-footer and carries close to 200 pounds on his muscular frame. He skates with the same easy, long stride and moves with the same speed that makes every play look easy.

This quality, though it sometimes leads critics to accuse a player of loafing, also is a hallmark of the player who can suddenly break a game wide open with a clutch of goals.

HAVE LACKED TOP MAN

This is what Leafs need, especially with their new style of play emphasizing attack. The lack of such a player since they last won a Stanley Cup—in 1951—is shown by the scoring statistics.

Since that cup, Leafs have had only four players in the league's list of top 10 point-getters. In three seasons, 1952-53, 1953-54 and 1955-57, they did not have one man among the top 10.

Reay still insists his prize rookie will become a top center, pointing to Mahovlich's best junior season. With Toronto St. Michael's of the Ontario Hockey Association last year he scored 52 times and assisted on 36 other goals at that position.

Tonight Mahovlich and the Leafs, now in fourth place, meet New York Rangers in Toronto. Detroit is in Montreal and Chicago Black Hawks are host to Boston Bruins. Sunday Toronto is in Chicago, Montreal is in New York and Boston is in Detroit.

Hat Tricks Mark Midget Activity

Mike Woodley and Jim Cathro each hammered home three goals Friday at Memorial Arena as midget division Flyers drove into a first-place tie in the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association with a 7-3 defeat of Canucks.

The loss dropped Canucks into a three-way tie for second place as Royals defeated Americans 6-3 with Dennis Yardley leading the way.

Mountain Man Hailed As Athlete-of-the-Year

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Lew Burdette, the man from the West Virginia mountains who made Milwaukee's baseball miracle come true, gets the nod today as the athlete of the year.

The big pitcher from Nitro, W. Va., nailed down the honor by winning three World Series games from the mighty Yankees. In the process he pitched 24½ consecutive scoreless innings and became the first man to start and win three games in the classic since Stan Coveleskie turned the trick in 1920.

It rates here as the standout athletic performance of 1957.

Sport by sport, the other individual stickouts were:
Boxing—Carmen Basilio was the fighter of the year without a question. He successfully defended the welterweight championship against Johnny Saxton and then won the middleweight crown in a slashing, battering bout against Sugar Ray Robinson.

Racing—Little Willie Hearn took the laurels as the leading jockey for the third year in a row. For the second straight year he led in stakes and money won, setting a record with 44 stakes and winning more than $3,000,000.

Football — It was Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts among the pros and Johnny Crow of the Texas Aggies among the collegians. Unitas, who three years ago was playing sandlot football for $6 a game, led the pro league with 24 touchdown passes and 2,550 yards gained; pass Crow carried the Aggies into the Gator Bowl against Tennessee and was everybody's player of the year.

Basketball—Bob Cousy among the pros and Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain among the collegians, get the nod here. Cousy was the season-long sparkplug and playmaker and also led the league in assists as he paced the Boston Celtics to the NBA title. Chamberlain was the biggest one-man show in college ranks and had the pros drooling in prospect.

Golf — Dick Mayer was the "pro golfer of the year" with amateur laurels to Hillman Robbins, a Walker cupper who won the U.S. amateur crown. Mayer stroked his way out of obscurity by winning the U.S. open in a playoff with Cary Middlecoff and then picking up the $50,000 top money in the all-American at Tam O'Shanter.

Tennis—Aithen Gibson wrote history with a slashing racket when he became the first Negro to win either at Wimbledon or in the U.S. championships at Forest Hills. She did both with the same ease which kept Pancho Gonzales at the top of the professional heap.

Hockey—Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings get the nod on his sixth NHL scoring championship and third most valuable player trophy even though Maurice (the Rocket) Richard passed the stratospheric 500-goal mark.

Track and field—Derek Ibbotson of England was the man, lowering the world mile record to 3:57.2, even though Bob Gutowski erased Cornelius Warmardam's 15-year-old pole vault record with a 15-foot 9¼-inch leap.

KILBURN AMONG SELECT NAMES ON GUEST LIST

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jackie Parker, Edmonton Eskimos' fullback and "player of the year" in Canadian football this year, will be guest speaker Jan. 17 at a sportsmen's dinner in suburban Burnaby.

He will be one of 15 head-table guests and 200 others at the $10-a-plate dinner, sponsored by a Burnaby service club. All tickets have already been spoken for.

Other special guests include British Columbia Lions' fullback By Bailey and halfback Primo Villanueva; general manager Charlie Metro of Vancouver's baseball Mounties; playing coach Colin Kilburn of Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League; Elmer Lach, former great centre with Montreal Canadiens, and Vancouver badminton star Dave McTaggart.

Elaborate Stadium Hits Talking Stage

TORONTO (BUP)—Toronto's on-again off-again proposed sports stadium is on again with football and baseball leaders agreeing on a compromise plan to suit both sports.

The proposed plan will be submitted to the Civic Parks and Canadian National Exhibition joint committee Jan. 9 and is expected to be approved.

The committee told football and baseball interests on Nov. 28 to try and work out a dual-sports stadium plan after the two interests clashed over the requirements of the proposed stadium.

The compromise would have a stadium created out of the CNE grandstand at a cost of slightly more than $1,000,000 for football and capable of being enlarged for baseball if Toronto obtains a major league baseball franchise.

Details of the plan were worked out by a committee including football's John Bassett and baseball's Jack Kent Cooke. Both men are publishers.

Originally, the civic parks committee studied three plans. One called for a $6,000,000 stadium to seat 64,000 and take care of both baseball and foot-

Seniors' New Curling Draw Starts Jan. 3

Rinks skipped by Colin Wells, Clare Anderson and T. Menzies captured prizes in the Victoria Seniors' Curling League's Christmas 'spiel.

Wells captured major honors while the Anderson foursome took second place. Menzies' quartet captured the consolation event. Fourteen rinks participated.

The league's new draw will commence Jan. 3 and last until February, when rinks then will play off for the Mark Truman Trophy.

Following are the skips for the new draw:
1. Wm. Yardley; 2. C. Anderson; 3. T. Menzies; 4. H. Selter; 5. Dick Thomson; 6. A. Jeffrey; 7. C. Gibson; 8. J. Jones; 9. Harvey Lutz; 10. H. Challenger; 11. Colin Wells; 12. S. G. Easton; 13. Gales; 14. C. Hodgson; 15. G. S. Fraser; 16. H. D. Cruickshanks.

Fellow With Big Feet Provided Sports Oddity

TORONTO (CP)—Professional hockey and football in 1957 gave the country's experts their greatest sports thrill, surprise, disappointment, comeback and outstanding team. Even a fan got into the act at a pro football game to provide the oddity of the year.

Sports editors and sportscasters jogged their memories for The Canadian Press in its 23rd annual year-end sports poll and overwhelmingly decided that the people who play for the big money give the fans the most for their admission charges. Here's how the voting, announced today, went:

Sports Thrill: The night of Oct. 19 at Montreal when Maurice Richard of Canadiens scored the 500th goal of his flamboyant National Hockey League career. Last week the Rocket won the accolade as the outstanding male athlete of the year in the CP poll.

BOMBERS SURPRISE

Sports Surprise: Winnipeg Blue Bombers' tremendous triumph over Edmonton Eskimos in the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final series.

Sports Disappointment: Failure of the three-time Grey Cup champion Eskimos to get past the Blue Bombers and represent the West in the Grey Cup classic. The Eskimos were supposed to be a lead-pipe cinch to make Grey Cup history by winning an unprecedented four straight titles.

Sports comeback: The return of Gerry James to pro football after a one-year fling with Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL. Son of one-time great Eddie (Dynamite) James of Bomber teams in the middle 30s, Gerry won the WIFU scoring championship with 131 points and went over for 19 touchdowns, a Western conference record.

Sports oddity: Action of a fan who tripped touchdown-bound Ray (Bibbles) Bawel of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the fourth quarter of the Nov. 30 Grey Cup final between Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg. Some voters thought it odd that Bawel didn't punch the guy in the nose and that policemen standing close to the sidelines near the still-undisputed fan didn't lock him up.

Outstanding team: Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions the last two years. The result of this ballot in the 10-question CP poll, announced Friday night, showed Canadiens the No. 1 club with Tiger-Cats a bang-up second.

WIFU FINAL THRILLER

Results in some cases depended on which part of the country the voters lived.

For instance, most eastern observers thought Richard's 500th NHL goal was unsurpassed for thrills but a close second, with a heavy western vote, was Winnipeg's thrilling victory over Edmonton in the WIFU final. The vote here was 20 for Richard, 17 for the Bombers.

Others in the thrill category included: Toronto Al Balding's victories in the big-time golf circuit; Whitby Dunlop's march to the Allan Cup; Flin Flon Bombers' winning the Memorial Cup; the Eastern Canada tour of a Russian hockey team; Edmonton Eskimos' second-place finish in the baseball Global World Series at Detroit. Eric Bishop of radio station CFAC Calgary got his kicks just by "watching Edmonton Eskimos' Jackie Parker cavort."

LITTLE DOUBT

There never was much doubt about the winners of the "disappointment" and "surprise" categories.

Eskimos polled 30 votes in the disappointment class by their inability to defeat Winnipeg. Tied for second was the 32-7 Winnipeg loss to Hamilton in the Grey Cup final and the last-place finish of Saskatchewan.

CAPSULE REVIEWS

DEEDS OF DARKNESS by Blair Ashton. Little, Brown and Co., Toronto, 312 pages.

Blair Ashton recreates the romance and glamour of a fabulous age in "Deeds of Darkness," a robust story of London in 1720.

He tells a dashing story of Giles Stormount who lived a double life as one of the most elegant fops of court society and as a phantom-like highwayman operating both in darkness and broad daylight. Action and romance sing through a series of characters drawn from the dissolute court of George I and from the brawling inns and taverns of London's back streets as the suspenseful story swings swiftly to a startling climax.

erns of London's back streets as the suspenseful story swings swiftly to a startling climax.

McRAIN'S BRIER ROSE by Helen Dickson Reynolds. Ryerson Press, Toronto, 191 pages. $3.75.

Likable people in a happy atmosphere make Helen Reynolds' novel a pleasant, uncomplicated story that may be enjoyed by young members of the family as well as adults.

There is a romance, a lot of refreshing humor, sentiment and a homelike touch to the story which is obviously set in Victoria or Oak Bay, although the author doesn't say so.

It is a story of garden lovers, bird watchers, a tweedy retired army officer and his wife and McBain, a dour Scot gardener who brings most of the humor and romance into the story.

Sidney, Campbell River, Qualicum and Yellowpoint are mentioned.

IT PAYS TO BE HEALTHY by Robert Collier Page, M.C. Prentice Hall Inc., Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, 285 pages. $4.95.

In his first book for the lay reader, "It Pays to Be Healthy," Dr. Robert Collier Page, M.C., puts in printed form what is claimed to be "the sound practical health counselling your family physician would like you to have and which he would give you if he could spend the necessary hours discussing these matters with you."

The publishers have picked a capable man to write this latest in their extensive series of books guiding people through many different phases of life.

Dr. Page heads his own organization of consultants of man power in industry, is a specialist in occupational medicine and has written considerably for professional consumption.

Object of the book is to show men or women in the business world how to come to terms with a job and achieve the maximum feasible degree of success and happiness.—T.M.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Voltaire Self-Spicing Dish Served Without Embellishment

A famous writer playing a new role is always news in bookland and this season's surprise as far as this reviewer goes is Nancy Mitford. Miss Mitford, in most readers' minds, is associated with brittle, witty and clever fiction like The Blessing and Love in a Cold Climate.

With this background, when I picked up a volume by this writer called Voltaire in Love I expected something fabulous, if a bit world-weary, even though the subject is what we call "an historical personage."

It is always possible that Voltaire was too much, even for the likes of Nancy Mitford. At any rate, he, or this part of his life which she chronicles, seems to have inhibited her considerably.

Mind you, the situation has plenty of spice in itself without the help of anybody's quick pen. Voltaire had, for years, as his mistress, the Marquise de Chatelet. In eighteenth-century France this was considered perfectly normal social behaviour.

If he were recalling the past, but as if he were living in it and this, of course, is the key to success in writing historical fiction. Besides this, Mr. Cloete is an expert both in the matter of wonderful countryside of Africa with its backdrop of the exotic, the terrifying in nature and the superstition of the primitive.

He would probably never have had the chance to continue this way had not a cataclysmic disaster befallen him in which he literally lost his face. Again an exile he, and his two youngest children set out to the frontier of that day and there participate in a series of violent and profoundly moving events.

This is an adventure story and much, much more. It is a stirring tale which will move every man who reads it and will not set it down until the last page is turned.

Dust jacket design by Cecil Beaton for "Voltaire in Love" by Nancy Mitford.

Romance on African Game Reserve

A wild life sanctuary is the background for her graphic story.

The heroine is a young English school nurse who flies to South Africa to marry the senior game warden. She is suddenly freed from years of severe self discipline and plunged into a life of romance, violence and adventure in a primitive background haunted by crime and witchcraft.

It is an emotional, exciting story that never flags in interest.—T.M.

STAMP CORNER

BY REG NAIRNE

The other day a correspondent in Winnipeg wrote to report the finding of two sheets of the current 4c Queen Elizabeth stamps which showed no inscriptions of plate numbers in the margins whatever. They were found in among a stack of sheets printed from plates 11 and 12.

As Canada has always printed plate numbers on the sheet margins, the news of the discovery seemed quite exciting, for such unusual oddities are just the sort of thing that bring big prices.

But immediately after this news arrived the official announcement regarding the issue of the forthcoming "Press" stamp in January came to hand, and in a footnote it was stated that there would be no plate numbers shown on these sheets.

This rather looks, when taken in conjunction with the blank margined 4c stamps, as if the Post Office Department were going to drop plate numbers altogether.

It will be recalled that the same thing happened in Australia some years ago, the reason for the change being that too much time and bother was caused by stamp-collectors, in their efforts to add to their series of plate-blocks. So if Canada is following suit, it is probably for the same reason.

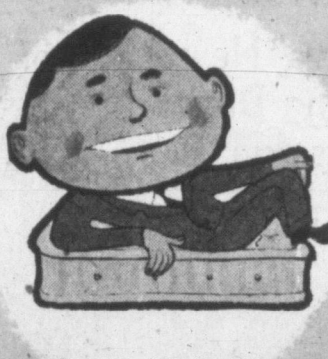

If numbered sheets are really on the way out, it is going to make a drastic change in the collecting habits on this continent, for plate-block collecting has a tremendous following both in this country and in the U.S.A. No branch of philately is more keenly followed, and one wonders what will happen when the addicts are suddenly cut off from their supply!

NO DOGS IN CHINA, by William Kinmond. Thos. Nelson and Sons.
Canadian journalist William Kinmond visited Communist China in the spring of 1957. He makes a timely and valuable report on his findings in No Dogs In China.

His main conclusions are these:
—There is little evidence that Red China's government is weakening.
—It is unfair to compare Chinese living standards with those in the West, "but by any standards the life of the Chinese in Communist China is incredibly poor."

—The Communist government has failed so far to solve its biggest problem—overpopulation.

WISE OLD SANTA BROUGHT THEM JUST WHAT THEY WANTED

Tiny tots like toys—and so do tots who aren't so tiny. Santa Claus knows this, which is one of the reasons he has been able to stay in business for so many years. Another reason is, Santa keeps up with the changing times. As witness his gift to Andy Kerr—a plywood hydroplane hull plus an outboard motor which will drive the tiny craft at an as yet-unknown speed. And for Syd Knott, who is old enough to know what he likes, Santa provided a battery-driven, drum-playing bear, whose flashing eyes outdo the brilliance of Mr. Claus' famous twinklers. In this air age, it was only natural to present Wayne Lloyd with a miniature helicopter, complete with controls which make it perform full-scale 'copter operations at the bidding of its young owner.—(Times photos)

MONTE ROBERTS

January hasn't started yet, but the clearance sales have. So...

Going at a greatly reduced price is this shaggy dog story. Only it's not a shaggy dog story, really, it's more of a shaggy lion story.

There was this gentleman, see, and he went to a movie theatre, and he paid out his good money for a seat in the movie theatre.

And when he found his way to his seat, he noticed a somewhat unusual personage in the seat next to him.

On closer inspection, this somewhat unusual personage turned out to be a large, well-built, African Lion.

In the mane, this did not bother the gentleman too much, as he had no especial aversion to lions.

But, on the other hand, he had paid his admission to the theatre for the purpose of watching a motion picture, not for the purpose of sitting next to a large, well-built, African Lion.

The gentleman thought the situation over for a few moments, and decided against raising any objection with the Lion himself.

The reason being, the gentleman was not sure whether or not the Lion would object to being objected to, and the gentleman did not wish to make the Lion any more objectionable than he then was.

So the gentleman decided the best thing to do was to take the matter to the higher authorities, and the highest authority he could find was the manager of the theatre.

He found the manager in the manager's office, and he said to the manager: "I do not wish to appear narrow-minded about this, but I have paid my admission to this theatre, and this admission, I feel, entitles me to enjoyment of the entertainment therein presented."

The theatre manager, who had seen the film before, raised his eyebrows at the word "entertainment," but beyond that, gave a courteous reply to the gentleman who was, after all, a paying customer.

"Just what, sir, is your complaint?" asked the manager. "Not enough pop in the popcorn? Did you get no prize in your crackerjack? Is one of our usherettes trying to molest you?"

"No, no," said the gentleman. "It is just this Lion who is sitting next to me. This large, well-built, African Lion."

"Hmmm," said the theatre manager who, being a theatre manager, had heard everything and was surprised at nothing. "Take me to this Lion, and we shall see what we shall see."

The theatre manager, of course, was under the impression the gentleman was under a misapprehension. But, sure enough, when the manager was led down the aisle, there sat the large, well-built, African Lion.

"Heavens to Frank Buck," cried the theatre manager, temporarily losing his accustomed aplomb. "What is a Lion doing in my theatre?"

And the Lion turned his head and growled: "So I read the book, so I wanted to see the picture."

All offers considered, reasonable or otherwise.

Hunt Called Off For Missing Island Man

Resume Search If New Evidence

Police have called off the search for a 74-year-old man who disappeared from his home near Alberni Tuesday.

Relatives said Fred Bristow went outside his Sprout Lake home to gather grass for his pet guinea pigs and did not return. Police said a wide area around the home has been searched without any clue being uncovered.

An officer said the search will be resumed if any definite information is turned up but there is little chance the elderly man could survive long outdoors in the light clothing he was wearing.

Scouts, neighbors and the Alberni mountain rescue squad joined RCMP officers in the four-day hunt.

Crime Shows Slowdown For Christmas

Even crime has slowed down for Christmas in Victoria, according to local police blotters.

Last theft reported was an overnight break in Monday when 18 turkeys and three hams valued at $214 were taken from a Douglas Street business.

A number of auto accidents have dotted the area since the beginning of the week, but injuries have not been too serious.

WARNING GIVEN

Police are grateful the holiday season has gone so well, so far but still caution against drinking and driving.

Police departments offer help to celebrating motorists who feel they should not drive home. All that's required is a phone call and police will see that the driver gets taken home or sent in a cab.

Otherwise police promise stringent application of the law with regard to impaired driving.

UMBRELLAS 'AT READY' ADVISES WEATHERMAN

The weekend will be dull, weatherwise. Forecaster Bill Mackie said there'll be mixed clouds, rain, with sunshine breaking through sporadically.

"If you're waiting for a bus, take your umbrella," he advised.

The weather situation is expected to change, fast.

Winds will be from the west, between 25 and 30 m.p.h. and temperatures will be a shade cooler than previously—around 30 degrees to the mid-40s.

City MP Denies Asking 'Purge'

Only Attacked Those Civil Servants Playing Politics Says McPhillips

Victoria's member of parliament today denied that he had called for a "purge" of top-ranking federal civil servants earlier this month.

A. De B. McPhillips, freshman Conservative MP for the city, said he had been misquoted in an interview and the statements had "been blown all out of proportion."

Mr. McPhillips returned to the city this week for the holiday season. He leaves Thursday for the resumption of the Commons session.

In an interview Dec. 16, Mr. McPhillips had been quoted as saying many senior civil servants—particularly deputy ministers—"are out and out Liberal partisans."

"That was preposterous," he said today. "The papers were making out that I had called for the axe for all of them. All I actually said, and I'll say it again, was that if any senior civil servant sees fit to play politics he can expect disciplinary action."

"I said the same thing at an Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association meeting in September."

Mr. McPhillips said he would not name names or cite examples of political involvement in the civil service.

"I didn't raise this. It was my answer to people who had asked me what was going to happen to so and so who had been playing on the Liberal side. And I think everyone would agree with my answer."

"However, there is one factor to be remembered. Many of these civil servants, after 22 years, have known nothing but Liberal administration and it would be difficult for some of them to appreciate that there has been a change."

Mr. McPhillips said he did not regard Public Works Minister Howard Green's statement in the House, two days after his own statement, as a rebuke.

Mr. Green, as government house leader, lauded the federal civil service—particularly senior officials and deputy ministers—as the best in the world and added "it would have been impossible for a new government to take over the leadership of the country had it not been for the loyalty and co-operation given us by the senior civil servants."

Mr. McPhillips said Mr. Green had not referred to him by name during the statement.

"I didn't take it as a rebuke because it wasn't one. In fact, Mr. Green expressed exactly the

Boy Breaks Leg As Car Wrapped Around Tree

$900 Damage On Beach Drive

Michael Green, 15, of 2481 Central, received a broken leg when a car driven by Patrick Nevin Mulcahy, 16, of 2491 Central, crashed into a maple tree on Beach Drive at 10.28 p.m. Friday.

Green was taken to Jubilee Hospital.

Damage was about $900, police said after viewing the car wrapped around the tree trunk. Accident occurred on a slight curve in the 1500 block where the car left the road and struck the tree dead centre.

Tug Floats Free After Grounding Off Oak Bay

The tug Nitinat Chief went aground in Oak Bay at 5 p.m. Friday and worked her way off two hours later, with no damage other than a scuffed keel and scraped paint.

The towboat had picked up a drifting dinghy and was standing off Oak Bay boathouse with the small craft in tow when it went aground.

The owners, Island Tug and Barge, sent a harborcraft to stand by until the tug backed off as the tide rose.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—We had a beautiful rainbow here Friday. What causes them?—F.S.

A.—The bow or arch that exhibits prismatic colors is formed in the sky opposite the sun by the reflection, double refraction and dispersion of the sun's rays in falling drops of water. You can get a similar effect with a lawn sprinkler.

Q.—What's a "cotillion?"

A.—It's an elaborate ballroom dance, or a piece of music arranged for such a dance. It was generally danced towards the end of the evening's entertainment, and was popular in the 18th century.

LOOKING BACK ON 1957

Three Men Dominated B.C. Scene

By PETER MURRAY

Three names dominated the British Columbia news scene in 1957—Wenner-Gren, Sloan and Sommers.

The first belongs to a 76-year-old, silver-haired Swedish financier who hopes to tame a huge chunk of the province's northland and turn it into an industrial empire.

Axel Wenner-Gren's ambitious scheme to run one of his pet "monorail" railroads up to the Yukon border to tap a wealth of hydro, timber and mineral resources was unveiled last February to the legislature. Opposition critics immediately accused the Social Credit government of giving away the province's resources.

Sidspicions also were aroused because of Wenner-Gren's wartime association with the Nazis and his failure to go through with a similar grandiose plan in Rhodesia.

But the government has stuck to its guns, insisting the deal is a good one for the people of B.C.

So far the Wenner-Gren plans are still on the drawing board. In his agreements with the government, Wenner-Gren has fixed 1960 as the starting date for the development.

Surveys are now in progress and only time will tell if the scheme materializes.

One way or the other, British Columbians will be hearing the name Wenner-Gren a lot more in the years to come.

Sloan B.C.'s 'Man of Year'

Gordon McGregor Sloan, 59, is the obvious choice for British Columbia's "Man of the Year."

In September he brought down his monumental second report on the B.C. forest industry, then decided at the year-end to resign as chief justice of the province to become forest adviser to the government.

Starting Jan. 1, he will be the province's top-paid public official with an annual salary of $50,000, compared with the previous high of $20,000 paid to Premier Bennett.

After studying Chief Justice Sloan's 900-page Royal Commission report; the government evidently decided no man was better qualified to help carry out its many recommendations than the author himself.

Sommers Case Started in '55

It was in December, 1955, that a Vancouver lawyer first made public allegations that Mr. Somers of forest management licenses had accepted bribes in connection with the issuing of forest management licenses.

Mr. Sommers immediately sued David Sturdy for libel and slander and the civil suit dragged on until two months ago, when it was dismissed in Supreme Court because the former minister did not appear to press the action.

At that time, Sommers was incommunicado at a secret location in the U.S. where he stayed for three months to get away from "annoying" newspapermen.

Just three days after the slander suit was dismissed, the government, under pressure from all sides, announced the setting up of a royal commission to inquire into the charges against Mr. Sommers.

To conduct the inquiry, the government called again on Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, the man turned to so frequently in times of provincial crisis.

Then, when it appeared that legal objections on the constitutionality of the commission might delay proceedings, the matter was finally placed before the courts.

At 8 on the morning of Nov. 21, two RCMP officers knocked on the door of Sommers' home at 2 Obed Avenue and told him he was under arrest.

He was taken to a police station where he appeared in police court along with other individuals and firms alleged to be involved in a bribery conspiracy. The case is now on remand.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Members of the Young Conservatives group at the University of British Columbia are holding a reception at the home of Dr. E. D. Emery, 2064 Fernside, on Sunday from 8.30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

A. de B. McPhillips, the federal member for Victoria, and Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, V.C., have been invited.

Municipal clerk J. W. Allen will swear in A. C. Wurtele as reeve of Esquimalt immediately before the first council meeting of 1958 on Jan. 6.

The reeve then will swear in three councillors elected earlier this month—Walter Holder, G. K. Sammon and Arthur Fields.

Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, V.C., was to arrive in Victoria today for a brief visit over the New Year holiday. The minister, who represents Esquimalt-Saanich, will return to Ottawa when the Commons re-convenes after the holiday.

Workmen are expected to arrive from England Jan. 6 to begin a three-month job of improving the pipe organ at Christ Church Cathedral.

Reconstruction and expansion of the organ will cost $40,000 and will make it "one of the finest in Western Canada," organist Graham Steed said. The tradesmen are from the London firm of Hill & Son, Norman and Beard.

Crocuses have started to appear in Victoria.

Mrs. M. J. Olsen, 260 Simcoe, reported discovering a yellow one in her front garden today.

Albert Leonard Potentier, 1243 St. Patrick, was found guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday of assault causing bodily harm. He was accused of assaulting his wife, Doreen.

A $500 bond was posted for good behavior covering the next six months.

The Gyro Club of Victoria will meet Monday noon in the Empress Hotel. A film on the Canadian open golf championship match will be shown.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days)
C (To put in time)

(BB) "KISS THEM FOR ME" (Odeon) — If only they had toned down the humor that wasn't very humorous and barred Jayne Mansfield from the studio when the cameras got around to grinding, 20th Century-Fox's adaptation of Frederic Wakeman's novel might have turned out better than it did.

The plot's theme is one Second World War servicemen will remember well—the inate suspicion that while they were away on the battlefields civilians were using the war effort to sell everything to everybody. It is exploited by Cary Grant and three of his U.S. Navy Air Arm buddies as they go on a four-day short leave in an effort to shake their battle fatigue. Their target: liquor and lassies. But no sooner do they get in the groove than civilian brass has plans for them, to speak to the factory worker in an effort to whip up production and stamp out absenteeism. All of which is too much for Grant who bops the high brass in the mouth and runs off with his fiancée Suzy Parker.

Possibly it is because the book was written 13 years ago that so much of the action appears dated and stale. Only now and then does "Kiss Them for Me" remind one of the long queues for hotel rooms, the jam-packed bars and restaurants, the bright-eyed hustle of the populace, and the overall partying air that made unreality so real.

There are good lines, but mainly they fall to Grant who is altogether excellent.

One such is when Suzy asks him why his ex-wife wants to meet him again, and he replies, "Maybe just to consummate the divorce."

Miss Parker, a former model, appears to better advantage when she has little or nothing to say. Miss Mansfield was simply miscast. What was excellent for "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" is merely burlesque for a film with the intentions of "Kiss Them for Me."

Photography and sets were excellent but did little to save the film from its own mediocrity.

Dirty fighter: Matt Dillon, marshal played by Jim Arness in CBS-TV's "Gunsmoke," isn't 100 per cent like the idealized Western hero. If it's necessary, he'll use some rough tactics himself on "the bad guys" such as shooting from ambush. "It's nonsense always to give the other guy a chance," said writer Norma Macdonnell.

Rose Colored Spyglass Makes '58 Look Hopeful

By AUDREY S.D. JOHNSON

As another Happy New Year approaches, most of us are at least sub-consciously busy proving the poet's adage that "hope springs eternal."

We all know, of course, in our heart of hearts that the new year will be the same old mixture of sunny days, dark days and plain ordinary old grey days. But that's not really the point.

What matters is that this year we'll win an Irish sweep prize, meet the dream man or girl, balance our budget, land the big fish (job, human or sporting-wise), or get our Christmas shopping done before Dec. 24.

But sometimes it's fun to broaden one's horizon and train the spyglass on some "possibilities" that are not purely personal.

For example, here are some of the things I would like to spot through my 1958 spyglass: Beacon Players live theatre booming along on Yates Street in the heart of movie row—especially if people are patronizing both types of entertainment and learning to appreciate the completely different character of each.

A substantial Canada Council grant to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

A jazz cellar adding its stimulating heartbeat to the lively arts in Victoria.

Butchart Gardens summer symphony concerts becoming the nucleus for a midsummer arts festival of our own.

Firm plans to provide Victoria with a first class auditorium really getting underway.

(Oh—Oh—on that last I'm afraid my spyglass must really have a rose-colored lens.)

And now to look backward for a moment. For Canada this has been an important year in the arts world; theatre history was made when the Stratford Festival's uniquely wonderful permanent theatre was opened—the only one of its kind in the world. (Incidentally, a net profit of $53,381 was made by the festival during the 1957 season.)

Canada Council awards started to flow with most symphony organizations across the country benefitting as a result.

Nearer home, felicitously, a running start has been made on a West Coast arts festival in Vancouver (lamentably), and what is most important of all to us in Victoria, the new fireproof wing for the Art Gallery is becoming a concrete fact—literally.

In the meantime Victorians all had better take a long sleep and a bottle of energy pills during the first two weeks of 1958. It's going to be a year of 365 crowded days and nights with centenary celebrations filling the year with sound and fury.

Auspicious things begin to happen in mid-January when Boyd Neel, one of the world's orchestral experts and leading conductors steps on the Victoria Symphony podium to conduct a pair of concerts.

The symphony organization brings us another highlight with the guest appearance in March of richly endowed Lois Marshall, whose voice is already echoing in soprano halls of fame.

Anna Russell comes to us too in March, with her impish lampoons on music's most revered institutions.

And very soon after we have our New Year's Eve smog, the fabled Yehudi Menuhin will be making a long-hoped-for appearance at the Royal.

Well, there's the meat in the sandwich of events we'll all be chewing on between now and fish-n-garden time—though no doubt some surprise ingredient will add extra relish to the diet before we're through.

And that's my last word for 1957. (Plenty of my friends will find something wrong with that statement.)

By golly, they're right already. I have four more words—Happy New Year Everybody!

Debated Novel To Be Screened

Gary Cooper has been signed to star in 20th Century-Fox's picturization of John O'Hara's recent best-selling novel, "Ten North Frederick."

The actor will portray a wealthy Philadelphia lawyer who is frustrated by political ambitions.

Charles Brackett will produce the CinemaScope attraction which will go before the cameras early next year. Philip Dunne will direct from his own screenplay.

First New Year

Bright eyes shine out from this page today as a trio of baby boys and a charming young miss look ahead to their first New Year's Day. In many homes in the city the New Year will see mothers and fathers bending proudly over little ones who have less than 12 months to look back upon. In the baby faces grown-ups will recognize the gladness of hope and the promise of a bright and happy future. These little ones have a special New Year to greet since it will mark the 100th birthday of British Columbia, the province in which they were born.

SHOPPING GUIDE

See in This New Year's In a Fashionable Outfit

By PENNY SAVER

Happy New Year! Oops! I'm a little early for wishing you a pleasant '58, but I can't help my enthusiasm when there are so many wonderful clothes for the ladies to wear this New Year's Eve. This is the time of year when we can don our gayest, brightest party duds and what you might say "get away with it!" The shops are filled with exciting wearables that will place you at the top of the 1958 fashion class! If you didn't receive something really pretty from under the Christmas tree, let's go shopping and see what we can find!

Look! Over there on the skirt rack! Do you see what I see? It's a white lace skirt with enough yardage to whirl you around and around when you're dancing. Come on, try it on! It's made of soft white lace and we see there's a red rose applique on the front. What did you say? It's lined with taffeta? Well, you could wear it all year 'round for dances, weddings and cocktail parties. It only costs $14.95.

What did the sales girl say? It has a blouse to match? It's styled with a Peter Pan collar and three-quarter length sleeves. Pearl buttons add to the fashionable blouse. A feminine piece for your wardrobe at $6.98.

Not everyone could wear a sheath-style skirt or dress. I'm thinking of those who can at present 'cause I've found a skirt that would look like a million dollars! The sheath is made of bengaline and has two slash pockets at the side. It comes in black to make you slim and trim at the tiny price of $4.98.

Sparkle like champagne on the big evening with a silver metallic blouse featuring a cowl neckline and three-quarter length sleeves.

This lovely twinkle of a blouse is selling for $5.98 and comes in a variety of pastel shades.

You'll be appropriately called "twinkle toes" if you are seen in a pair of these gold or silver cinderella shoes... especially right for the evening! In the collection of pretty pumps, I found backless, toeless, high needlepoint heels and lower Cuban-type heels.

If you've got pretty feet, then

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

We are hearing and reading more all the time about the value of exercise in prolonging the youthful portion of life and in avoiding some of the physical disasters of later life.

For many years in my figure molding classes I observed the almost magical effect of exercise, not only on the figures of my pupils but on their health. Of their own accord, and with amazement, they told me of the many ways in which their sense of well being had improved.

Many of them reported that sore, stiff joints had become comfortable. Others overcame constipation. All of them had much more energy than before and tired much less easily. There is no doubt about it! Those who exercise regularly have a positive health which others lack although the latter may not actually be ill.

It even has been suspected that hardening of the arteries from deposits of cholesterol may be avoided or delayed, or at least is less likely to occur in an extreme way when one exercises as a habit.

Good tone is essential for the best functioning of our bodies. As folks grow older, there is a natural decline in the strength of muscles and in tone generally. Physical training helps counteract this.

There are some forms of exercise which we can take down the years with us. The best are walking, swimming, golfing, bowling and cycling. Regular calisthenics taken at home also are most beneficial. When you walk, do so with a real stride and in a brisk manner. At home mat exercises and stretching motions are the best.

If you would like to have my "Essential Daily Routine for Beauty and Health" a short routine of exercise planned especially for women, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 19. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Winter Holiday Demands Careful Clothes Planning

By NONA DAMASKE

"June in January"... "Cruising down the River"... songs with words that conjure up vistas of sun and sand... sounds inviting doesn't it?

From all the chit-chat about trips to Hawaii, Palm Springs, Las Vegas and Mexico it appears there will be a real exodus of Victorians during January and February.

How about a holiday wardrobe for the lucky lady who is about to sit in the sun and get all brown and healthy looking while the rest of us remain white and anaemic?

The clothes you purchase now for your vacation in a warm climate will be the nucleus of your summer wardrobe so don't feel you are being too extravagant by buying a few new things for your trip.

If you plan carefully you can travel with very little luggage. The age of miracle fabrics has real meaning for the gal who wishes to travel light. The choice of fashions in man-made fabrics that pack in a thimble space, shed wrinkles, wash quickly and easily and require little ironing is wider than ever.

The price range on these adorable pumps start at $8.98.

So you are going out to do the town on New Year's Eve? Why not sparkle like a star for the occasion?

Give my phone a little ring at 2-3131 and we'll go shopping!

Nona

they do not hold to much appeal at this time of year for we stay at homes they are just right for lucky vacationers.

Those who really like to swim seem to think of bathing suits first... it is such a thrill to indulge a favorite sport in the middle of January.

One swim suit really isn't enough if you are planning on going in the water... take two... they are small... then you will always have a dry suit.

One of the most useful pieces of apparel for the holiday-bound gal is a smart bulky knit sweater. Try and co-ordinate the color with your swim suit, play clothes and late day frock... it will take you through any hour of the day. If the colors don't seem to work out... choose white... for white looks terrific when you acquire a gorgeous tan.

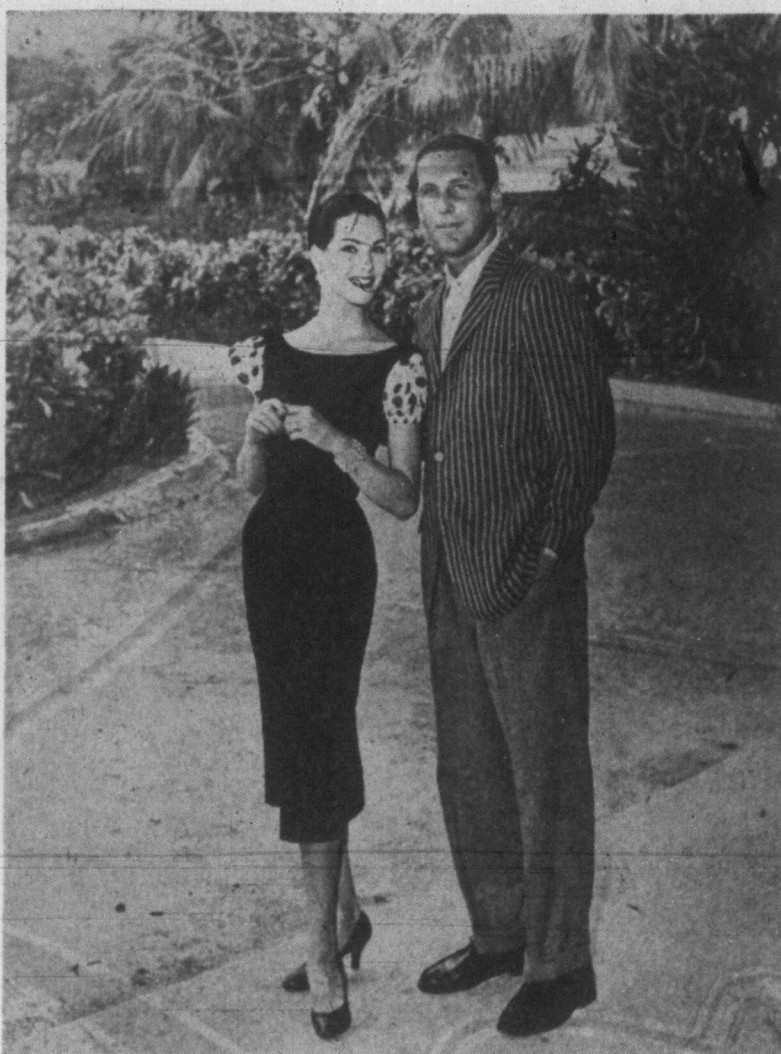

Slacks, peddle pushers and shorts are a matter of choice... if you do not like yourself in them, don't wear them. A light skirt and loose cotton jersey top will be just as comfortable and can really be cooler.

Don't take too many outfits. After all, most of the resort hotels have a one-day cleaning and laundry service.

Be careful of those shoes as they really add weight to your luggage. Remember most everyone needs comfortable shoes for hot days. Low open sandals seem to be the most popular.

Clothes are important... most women will agree to that... but more important to winter vacationers is to have loads of fun.

Happy New Year to everyone!

"Happy Holiday"... a perfectly beautiful way to look anywhere... anytime; huge polka dotted sleeves accent Natty's slim black sheath of Acrilan pique. The luxurious, soft-to-touch sports jacket and lightweight flannel slacks are both of wool and Acrilan blend fabric that are made to travel.

Bright Year Ahead for Little Girl

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Little Judy has come home and for the first time in her life, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crockett of Lethbridge can stand.

Last February the youngster flew to Toronto with her mother for surgery on her legs useless since birth. Previous attempts to help her had failed. Now, three operations later, little Judy is able to stand with the aid of braces and her doctors say she soon will be able to move about with crutches and braces.

Two Lethbridge service clubs helped foot the bills for extensive surgery and physiotherapy treatments.

Judy was born with a rare disability which left her body useless from the waist down and until three years ago when she was given a wheelchair she was able to move only by pulling herself with her hands.

Mrs. Crockett, who spent the eight months in Toronto with her daughter, is hopeful that with practice Judy will be able to get around with crutches and later with braces only.

At Toronto the youngster underwent three operations. Her braces were made by veterans at Sunnybrook Hospital and as she grows, the shoes and braces will have to be replaced.

Before she went east, Mrs. Crockett said, Judy was taking grade one lessons here and while in hospital she was able to complete the grade.

The youngster will return to school here, probably after the first of the year, Mrs. Crockett said.

Synthetic Material Looks Like Fur Fools Even Most Practised Eyes

MONTREAL (CP)—In a small Park Avenue workshop a fair-haired business woman is producing from synthetic materials a coat that only the practised eye can distinguish from Persian lamb.

Mrs. Jeanne Sirbain came to Montreal eight years ago from Paris where she had long experience in the fashion business. She set up a small shop in north-end Montreal and began making lamb-like material using rayon fibres.

When a new synthetic came to her attention, testing demonstrated its ability to withstand wear and hold a curl. It became the main component of a material with durability and warmth.

The process Mme. Sirbain has evolved is patented in both Canada and the United States. All coats of her cloth are made in her own workshop, and all sold there, with the exception of a few shipments to stores.

Last year the factory turned out between 3,000 and 4,000 coats. Most of them were custom-made to the measurements of the purchasers.

The coats differ from lamb in appearance only because they look "a little too perfect," in the words of one customer. Their swirled surfaces are glossy and soft and their styles advanced. The coats are trimmed with fur or velvet.

In a workshop behind the store primary and final phases of the manufacture are carried out—the combining of pre-dyed rayon and other fibres, their curling by heat into long tightly-wound strands.

IN FOUR COLORS

In another workshop the strands are fixed in swirls, on to a carding board, then stuck on to a leather-like cloth.

After a succession of rollings to ensure firmness, the long strips of imitation fur are ready for cutting—black, silver, grey and brown.

Mme. Sirbain does all the cutting herself. Rapid-fingered seamstresses sew the pieces together with conventional fur-sewing machines.

About 40 workers are employed in the two shops. The busy proprietor has plans for expanding to about 80 next season.

Hosiery an Accessory When Tints Seen

This is the season when stockings which can be "seen" become important fashion accessories.

No longer need nylons be pale and insignificant when the rest of the ensemble glows with color. They can match it, blend with it or contrast sharply depending on whether you wish to achieve the monochromatic look, the co-ordinated look or the dramatic look.

Whatever your taste, avoid making your selection directly from the box. Since every shade becomes about 50 per cent paler on the leg, test it first by slipping your hand through the stocking.

With 11 manufacturers now producing tinted hosiery in Canada, the color range is not only broad but also includes a choice in depth of tone. For instance, there are shades to match a midnight blue gown quite closely or tone-in gently. Or, a harmonious whole can be achieved with colors which blend rather than match such as co-ordinating yellow or topaz tinted hosiery with a cognac-colored gown. On the other hand, those who agree with the French couturier Mainbocher that "over-cautious good taste can be such a bore," may prefer to express their own lively color sense through striking contrasts. One of the most dramatic combinations seen this season is flame red stockings and shoes with an otherwise all-black ensemble. Another is jewel green with a blue of the same intensity.

In New York black and deep gray have become almost standard order of accessorizing black, gray and black-flecked daytime costumes. Off black, navy and dark brown are popular too, while wine and olive green shades have also been observed as the season advances. Some who don't regard their legs as their best feature, wear dark stockings with deep green or red outfits.

"We know we will be thanked the next day," say the officers' wives.

On Etiquette

When my unmarried sister came to live with us, it was understood that she would be just as much a part of our family life as any of us.

When we have callers, she adds as much to the pleasures, but only if she likes them. There are several of our friends whom she does not like. She then either disapproves or does not come down at all. Do you think that she should do this, and could I tell her how I feel? Her behavior is embarrassing to me and noticeable to the visitors.

Louise Davis answers: As long as your sister is living with you as one of the family, she should make an effort to be pleasant when company comes. If she makes her disappearing act at an awkward time, she is rude. Should she be indisposed and feel that she must make an exit, she should be diplomatic in the way she asks to be excused. When callers happen to be special friends of yours and your husband's, your sister might excuse herself. Each person in a family can't necessarily be in accord on likes and dislikes of other people, but when someone makes a call, gracious hospitality gets top priority. If your sister is a dissenting factor towards congeniality, it would be better if she stays away. If she seems rude in slighting people, she should discipline herself to be more polite and you should speak to her about it.

ON LEAVE HERE

F.O. H. D. Moore, with his wife and baby son, Stuart James, is home on three weeks leave from the air force base at North Bay, Ont. The family is staying with Mrs. Moore's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Magrath at their Dufferin Street home. Today at 1:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiated at the baptism of the baby. Only the immediate family were present. A christening tea followed at the Magrath home. Paternal grandmother is Mrs. H. B. Moore, 994 Snowdrop Ave.

B.C. PREMIER'S GRANDDAUGHTER

Miss Jane Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. St. Clair Harvey of Bristol, Eng., and a granddaughter of the late Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie, former premier of British Columbia, came from England this month to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Andrews, West Vancouver. Miss Harvey is being welcomed by many friends of her own and of her family. Her mother is the former Miss Carol Tolmie and Mrs. Andrews, the former Miss Jean Tolmie.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Hon. Ellen Fairclough Named Canada's Woman of Year; Four Others Chosen

The first woman ever to be named to the Canadian cabinet has been chosen Canada's woman of the year.

She is Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, chosen as secretary of state by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker following the Progressive Conservative federal election victory June 10. Mrs. Fairclough was also voted woman of the year in public affairs in a Canadian Press poll of Canadian daily newspaper women's editors.

A slender, silver-haired woman in her early 50s, the member for Hamilton West is no tyro in public life. She was elected to the House of Commons in 1951 and previously had served five years on the Hamilton city council, four as alderman and one as controller. A public accountant, she is married and the mother of a 25-year-old son.

OTHER LEADING WOMEN

Winners in other poll categories were:

Literature and art—Gabrielle Roy of Montreal.

Music—Maureen Forrester, Montreal contralto.

Stage, screen and radio—Regina-born Frances Hyland.

Sport—Marlene Stewart Streit, Toronto, golfer.

For the third year in a row Gabrielle Roy, a Montreal author, has topped the literature and art division. Her latest book, Streets of Riches has been hailed as a highly sensitive book. It relates the experiences in 18 separate stories of Petite Misere (Little Miss Misery).

Pretty auburn-haired Maureen Forrester of Montreal tightened her hold on the top spot in the field of music when she made her New York debut last February with Bruno Walter conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Miss Forrester surprised the musical world when she announced last October she had been married since 1954 to Canadian-born Eugene Kash, now a London conductor.

Miss Forrester's professional career reached a high point in 1955 when she became the first Canadian singer to tour Europe in 25 years.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Seedhouse, 1162 Oscar Street, will celebrate their golden wedding on New Year's Day at the home of their daughter, Mrs. P. W. Mackereith, 3461 Bethune Avenue. They will be "at home" there from 3 until 5 p.m., and again from 7 until 9 p.m. They were married in Toronto in St. Matthew's Church on Jan. 1, 1908, with Rev. Canon Farncomb officiating. They came to Victoria in 1911 and lived for 46 years in their home at the corner of Douglas and Audley Streets. There are four children, Edward Seedhouse, Victoria; Sidney Horace Seedhouse of Ontario; Mrs. Mackereith (Ethel), and Mrs. A. E. Vaughan (Edith), both of Victoria. The couple have nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Graham is the former Miss Jane Kerr.

Mackenzie-Davidson Vows Said In Morning Ceremony in Cathedral

St. Andrew's Cathedral was the scene of a lovely wedding this morning when Miss Mary Simonne Mackenzie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mackenzie of Purcell Place, became the bride of Acting Sub-Lieut. William Rankin Davidson, RCN, who is now stationed in Kingsville, Texas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Davidson of Ottawa.

The church was decorated with late December greenery and flowers for the ceremony. Rev. Father R. Cunningham officiated.

A gown of white French satin brocade was worn by the fair-haired bride as she entered the church on the arm of her father. The full-length gown featured a high Empire waistline and the wide skirt extended into a long train at the back. A strand of pearls at the simple round neckline, a gift of the groom, was the only jewelry worn.

There were tiny covered buttons at the back of the dress, and the long sleeves were lily-point. A headdress of orange blossoms held her illusion net veil, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and freesias.

Electric blue taffeta dresses in a ballerina length style were worn by bridal attendants, Miss Christine Mackenzie, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Sheila Olson and Miss Carol MacMillan. The dresses featured draped necklines with three-quarter length sleeves.

They wore matching taffeta headpieces of flat bows and all carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

Best man for the ceremony was Acting Sub-Lieut. Norman Justin Etheridge, RCN, and usher was Acting Sub-Lieut. John A. Rowland, RCN. Duke of Kent Room in the Empress Hotel was setting for a reception where the bride and groom cut a three-tier cake. Bowls of white chrysanthemums and holly, flanked by candles, decorated the room.

Hector Mackenzie, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast.

A powder blue sheath dress was worn by the new Mrs. Davidson for her honeymoon trip to California. The dress was topped with a gold toned camel hair coat and matching hat. Her accessories were of black patent leather and her corsage of yellow roses.

The young couple will live at Texas Terrace, Kingsville, Texas.

For House Guest

Miss Gladys Johns has been in Victoria from Los Angeles over the holiday season, the guest of her cousin, Dr. T. H. Johns and Mrs. Johns, at their home on Somass Drive. Yesterday evening, Dr. and Mrs. Johns entertained at a late-evening party in her honor.

Couple Repeat Vows In Shady Creek Church

Shady Creek United Church at Saanichton was decorated with holly and deep red poinsettias, Thursday, for the wedding of Edna May Galt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Galt, of Royal Oak, and George Thomas Routley, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Routley, of Port Coquitlam.

Rev. J. G. G. Bompas officiated at the service and Mrs. C. Pederson played traditional bridal selections.

Wearing a white gown of lace with full skirt flaring to waltz length, the bride entered the church on her father's arm. Fitted bodice had a bow of silk and panels of the silk at back to the hem of her skirt. A bandeau held her fingertip veil of illusion with lace appliques and she carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations and holly.

Miss Joanne Galt, maid of honor, and Miss Pat Pitt-Brooke, bridesmaid, wore sheath gowns of red velvet with back panels lined with grey satin. They wore pearl pins and earrings, white feather hair bandeaus, and carried white fur muffs with holly sprigs.

Brother of the groom, Donald Routley, was best man and ushers were Len Osborne and Des Smith.

During signing of the register, Arlene Tifford sang "Because." For receiving guests at Echo Inn, Brentwood, mother of the bride wore a blue velvet dress with pink and blue velour hat and white carnations, an corsage. Mother of the groom wore shadow turquoise brocade with turquoise accessories and velvet hat with white carnation corsage.

A Christmas tree, holly and poinsettias decorated the reception rooms. Toast to the bride was proposed by Stanley Scurah.

For a honeymoon motoring in the United States, Mrs. Routley wore a brown and yellow knitted suit with brown trim and yellow velour hat and dark brown wool stole. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Routley will live in North Vancouver.

Canada To Be Kept Busy Preparing for Royalty

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, in the next two years at least, can prepare its red carpets for more royal visits.

There is every indication that Queen Elizabeth and members of the royal family intend to mingle more with subjects on this side of the Atlantic.

The autumn visit to North America by the Queen and Prince Philip lasted little more than nine days, four of which were spent in Ottawa and the remainder in the United States.

But the Queen, making her first live telecast during her Oct. 12-16 stay at Government House here, strongly suggested that she and Philip will be back to stay longer.

Plan Wider Visit

The royal couple first visited and toured Canada in 1951, as Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. Prince Philip returned in 1954 to open the British Empire Games at Vancouver and visit Canada's northland.

In her broadcast, the Queen said she hopes to be present in 1959 when the St. Lawrence Seaway is opened, and to travel more widely in Canada at that time.

Coupled with her hope to "pay more visits in the future," was her wish to bring her children to Canada some day, too.

Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, is to attend centennial celebrations in British Columbia next July. She will arrive by air at Vancouver July 12 and spend two weeks in B.C., afterwards travelling east, with brief stops, to visit other parts of Canada, including Ottawa, and perhaps Toronto, Montreal and other large cities.

Early in the new year the Queen Mother is to stop briefly at Montreal and Vancouver on her way to Australia and New Zealand.

Second in History

The Queen's October visit marked the second time a British sovereign has come to Canada. Her father, King George VI, and the Queen Mother toured Canada in 1939.

In Ottawa, the Queen's major function was to open the first session of the 23rd Parliament; the first time in Canadian history that a sovereign has presided at the ceremony.

Throughout the royal visit, the predominant theme was that Elizabeth II reigned in Canada and visited the U.S. as Queen of Canada. In Washington, she was attended by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The beautiful Queen and her handsome husband provided one of the year's biggest news stories. Covered at every public appearance by batteries of reporters and cameramen—in Ottawa the press, radio and television corps was more than 1,000 strong—the royal couple attended press receptions in both Ottawa and Washington, apart from ceremonial visits.

More Informal

The deviation from the more rigid relations with the press at home sparked a British press clamor for some of the same treatment.

In Ottawa, the major chips of Victorian ideas surrounding royalty fell in the field of fashions. Official announcements stated that contrary to outdated ideas, women could wear black costumes in the presence of royalty.

But the royal couple shook thousands of hands and went through a gruelling round of official functions during their brief visit.

Whether future visits will include more time for informality and relaxation remains to be seen. But Canadians now sing Will Ye No Come Back Again? with assurance of an affirmative answer.

FOR WIDOWS AND CHILDREN

New Estate Bill to Feature Less Tax, More Exemptions

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's new estate tax legislation will feature lower taxes generally and sharply higher exemptions for widows and children.

Subject of a three-year study, the legislation will be brought before Parliament early in the new year. Its main aim will be to simplify the existing Succession Duty Act and at the same time to meet some of the criticism that the present laws are too stiff and the death taxes too high.

Finance Minister Fleming touched some of the highlights of the new scheme when he announced his tax cuts Dec. 6. Later, in interviews with various officials, these points became clear:

1. Taxes paid on estate will be generally lower, mainly because of more generous exemptions.

2. As under existing laws, there will be no tax payable on estates valued at $50,000 or less. In no case must the tax be so large that it will reduce the estate below $50,000.

3. Exemptions for widows, previously $20,000, will be raised to $60,000. For children under 21 years, the exemption will be increased to $10,000 from $5,000.

4. There may be some changes in the basic tax rates but this is not certain. The present rates range from five per cent on an estate in the neighborhood of $50,000 to 54 per cent on an estate of $5,000,000 or more.

RICH RYDER

LONDON (REAP)—The British Professional Golfers' Association announced that last October's Ryder Cup matches showed a profit of $30,000, the biggest ever.

SIMPLEY LAW

Complexities which exist in the present legislation will be reduced. In administering the present act, officials have to consider not only the value of the estate but also the amounts going to various beneficiaries. In the new act, only the value of the estate will be considered, except in the case of widows and children who get special consideration.

On Dec. 6, Mr. Fleming said in the Commons: "The measure will apply the estate tax principle rather than the inheritance or succession principle. In keeping with the policy of the government, it will be another tax reduction measure. It will also greatly simplify the taxation of estates."

Succession duties usually provide the government with about $60,000,000 to $80,000,000 in annual revenue. Though this is small, compared with the total annual revenue from all sources of some $5,000,000,000, officials find that the value of estates tends to increase in Canada with the growth in the value of stocks and bonds, real estate and other investments.

The new legislation is expected to reduce federal revenue from this source by some $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 annually, roughly about 10 per cent.

Police Suspect Arson In Star's Boat Fire

MAIDENHEAD, England (AP)—Fire Friday destroyed the interior of a luxury houseboat belonging to film star Diana Dors' estranged husband, Dennis Hamilton. Police say they suspect arson.

Authorities quizzed Miss Dors and a group who attended a party at her house overlooking the Thames River near where the fire broke out.

RUPEE WHOOPEE ONLY RUSSIAN BRAINSTORM

CALCUTTA (UP)—Dozens of beggars shared a huge Christmas windfall when a visiting Russian planning expert suffered a temporary brain illness and started flinging showers of rupee notes into the street.

Officials of the Indian Statistical Institute said first they knew of anything out of the ordinary was when they saw dozens of beggars scrambling and bawling outside the windows of the institute.

Showers of rupee currency notes were streaming down from the top floor.

The man responsible was Doctor Gelinovsky, vice-chairman of the Soviet Union's planning commission presently visiting India.

Advance Gifts for UBC Drive at $2.9 Million

VANCOUVER (CP)—Advance gifts to the University of British Columbia's development fund have reached $2,964,193, Paul E. Cooper, general chairman, reported today.

The public appeal is for $7,500,000. The B.C. government will match every dollar the public contributes up to the total of $7,500,000.

Donations during the week included $25,000 from Canada Safeway Ltd., $25,000 from Northern Construction and J. W. Stewart Limited, and $12,500 from Neon Products of Canada Ltd.

Another $50,000 will be contributed by Wood Gundy and Co. Ltd., and three of its executive officers.

Mr. Cooper said the Vancouver advance gifts division and Vancouver special women's division continues to set the pace in contributions.

"The advance gifts division has attained 50 per cent of its $2,485,000 goal," he said. "The special women's division has reached 55 per cent of its objective."

He also reported that the advance corporations division under Harold S. Foley has reached 37 per cent of its $2,740,000 objective.

Third of Polio Shots Injected Week of Jan. 6

The third and vital polio shot in the current series of injections will be given to nearly 16,500 adults in Greater Victoria during the week of Jan. 6.

The drive, sponsored as a public service by the Victoria Medical Society, is designed to protect adults against the effects of poliomyelitis by a program of three shots over a seven-month period.

From Jan. 6 to 10 inclusive, from 2 until 10 p.m., injections will be given by teams of doctors and nurses in the nurses' residences of the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

It is absolutely essential, a Medical Society spokesman said, that everyone who had the first two shots receive the last one in order to obtain any benefit from them at all.

Adults who have cards from the first injections should go to the same place at the same time on the same day of the week as they did last time.

For those who have lost their cards, the spokesman said, injections will be made available but no one will be started off on their first shot.

As with the previous two drives the Canadian-produced vaccine will be made available through members of the South Vancouver Island Pharmacists Association at the cost price of $1.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

First parade by companies here at Work Point Barracks of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will be held Monday morning following arrival today and Sunday of more than 400 officers and men following annual leave.

There are about 200 Pats already in barracks, and another 300 are expected by next week, bringing battalion strength to 900.

'Conspiracy' Hinders Joint Defence Effort

OTTAWA (CP)—A former senior RCAF officer claims the United States is hampering and even blocking defence scientific co-operation between Canada and the U.S.

Group Capt. C. B. Limbrick, who retired last year as RCAF director of guided missiles and special weapons and of radio warfare, writes in the current issue of the Canadian trade magazine Aircraft:

"I know of many millions of dollars worth of 'made in U.S.' equipment that is being used in Canada by U.S. and Canadian forces that could have been produced here at home."

DELIBERATELY

"This equipment was deliberately prevented from being made in Canada by a conspiracy of forces in the Pentagon (U.S. defence headquarters), other U.S. armed forces establishments and U.S. industry."

"In the case of equipment and work for the defence of North America, and particularly for that to be used in Canada, I submit that greed should not be permitted, and in fact is dangerous to our defence effort."

NO FAITH

Group Capt. Limbrick says the U.S. has no knowledge of or faith in Canada's potential for research, development and production of defence material. He adds that American security officials do not trust Canada.

"The operational personnel on both sides of the border have made an all-out effort to produce an integrated system (for research, development and production) but U.S. security policy has been extremely effective in preventing these efforts from being successful."

PREVENT RESEARCH

"Similar security moves have prevented research, development and in some cases production of equipment."

"Research, development and production are carried out only as a result of stated requirements of the armed forces, generally based on intelligence and exercises. In complete detail, are not available, due to security policies, then no work can be carried out."

WON'T TALK

"Many times through logical thinking and perhaps a bit of legitimate snooping Canadians have discovered requirements and have had bright ideas to cope with these needs, but the U.S. would refuse to hold any discussion on the grounds of security."

Group Capt. Limbrick says this situation is "frustrating and dangerous."

Scouts Plan Changes In Administration

Victoria District Boy Scouts Association will decentralize its administrative organization this week.

Number of assistant district commissioners will be enlarged from four to seven, effective New Year's Day.

Some 122 sections of Scouts in 51 groups spread over a 300-square-mile area extending from Jordan River to Deep Cove are administered by the association.

Under the new plan, each of the assistant commissioners will control group charters and Scouts' warrants, and also supervise camping in their own areas.

The reorganization will be implemented "so that Scouts do not have to waste effort in administrative problems which could be better spent in developing the game of Scouting for the boys," an association news release said.

Recommended as new assistant commissioners are J. M. Castle for East Victoria, H. L. Sturt for Oak Bay, and F. C. Nelson for South Saanich.

3½ HOURS 'BIG SLEEP'

Triplets' Parents Still Overwhelmed

The father of Victoria's triplets had a "good" night's sleep Friday—3½ hours.

It was the most rest Gerard Suijskens, 39, Lewis, has had since his boys were born last Sunday.

He went to bed at midnight, got up at 1 a.m. to fill the furnace, and give his wife Elisabeth a drink, got up again to change the babies' diapers and feed them.

At six, he dressed and began his morning chores.

"It was a good sleep," he said today.

Mrs. Suijskens isn't sleeping too well, either.

"We had 75 people come yesterday," Mr. Suijskens said. "It makes my wife nervous and she gets NOT any rest. I do not like to ask people not to come, but my wife and babies, they must be quiet."

Christmas cards are still arriving in the mail for the Dutch family, including a letter of congratulations from L. Kruijtsbosch, the Dutch consul in Vancouver.

Loads of gifts for the triplets are sitting unsorted in boxes, and Mr. Suijskens would like to give some of the baby clothing away.

But he wants to have the donors' permission. They can contact him at home.

Answering questions by the Ottawa correspondent of the independent Paris evening newspaper Le Monde, Smith said the Polish proposal is not, strictly speaking, a new idea.

"It takes up again some elements of a proposal made by Sir Anthony Eden some time ago," he said.

Smith said the proposal concerned above all Europe. He did not wish to comment on questions connected with the proposal.

"But I think that proposals of this kind should not be rejected until one is assured by a careful study that they cannot be applied."

for the Privy Council in London seeking claim for herself and her late husband to the Gibson silver-lead-zinc mine near Kaslo, in southeastern British Columbia.

In spite of continuous legal setbacks she never wavered in her determination to establish her right to the $2,000,000 property. Often she acted as her own counsel.

Mrs. May died Christmas Day. Her age was unknown but friends said she was in the high 70s. She had been living with her son lately.

Even as her slight five-foot frame succumbed painlessly to a three-day illness she was planning to go before the B.C. Legislature for a bill giving her title and possession to the Gibson Mining Company.

Born Minnie Mead Stevens, Missouri, of Virginian parents, she never lost the soft southern accent.

TALKED FIVE HOURS

Although she often recalled she was brought up "to be seen and not heard," she once orated for five hours before five appellate judges.

Mrs. May never denied she was psychic and said she had dreamed of her husband's name before she met him. She married David Kind May in San Francisco when she was 17. He was a mining engineer.

She and her husband located some silver and gold mining property in 1917, 12 miles from Kaslo. Mrs. May said they purchased claims that year.

Three years later she said a New York concern offered $2,000,000 for the property. It was at this time Mrs. May said a vice-president of the company got some shareholder backing and incorporated the Daybreak Mining Company, although she and her husband still had the majority of the shares.

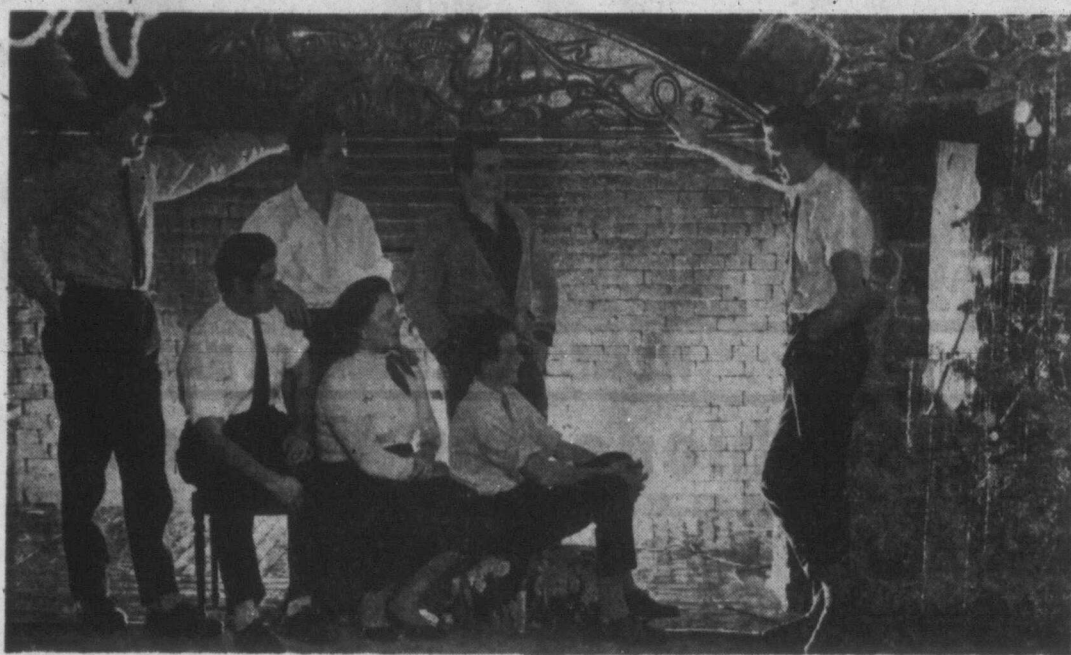

Legal battles began in 1919. In 1932 the Mays won title to the liquidated Sullivan mine but through an oversight did not get a court order for possession.

This error was the crux of legal disasters for the Mays before the B.C. Supreme Court, Court of Appeals and four times before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. May suffered a nervous breakdown in 1920 and from that time the two lived apart. Mr. May in Thompson Falls, Mont., and Mrs. May in Vancouver. Mr. May died in 1955.

All Mrs. May's available money was devoted to fighting her case while she lived in small Vancouver hotels with her trunks of legal documents.

RECORD SHOP

Fidelity Remains High When Care Is Faithful

The records you received for Christmas may be unbreakable if dropped on the floor, but remember in other ways they are as delicate as your best china. Handle them with care—kid gloves—if you want them to last.

Mistreated records soon lose their sparkle and their "fi." Do not leave them around for the dust to collect on them. Wipe with a soft cloth before and after playing. Handle all discs by their rims.

More records are ruined by a worn stylus than by any other factor. Remember—an osmium stylus is only good for about 12 long plays and sapphire 40- or 50 plays.

A diamond stylus should be checked periodically after 500 hours of play. Your record shop will do this for you.

Speaking for records: Sibelius Quartet in D minor, op. 58 (Voces Intimate); Grieg Quartet in G minor, op. 27; Budapest String Quartet, Columbia masterworks, ML5202.

This is a good bargain for anyone seeking quartets of two composers on one disc. The musicianship is excellent. Grieg's work will appeal to many.

The Sibelius quartet, the last he composed (1909) is an interesting contrast with Grieg's form and style.

Mozart String Quintet in C major, K515—Amadeus Quartet, with Cecil Aronowitz, second viola. Angel Library Series—45020.

Mozart fans will find this work fascinating. It is not too generally well known but seems to have attracted the attention of several quartet groups in the last few months.

Aronowitz who plays the second viola, is a professor of music and chamber music of ALBERNI — A four-day search has failed to find any trace of Fred Bristow, 74, missing from his Sproat Lake home since Christmas Eve, RCMP here reported today.

The all-out search is continuing. Chris Holcomb and Joe Lynn, who led a party of 85, including members of the Alberni Valley mountain rescue squad, RCMP, army and air force cadets, said they had "combed miles and miles near the missing man's home and also the banks of the Sproat River."

Searchers said they thought Bristow may have been picked up by a passing motorist. He had previously lived in Chemainus, West Vancouver and Metochin before moving to Sproat Lake. He has lived there with his son Alec and family four years.

The elderly man was dressed lightly in slacks and a brown suit coat. He was last seen Tuesday when he said he was going out to collect grass for his pet guinea pigs.

When he did not return his family notified police. Some members of the search squad went out Tuesday and their number was swelled to 200 on Christmas Day.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Season's Spirit

LADYSMITH CHRONICLE—It was pure coincidence that Lester Pearson's speech in acceptance of the Nobel Peace Prize should have been delivered a short time before the Christmas holiday.

But it was a fortunate coincidence because the basic theme of his address was so completely in the spirit of all that the Christmas holiday stands for and for that reason there is a better chance that it may strike a responsive chord.

Nearly 2,000 years ago the man whose birth the western world celebrated Wednesday, expounded a Golden Rule which has stood unchallenged as the simple answer to all the problems of human society through all the years between. Mr. Pearson made no reference to this Golden Rule, but he set forth a number of sensible and practical ways for the nations of the world to apply it in their dealings with one another.

There is already evidence that the leaders of other nations have either taken their cue from Mr. Pearson or have been thinking along the same lines, because there has appeared in the past few weeks more evidence of a sincere desire for international understanding than the world has seen for some time.

Prevention Measure

COMOX FREE PRESS—If anybody in this district or any other district for that matter is interested in crime prevention as far as the protection of his own property is concerned then he would be well advised to go to the highest authority in the land to get his advice free.

There is available a book entitled "Crime in Your Community" published by the RCMP and in it are examples of what not to do as well as what to do in order to protect property against theft and also advice on cheque cashing and forged note recognition.

RCMP Commissioner Leonard C. Nicholson, MBE, says in the foreword: "It is our belief that the old adage about an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure has a definite application to the problem of crime. Once a crime has been committed it is the responsibility of the police to locate the culprit and bring him before the courts to receive such punishment as he may be judged to deserve—and how much better it would be if the crime could have been prevented."

The book goes on to show how crimes can be prevented and in most cases the measures are simple ones any homeowner or merchant can put into practice.

Five or 10 minutes with this book could save merchants and householders a good deal of money.

'Phoney' Approach

NANAIMO FREE PRESS—The telephone company's study of combinations and permutations shows that this can happen only once in 5,000 calls, but the young fellow claims that is too often. Once was enough to cause him a lot of trouble, he says. It seems that he and his girl telephoned each other's apartments at the same time. Each got a busy signal. He mildly wondered "what other jerk is trying to date my girl?" Later, when he got through to her and they both explained, he had a good laugh about it. "Trouble is," the young fellow says, "she doesn't believe me. I think I was talking to another girl. The thing is causing me a lot of trouble."

He was upset enough to call the telephone company and tell about it all. That was when he learned of the 5,000-to-1 chance. The telephone man said the company had provided against practically any kind of disaster, except love.

fourth dimension with "Super-sonic Guitars in Hi-Fi," and "Hi-Fi in Focus," respectively. These two guitar showcases employ electronic devices to achieve their effects. Billy Mure is aglow with four guitars waging a melodic battle of survival. Chet Atkins translates his sounds from the patent-leather country stylings. He combines a flamenco guitar with the classic. Chet's album has a slight edge for over-all popularity. (Victor)

The sound on both these records is excellent. However, we have just learned that soon hi-fi will be passé. Sid Frey, president of Audio Fidelity Records, tells us that he has just made the first "stereodisc." This is a commercial pressing that can be played on either a regular hi-fi or a stereophonic rig.

However, "stereo" lovers will have to wait. The recording industry has advanced faster than electronics manufacturers can produce, and stereo cartridges are not yet generally available for binocular systems. The record available is a recut of the label's best-selling album, "The Dukes of Dixieland, Volume 3" and "Railroad Sounds."

JAKARTA (AP) — Another attempt will be made to reconcile differences between President Sukarno and former vice-president Mohammed Hatta before Sukarno leaves about Jan. 5 on a rest trip abroad, officials here said.

Hatta quit the government last year in protest to Sukarno's letting Communists increase their influence in Indonesia. Negotiations since then have failed to heal the split between the two leaders who won independence for this island republic.

Officials said that the meeting, scheduled for next week, also will include government and parliamentary representatives. A nine-man parliamentary committee is working out an agenda.

Teach Indians Fire Prevention, Verdict Urges

DUNCAN—A coroner's jury here Friday ruled that five children burned Tuesday on the Cowichan Indian Reservation at Koksilah met their deaths by accident, but added a strong rider that Indians be taught home fire prevention rules.

The jury asked also that the Indian department be instructed to deal with present fire hazards on the reserve.

Rennie Louie, father of the five children, said he purchased a gallon of gasoline for a gasoline lamp only the day before the fire, and the fuel was stored in a glass gallon jug.

His wife, Evelyn Bob, said she spilled some gasoline on the floor when filling a lamp and "I tripped on something and dropped a lighted match and the whole place was on fire."

Her sister, Betty Bob, was in bed with her two children in another room and saved her own two children. But all efforts to get to the room where the five slept was blocked by a wall of flame.

Burned to death were Delmar Bennett Bob, five; Lawrence Albert Bob, three; Lillian Karen Bob, two, and twin girls Cole Marie Bob and Charlene Ann Bob, born March 16 this year.

Gravestone funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday at St. Ann's Catholic Cemetery.

Deputy Premier Of West Germany, O. Nuschke Dies

BERLIN (AP)—Deputy Premier Otto Nuschke of Communist East Germany died after suffering a heart attack during the Christmas holidays, Evangelical (Lutheran) Church authorities in West Berlin said Friday. He was 74.

Although he supported the Communist line in speeches and publications, Nuschke occasionally was unpopular with the Stalinist rulers because of his efforts to ease tension between church and state. He also worked to get political prisoners released.

He had been deputy premier since the Red regime was founded in 1949.

Boy Kills Mother Showing Off Gun

CHILLICOTHE, Ill. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy killed his mother Friday, the coroner reported, while showing his father he was big enough to handle a 12-gauge shotgun.

"I told the boy the gun was too big for him but he had to pick it up to show me," Lawrence Fisher, 52, told Coroner Chauncey Wood. The gun in the hands of young Jay discharged and the shot struck his mother, Alyce, 51.

Vault Explosion Injures Women

ODESSA, Tex. (AP)—Leaking gas touched off by the lighting of a cigarette blew apart a vault in the First State Bank of Odessa Friday.

Two women were injured. Marilyn Hafer, 33, and Mrs. Norma Stewart, 26, darted from the ruins with their dresses ablaze. Bystanders seized the women and beat out the flames.

Scientist Elected

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Dr. Paul E. Kopsteg, associate director of research of the National Science Foundation, Friday was named president-elect of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the world's largest general organization of scientists.

A police spokesman said the four were suspected of having passed codes, government papers to a Communist agent. The search involved officials of the ministry of forestry and agriculture, ministry of finance and economic planning board.

RUSS CLAIM PLANE
TAKES OFF ANYWHERE

MOSCOW (UP)—The Russian aviation magazine Sovetskaya Aviatia today reported the successful test of a rocket-catapulted fighter aircraft which can take off literally from any place—a field, forest, mountain top or ravine.

The streamlined, arrow-like, silvery plane with swept-back wings is catapulted into the air by a rocket attached to its tail. When the plane reaches a certain height the rocket drops away and the piloted aircraft continues on its course.

Election Upset,
Queen's Visit
Top 1957 News

Victory of the Conservative party in the June federal election was the top news event in Canada during 1957.

Running a close second in the opinion of Canada's newsmen was the visit to the nation by Queen Elizabeth in October, highlighted by the first opening of Canadian parliament by a ruling monarch.

A close third was the suicide in Egypt in April of Canadian Ambassador E. H. Norman. The envoy's death was the culmination of a long developing story involving charges of Communist associations during his student days.

Major happenings in Canada during the year as compiled by Canadian Press:

JANUARY

8—George Drew, former Progressive Conservative leader, resigns seat in Commons. 10—Gordon commission on Canada's economic prospects forecasts 26,500,000 population in 25 years. 11—CPR firemen's strike ends; pay increases awarded by conciliation board to be paid. 17—New RCN aircraft carrier Bonaventure commissioned at Bonaville.

FEBRUARY

6—Senator C. G. Power heads Senate committee to investigate land use. 21—Ontario budget forecasts record revenues of $594,000,000. 28—Federal government announces plans for airlift of 24,500 British and French immigrants.

MARCH

1—Alberta budget includes oil dividend $20 payment for Albertans; eight killed in RCAF bomber crash near Ottawa. 2—French Premier Mollet, Foreign Minister Pineau, arrive at Ottawa. 6—Federal and Ontario governments agree on essentials of hospital insurance plan. 14—Federal budget boosts old age pensions and family allowances. 15—External Affairs Minister Pearson says protest will be made to Washington regarding accusations of Communist tendencies against E. H. Norman. Canadian ambassador to Egypt, Joseph British Columbia Supreme Court rules invalid deportation Tuesday against Christian George Mr. J. 28—Fowler commission civil (Continued on Page 2)

200 Dead in Ceylon's
Worst Flood Disaster

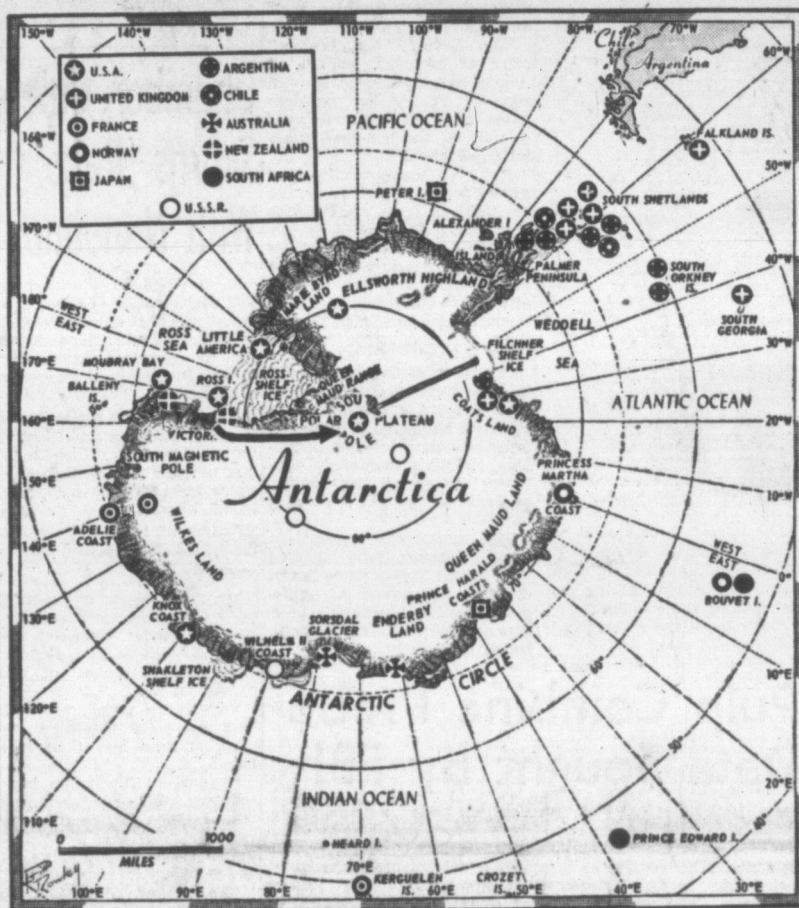

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—More than 200 persons are reported dead as one of the worst floods in Ceylon's history still spreads its trail of devastation across the island.

Some 300,000 are homeless and destitute in the wake of floods and landslides following week-long rains.

The east-coast fishing town of Muttur is under water and its 5,000 inhabitants evacuated. Some 100 families are missing from the area around Parakrama Samudra, largest artificial irrigation lake in the north-central province.

U.S. Not Weak in Arms,
White House Declares

ROUTE OF 'HELL-BENT' DASH

Arrow on left in centre shows approximate route of Sir Edmund Hillary in his overland dash for the South Pole where the U.S. has already established a depot by airlift. Arrow at right shows roughly direction of Dr. Vivian Fuchs' British party attempting to cross the Antarctic continent. Bases established by 11 countries shown by legend.

'Point of No Return'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Friends of Sir Edmund Hillary, who visited Victoria in March, 1954, today turned their eyes to the Antarctic where the conqueror of Mount Everest is making his "hell-bent dash" for the South Pole.

The famous alpine climber is a member of a British-Commonwealth expedition presently engaged in one of the last great adventures left to man—the crossing on foot of the vast Antarctic continent.

Among those watching with interest the progress of the expedition is Esquimaux Capt. Eric Revfem of the Royal Canadian Navy, who served time in the polar region several years ago.

Capt. Revfem who is well acquainted with the climatic and physical difficulties of the Antarctic, said the British-New Zealand explorers have only six or seven weeks to reach base camp before winter sets in.

He did not rule out the possibility that the expedition may become trapped in the vast expanse of ice, rock and snow covering over six million square miles.

Failure of the expedition to reach base camp in time would leave the explorers exposed to frigid winds—winds which blow constantly with a velocity more than twice that on any other continent.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, Giver of all life and source of every blessing, may I ever be mindful of my personal accountability to Thee. Let me see my duty clearly and never seek to evade its responsibility. Lift me above fear of reproach or criticism, above mere acquiescence to popularity or public opinion. May my conduct be determined solely by the purpose to fulfill Thy will for my life; through Christ, Amen.

'THROW BOOK
CLAIM MADE

SEATTLE (AP)—Arguments on motions seeking new trials for Dave Beck and his son were in abeyance for 12 days after the defence played its trump card—an affidavit accusing a jury foreman, Charles Hickling, of saying "they ought to throw the book at Beck."

The foreman, who headed the jury which convicted the teamsters' union president of grand larceny, denied making the statement.

After Charles S. Burdell, defence attorney, submitted the affidavit and also one of his own explaining how it was obtained, superior judge George H. Revelle recessed the hearing until Jan. 9 because of prior commitments.

Wolves Score
Shutout Win

LONDON (UP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers, whose 18-game unbeaten streak was snapped Thursday, retained their six-point lead in the English soccer league's first division race today by defeating Sunderland, 2-0.

West Bromwich, the second place team, scored an easy 5-1 victory over Burnley.

Preston replaced Manchester United in third place by shutting out Portsmouth, 2-0. Manchester United, the defending league champion, was held to a 2-2 draw by Manchester City.

Tottenham, fresh from its Thursday triumph over Wolverhampton, entertained Newcastle and was held to a 3-3 tie.

In the day's major surprises, Bolton invaded Blackpool and won, 3-2, while Leicester, a club far down in the standings, shut out Bolton 3-0.

Legendary Giant Takes Powder
After Raiding Native's Flour

KATHMANDU, Nepal (UP)—A Sherpa named Phurpa arrived here to ask government help in preventing "abominable snowmen" from eating up his milled flour.

The Sherpa made the four-day march from the village of Melimche, north of Kathmandu, to complain that a Yeti or Abominable Snowman had broken into his mill.

"My own watermill was raided by one Yeti," he said. "When I reached my mill with a fresh load of maize about 10 in the morning about 15

Gaither Report
Stories Scored

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—The White House said today that the United States is not weak in defences in relation to Russia "at this time," despite unofficial versions of the Gaither report to the contrary.

As for the future ability of this country against the growing power of Russia, press secretary James C. Hagerty said that President Eisenhower would go into this matter in some detail in his State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 9.

The president worked on the message at his farm here today. He planned to continue preparation of the document next week when he confers with key administration officials.

The Gaither report is a secret document. It is the result of a

Secrecy Still Shrouds Report

The White House, according to Hagerty, was particularly concerned about accounts published and broadcast within the past few days to the effect that the U.S. now is in a woefully weak world position.

Hagerty said these reports credited the Gaither report with such a conclusion.

Reporters asked Hagerty when and if they could expect to get copies of the report, and if the versions published thus far were true.

Hagerty said first that the document still was secret and could not be released. He said he had anticipated questions on the report and had a three-point position to state today:

"As far as I know there is no factual information in the Gaither report that has not been available to the committee of Congress, particularly the Johnson committee." (This referred to the Senate preparedness subcommittee headed by Senator Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson.)

"Stories that have been printed which indicate that the U.S. is in a position of weakness at this time are not true; they are not in the report and are completely contrary to the report. The report says just the opposite."

"The president will give in the State of the Union message his estimate of the military posture of our country as it is now and what has to be done in the future to continue that strength."

Hagerty said the president's conclusions on American defences in his message to Congress would be based on recommendations and reports from the Gaither committee, and also another survey group headed by Dr. James R. Killian, now special scientific adviser to the president, plus Eisenhower's own estimate of the situation.

talks—at least on the disarmament issue—with Moscow.

But the NATO communiqué stipulated that these talks should be held later next year at the foreign ministers' level and only after diplomatic and UN disarmament commission channels have been exhausted.

WEST DIVIDED

The Western allies are known to be divided on the question of what level the talks with Russia should be held and how broad an agenda should be discussed.

Informed sources here today said that Macmillan, in his reply to Moscow, will not exclude the possibility of summit talks. But like the U.S., he is not likely to commit Britain without a definite objective.

Man's Body Found

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—The battered body of a man was found today in his apartment and police said he had been dead at least 72 hours. They believe he was slain. Police withheld the man's name.

He said the Yeti ran away to higher snow before he could return with villagers to punish it.

It was the most recent report on the elusive Abominable Snowman, which has been described by natives as a hairy half-man, half-ape animal that walks upright like a man.

Although footprints reported to be that of the Yeti, have been seen by reputable Westerners, elaborate British and American expeditions over the last 10 years have failed to capture one.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Seine Fleet Heralds Opening Of New Fishermen's Wharfage

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Seven Pacific Coast seine boats sailed proudly into the new fishermen's wharf in False Creek here Friday to mark the inauguration of the $700,000 harbor improvement.

The wharf, long sought by the fishing industry and built in three years, was declared open by John Taylor, newly-elected Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Vancouver Burrard.

Standing on the bridge of the Western Producer, commanded by Capt. C. H. Clarke, president of the fishing vessel owners' association, Mr. Taylor cut a string of signal flags stretched between floats. The seiners moved in with all flags flying.

DYNAMITE STOLEN

Pulp Combine Probe Data Sought by FBI

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department disclosed today it is gathering information from newspaper companies in a check for possible antitrust violations. The material also will be used in a report to congress.

A department spokesman said FBI agents are going to the offices of American companies that control Canadian newspaper firms or are affiliated with them.

REASON FOR DELAY

The British explorers have already encountered such conditions. This is one of the main reasons why they are behind schedule.

"Hillary and the British and New Zealanders are presently faced with a challenge which, in my opinion, is more arduous and hazardous than the climbing of Mount Everest," said Capt. Revem.

Capt. Revem served for several years on whaling ships in the Antarctic. He also served aboard a vessel which shipped U.S. Admiral Byrd's equipment to the polar continent.

The success of the expedition will mean that man has for the first time crossed the Antarctic continent from coast to coast—a feat which explorers have dreamed of since the early 1900's.

The trek across the continent has been called the "worst journey in the world" because of its climatic and physical hazards.

Japan's Kaoru Yasui, head of the disarmament committee, indicated the resolution will follow the conference's general anti-western line.

Communists and sympathizers are playing leading roles in the deliberations of more than 400 delegates from 42 countries and colonies. The delegates do not officially represent their governments.

WEST TESTS WORSE

Yasui said all three nuclear powers—the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union—will be mentioned in the appeal for an end to bomb tests.

But he said he regarded the tests of the United States and Britain as more dangerous to Japan than those of the Soviet Union. The Americans and British use the Pacific for most of their explosions, he noted, while the Russians use their own country.

The Soviet "big brother" offer of economic aid to all Asians and Africans was well received Friday by the delegates from 42 countries and colonies at the non-governmental conference.

Many of those voicing loud praise for the offer are exiles or fugitives from areas which now receive United States economic aid. Some of the leftists here are frowned on by home governments who try to stay officially disconnected from Communist propaganda lines.

CHEER INDONESIA

The offer, obviously designed to drive western enterprise out of the East, was accompanied by broad hints that African and Asian countries should nationalize western operated businesses and exploit their profits as Egypt has sought to do with the Suez Canal.

This, apparently appealed to many elements who shouted their assent Friday when Soviet delegate Apushavan A. Aganovich lauded Indonesia's takeover of some $1,500,000,000 in Dutch investments.

Lung Disease Robs Zoos Of Penguins

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lung disease has killed off 10 penguins captured in the Antarctic during a special expedition. Zoological officials fear it may spell doom for 46 others scattered in three United States and Canadian zoos.

Mild Boy Kills 2 Men for Cars

BATH, N.Y. (AP)—A mild-mannered 17-year-old boy, who said he uses neither alcohol, tobacco nor coffee, has told police of killing two men who gave him lifts while hitch-hiking.

One victim was the father of 10 children, on his way to a hospital to visit his wife and new-born baby.

Authorities said Fred Sommer Jr. of Cameron Mills, near this south-central New York community, admitted in written statements that he shot Cecil Stratton, 42, on Dec. 13, and Leo W. Brown, 38, on Thursday night.

He said he killed both men for their automobiles.

Sommer said he wanted the mer employer for some allegedly stolen items.

Sommer was charged with first-degree murder.

Chamber Chief Scorns 'Race' With Nanaimo

Hugh Stephen, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, today scorned any suggestion that Victoria and Nanaimo are running a kind of "horse race" for the leadership of Vancouver Island.

"The two cities are quite different in character and I believe they will develop differently so that ultimately we will come to share in a greater Vancouver Island."

"After all, it is the growth of the Island that matters."

NICE PLACE

Mr. Stephen was commenting on a statement by Recreations Minister Earle Westwood that Nanaimo will be "the flourishing industrial centre" of Vancouver Island.

Victoria, he added, will "still be a nice place to retire to—no more and no less than it is now."

"Nanaimo's future lies in its industry," Mr. Westwood said. "One asset in this regard which can never be taken away from the city is its close proximity to the mainland."

"No one can deny that Nanaimo has great industrial potentialities," Mr. Stephen said. "But it does not have the tourist potential of Victoria or the income we derive from retired persons."

"Victoria is infinitely more attractive from this point of view."

Victoria Labor Council has rearranged its January meeting schedule to avoid conflict with the New Year's Day holiday.

Second Black Friday

LITTLE NOTED IN THE RUSH of the Christmas season but certain to emerge clearly later on, a grave issue of parliamentary behaviour recently arose in the House of Commons.

Mr. Coldwell, who cannot be accused of much sympathy for either of the great political parties, said that this latest development had made him as heartsick as he had felt on the famous Black Friday of 1956. His heartsickness had been induced then by the behaviour of a Liberal Government. It is revived by the similar behaviour of a Conservative Government.

The first Black Friday occurred during the well-remembered pipeline debate when the Liberal majority in effect over-ruled the decision of the Speaker. It did so to suit the convenience of the Government and to keep the pipeline scheme on schedule, though in fact it was not kept on schedule as events turned out.

At that time and other times Mr. Diefenbaker pronounced certain lofty dicta on the sanctity of the Speaker and the rules of Parliament. Among other things he said: "Members have a right to know that the rules of the House will be observed and will not be dependent on the caprice of the majority." Again: "They (the members of Parliament) have a right to ask that the decisions of today shall not be reversed tomorrow by the presiding officer, whatever the consequences may be to the majority of this House."

But things do not always look the same in Opposition and in Government, as the present ministry has found out already in several cases. Thus on the second Black Friday Mr. Diefenbaker's majority did precisely what he condemned the former Liberal majority for doing. It reversed the ruling of the presiding officer. And it did this, exactly like the former Government, to suit its own immediate convenience and extricate itself from its own mistakes. Hence the heartsickness of Mr. Coldwell.

The Diefenbaker Government wished to make certain taxation changes but it did not wish to introduce a budget. It was obviously afraid to introduce a budget, which it had promised last summer, and reveal all the present difficulties of the treasury. That would have involved an exposure of next year's huge deficits under a ministry pledged to a balanced budget and drastic economy.

By one of Parliament's most sacred rules only a member of the Government can propose a reduction in taxes when a budget is introduced. This is the rule, and a sound one, because only the Government, in framing a budget, can fit tax changes into the whole financial structure. Accepting the responsibility for the budget, it must also take responsibility for the taxes supporting it.

Since the Government did not introduce a budget, but only a series of tax-reducing resolutions, the CCF moved to amend these resolutions and cut taxes below the Government's proposed figures. The presiding officer of the whole House in committee decided that in these circumstances the old rule did not apply. He twice ruled that the CCF amendments were in order and could be debated.

This immediately put the Government in a dilemma, the same dilemma of expediency faced by the former Government in the pipeline debate.

The present ministry could have allowed the CCF amendments to be debated and then have voted them down, but it did not wish to risk such a debate which might have exposed the full effects of its financial policies next year.

It therefore challenged the ruling of the presiding officer (a Conservative) and was able to persuade a majority of the members present (mostly Conservatives) to repudiate and reverse him.

In short, it did precisely what Mr. Diefenbaker had said no Government must ever do. Under Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership the members, in his own words, do not "have a right to ask that the decisions of today shall not be reversed tomorrow."

Liberals in Parliament have no right to gloat over the present Government for doing what they did in office—an offence which, more than anything else, assured their defeat. But it is remarkable that a new Government, elected largely on its defence of Parliament's sovereignty, should violate it so soon.

Now a Liberal, Mr. Pickersill (probably not without a guilty pipeline conscience) proposes to prevent such offences by making the Speaker's rulings final and beyond reversal, as in Britain. His resolution to this effect has been lost in the rush and may not re-appear before an election, but sooner or later it will have to be faced, now that both the great parties have sinned against Parliament.

Blind Eyes

PROF. PHILIP H. BACON, OF Columbia University Teachers' College, has performed a valuable service for Canada. It will be even more valuable if his remarks are taken to heart by educationists and the public generally in his nation.

Says the professor: "We simply don't know what's going on in Canada. We can't keep up with the pace of Canadian progress . . . We don't try hard enough."

In the schools of the United States course material on Canada is thoroughly inadequate, he suggests. In consequence, Americans keep finding to their surprise and embarrassment that this country is not merely an extension of their own. United States young people, he adds, are given no preparation for what is often brought to their notice later—that Canadians have interests and world views that often are disturbingly different from those held generally in the United States.

What Prof. Bacon says is true enough. Canadians, moreover, would welcome a broader understanding of their country, peoples, ideals and institutions on the part of their friends across the border.

But most honest Canadians will restrain their indignation against citizens of the United States for the latter's apparent ignorance of Canada. They have to, for no other reason than that too many Canadians are not only woefully ill-informed on the United States, but also on Canada as well.

It would be highly beneficial if Prof. Bacon could stimulate greater interest among his people in this country—even better if he could arouse more interest among Canadians in their own affairs and those of their neighbors.

As Our Readers See It

Animal Slaughter

Public opinion is at last aroused over the inhumane methods of slaughter in our packing houses. As further disclosed by Mr. Tom Hughes, SPCA, these methods still exist.

As a farmer, I have killed scores of animals for meat and with no complaint from my customers, and if I, an amateur, could do this without causing suffering, then the big people can do so. Cattle and horses I shot before bleeding, calves I stunned and pigs I stunned with a 22.

Humane slaughtering has long since been the law in England and the export of live horses to the continent stopped, but they have not been able to stop export to Ireland, where that nation of horse lovers (?) ship 3 boatloads a week to the continent, there to be strung up and bled via the electric pump—a cruel death, that not even the Nazis thought of.

Lets hope Mr. Tom Hughes and his Society will force the Government to insist on humane slaughter and so remove this blot on our copybook.

The people who fussed over the wretched Sputnik dog, apparently forget, or ignore that in the interest of another Science we condone dog vivisection with all its horrors.

"ONLOOKER."

LOOSE ENDS

THE thoughtful man, with plenty of time to think during the Christmas holidays, must have been deeply amused by certain changes in our society, among them the appointment of Mr. Gordon Sloan as the so-called "czar" of British Columbia forests.

I say that this appointment and other developments less noted are amusing not only because of their source. There is nothing amusing in Mr. Sloan or his position. I can think of no able man in British Columbia or any position more serious and important.

But it is highly amusing, in a somber, philosophical fashion, to find a government which calls itself the last refuge of private enterprise thus embarking on a gigantic socialistic experiment.

For that is what the new forest system means. It is what many other new public policies mean. However wise or unwise they may be, they are amusing because they are invariably introduced as anti-socialist.

If they fail to amuse the reader, they must amuse socialists like Mr. Coldwell who, though surely one of the finest men in our public life and probably our ablest parliamentarian, is also himself a little amusing to his friends and admirers, including this writer, because he is so obviously disenchanted with his earlier brand of socialism.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Mid the Quiet Pleasures of the Rural Life

FOLKS who live in big cities often wonder how anyone can endure spending their days in small, isolated rural communities. Some city-bred types look on village life with the same degree of horror with which they regard a prison sentence. Fact is, except for certain maladjusted people, life in a small community is filled with interest and activity. True it is a different sort of activity from that of great urban centres and it lacks—or did before the advent of television, radios and hi-fi record players—the cultural amenities of large centres.

This lack, however, is one of which your true country type is unconscious and in even the most isolated places one is never as lonely as it is possible to be in teeming cities.

In the country one has neighbors—real neighbors folk—whose lighted windows at night, a mile or so away are like kindly beacons in the night. As one walks from place to place one has the company of trees which talk to one in their myriad voices; geese fly overhead and at dusk a fish plops, leaving wave rings on the still water.

Then there are all the small intimacies of life in which the tribulations, the joys the successes of neighbors have a personal impact that is impossible in large centres.

No doubt when we live in isolated communities we become insular and perhaps a little narrow-minded but even that can be overlooked when one considers the hard-shell insularity of people living in apartments in cities.

Well, the first time I lived at Quatsino for a spell, many, many years ago, I thought it was the most wonderful life that a boy could imagine. It was particularly interesting at the Ildstad home where a rifle or two and a couple of shotguns stood handily behind the kitchen door at all times. And fishing gear was always available.

Dull? My goodness, life was pulsating with interest and every dawn was a challenge.

You could take one of the boats and row over to Limestone Island just to stroll along a trail and watch the deer that browsed there without any fear of man. I remember once pretending to be hunting deer on the island with a loaded .22 calibre rifle.

I stalked the trail as silent, I thought, as an Iroquois in one of Fenimore Cooper's stories, just daring a bear to crash suddenly out of the thick bush. As I moved slowly along there was sudden rustle of leaves and there, right in front of me, at a distance of about ten feet a young deer dropped to the trail as softly as a thistle-down.

The deer stood quite still looking at me with surprise in her great limpid eyes (she was a doe, of course). But there was no sign of fear.

So I shouldered my rifle and took careful aim at her forehead right between her eyes and said: "bang." The deer moved about a foot sideways with a delicate dance step and then stopped to look at the silly intruder into her domain.

Then I said, "shoo, go on, shoo" and the gentle animal moved about another foot away and again stood still until I walked toward her when, with a little cheeky flick of her tail she leaped into the bush as silently as a blown leaf.

I could not have shot her—or any other deer—under any circumstance.

The small tads of the large Ildstad family shared none of my squeamishness about guns and one of them whom we called "baby," although he was at least eight years old, made enough money for an annual trip to Victoria from the bounty for shooting crows. He would crawl like an Indian toward a spit that stretched into the sea and a low tide was covered with crows picking up small shell fish among the barnacles and blaze away at them.

Each blast brought down its quota but the rest of the flock flew out of range in their crazy, straggling crow-flight and perched safely in nearby trees scolded and derided the boy as only a flock of crows can.

On another day the same boy saw a cougar slithering into the henhouse. The boys rushed to the henhouse and promptly booted the animal in its protruding rear so that it leaped ahead. The boy just slid down the hen door and locked the animal inside.

Then he raced into the house, seized the first gun behind the kitchen door and netted himself a $45 bounty, which assured him of a very merry Christmas, indeed.

The Die for Peace or War May Be Cast During the Year We Are Now About to Enter

By HON. LESTER B. PEARSON. Copyright 1957. All rights reserved.

I HOPE that the Christmas holiday has been kind to you, even though the spirit of goodwill and peace is conspicuous by its absence in many parts of the world. Perhaps there is no better symbol for the state of the world on Christmas 1957 than Bethlehem itself. Christ's birthplace was at peace this year for its pilgrims in the sense that there was no violence. But a few hundred yards away there was barbed wire beyond which the shepherd might be shot.

Pearson

On this day, however, our own and the world's troubles are veiled by the bright Christmas lights or the even brighter lights of children's eyes on Yule morning. Our great festival gives us renewed faith and hope—as always. Those who have public responsibilities, especially, will need these qualities, and courage and resolve, in the year that lies ahead.

In a few days now that "year ahead" will be here. This is the time, therefore, for looking both backward and forward. There can seldom, in a period of technical peace, have been such a stirring 12 months as those through which we have just passed. Nor are we likely to become bored by the monotony of national or international life in the immediate future.

A highlight at home, of course, during the past year was our election and change of government. You would not expect me to rhapsodize over that. I can, however, share the happiness of all Canadians over the civilized way in which the change-over took place, in accordance with the best traditions of parliamentary democracy; and with a minimum of dislocation or disturbance, a civil service which had for 22 years administered policies of governments formed from the same party, became at once the loyal and skillful servant of the new administration.

It was an important test for the stability, efficiency and continuity of our governmental machinery and it was met successfully.

A second domestic development that should be mentioned was the levelling off during the year of many of the indices of our recent spectacular economic growth. This does not mean a halt in that growth but it forecasts new and difficult problems of trade, development and employment in the New Year.

During that year, however, in company with other free countries, we are going to face problems even more vital than economic ones.

This new year comes at a time when western peoples are increasingly questioning the thesis that a nation's greatness—or even its power—can be measured primarily in terms of consumer standards or capital expansion. We are examining with a greater intensity our scales and priorities of social values. We are more aware, I think, than a year ago that man does not live by bread alone, or by a new-model car every year or a television set in every room.

Certain shocks we have received in 1957 from behind the Iron Curtain may have been partly responsible, at least, for this national soul-searching.

These shocks have had the greater impact because they occurred in a field of activity in which western peoples in the last century had made their greatest progress and in which achievement was thought to be closely related to conditions of free thought and free life. Nevertheless, in spite of, indeed largely because of a standard of material living which North Americans would find intolerably low, a totalitarian despotism has not only developed forms of power comparable or superior to that of the West, it has also moved in 50 years from popular backwardness and illiteracy to the highest achievements in science, engineering and technology, culminating in the conquest of outer space.

The Soviet Sputnik was the startling dramatization of this change, this transformation. With all that it implies in terms of politics and power, of our hopes and fears for the future, it is undoubtedly the major international event of the year—if not of the century.

The event—and the shock it gave the world—can be exploited positively or negatively. It will be the latter if we yield to panicky and short-sighted impulses and think only of restoring the positions in terms of military power; act only to that end.

Sputnik has, of course, a defence significance which must be faced and countered. It has shown that the Soviets are ahead of the West in certain military developments.

I do not suggest that the NATO powers, and especially of course the U.S.A., should not push ahead with their own plans for strengthening their defence position in these fields. But if this is the only conclusion we draw from Sputnik we will be acting very stupidly.

If and when we catch up with and pass the Soviets in this particular aspect of competitive co-existence—and if we do nothing else—we will merely have returned to the pre-Sputnik position of cold war, with both sides on a comparable basis of ability to destroy each other even more quickly and completely than before.

There is another, and even more important lesson to be drawn and there are signs that it is being learned. Indeed these signs are one of the more encouraging portents for 1958.

A new, grim and unchallengeable proof has been given that the destruction of this planet is not only easy, but inevitable if the weapons we have now developed are used. Therefore a further incentive has been given us to take the initiative in a renewed search for a solution to international problems and an easing of tension.

I am not thinking so much of disarmament. Indeed, important as this issue is, it is not in my view so important as certain political problems which have divided the two worlds and made an arms race inevitable.

While summit conferences, UN committees and sub-committees all have their value, surely the best way at the present time to make progress, or prove that progress can't be made and why, is through serious searching, frank and persistent direct diplomatic talks between Washington and Moscow.

In any such talks, three considerations must be kept in mind:

(1) There must be a re-examination of the issues without either side standing rigidly on positions previously taken.

(2) On the U.S.A. side, there should be full and prior consultation with allies on each matter that is brought forward. The NATO council is available and suitable for this purpose.

(3) Diplomatic discussions of this kind should not prejudice or weaken our defence position or slacken our defence effort. If the talks succeed, that success will automatically modify defence policy and effort, by giving us greater political security. Until then, there should be no weakening, but no provocation either.

Perhaps the Soviets, in their post-Sputnik mood, would reject any such peace initiative. Perhaps, it would not succeed if it were tried.

There can be nothing more important in 1958, however, than to make the attempt. The die for peace or war has not yet been cast but it may be during the year into which we are now entering.

And so, Happy New Year.

A Closer Look at the Socialists in Disguise

At these brash remarks your eyebrows may rise. What, you may ask, has Mr. Sloan's appointment to do with socialism? Is any man less attracted by socialism than Mr. Sloan with his salary of fifty thousand a year? Are the great forest industries not left in private hands? Is a single share of their stock being transferred to public ownership?

SUCH questions overlook the broad sweep and infinite variation of that misused word, "socialism." Like most other things, it has taken on new meanings until the old meaning is quite obsolete and is believed nowadays only by a few doctrinaires.

Once socialism meant the ownership of industry by the state or by the workers themselves in those foolproof syndicates imagined by Marx as part of a classless and stateless society.

But if nothing has turned out as the old socialists (and the old capitalists) expected, if hardly anyone longer believes that state ownership is a panacea, if that theory has been abandoned by the British Labor Party and its Canadian child, the CCF, nevertheless the original and primary intention of socialism remains and is growing stronger all the time.

That intention, in all its myriad aspects and contradictions, is the control of the economy by authorities outside, or as far outside as possible, of the free competitive market, for the general good.

By that definition the new forest policy is clearly socialistic. It puts the forest industry effectively under the domination of one eminent public servant who is called an "adviser" but whose "advice" you may be sure, can never be resisted by the government.

Nor does the government wish to resist it. On the contrary, you can almost hear Mr. Bennett's long, hoarse sigh of relief as he tosses the vast problems of forestry (and certain other famous difficulties) into the competent hands of Mr. Sloan. All this is socialism in the broad, practical sense and it is too important to be trusted directly to the government.

NOW, I am not quarrelling with this policy. I think it thoroughly sound in a particular case and the country fortunate to have a controller like Mr. Sloan. But please don't tell me that this is private enterprise. For the vital question here is not who owns the stock of the forest industry—the stockholders, in fact, having no control over even their own companies which are managed by persons who may own no stock at all; the vital question is who controls the general climate of the industry and in this case the public undertakes to control it through Mr. Sloan.

Many other aspects of the general economic climate are controlled in the same way, some directly through government, others indirectly through independent public servants where, as in the case of money, we do not dare to trust the government. We prefer to trust men like Mr. Coyne and Mr. Sloan who will not listen to politics—in other words, to us. And the significant thing is that the state's intervention is increasing all the time under the direction of politicians who deny and may even believe that they are doing nothing of the sort.

FOR another example, while the free-enterprise, anti-socialist government of British Columbia was handing the forest industries over to Mr. Sloan the "Conservative" government of Canada was preparing to increase public subsidies to farmers, was actually subsidizing one private company at Britannia while refusing subsidies to others, was planning to subsidize other interests through the tariff, was devising a national scheme of hospital insurance, and doing many other things which may be wise and necessary or unwise and unnecessary but in any case are not "conservative" by any known definition, are certainly not intended to keep enterprise "free" or "private" and are all collectivistic and socialistic in principle and direction.

THIS need not surprise us in the least. Such is the direction of society in our time and it began long ago, with the invention of the first machine, though there was a deceptive lull and apparent reversal in the nineteenth century.

The thoughtful man, therefore, need not be surprised or excited but he can hardly fail to be amused when every socialistic experiment is solemnly announced as another safeguard of private ownership.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Industry Opens Drive to Woo Mr. Consumer

By WALTER BREDE JR.
NEW YORK (AP) — What's ahead for the U.S. consumer? One thing seemed certain this week as the 1957 business year sputtered to a finish. From now on the consumer will be king. Competition for his spending dollar will be razor sharp. Business will bend over backwards trying to please him.

The consumer and his state of mind has obviously become a matter of increasing concern to business leaders.

AUTOMEN AFTER SALES

From Detroit came word that the auto industry is getting set to lure potential customers with enticements ranging from improved service to free lubrication jobs. Big volume producers are devising new schemes to persuade car owners to switch brands.

Department and specialty store executives plan to woo consumers with better values, fewer frills and lower prices. Christmas business had been good, department store sales for the week ended Dec. 21 were up 4 per cent from a year ago but the holiday shopping surge had given way to a massive post-Yule lull.

Merchants stocked with left-over merchandise slashed prices right and left. Before them loomed 1958, with rising unemployment and balking customers likely to spread a wet blanket over retail sales.

The government, shooting for a general business pickup by mid-1958, sought to revive home building this week by unfreezing $177,000,000 in housing funds.

Construction of all kinds was cited by the commerce department as one of the strongest spots in the U.S. economy. The Associated General Contractors of America predicted that construction outlays in 1958 will rise to a high of $68,000,000,000, a gain of nearly $3,000,000,000 compared with 1957.

MINE REPORTS BLEAK

Not so bright are the latest reports on mine and factory production. Auto output is down 18 per cent from a year ago, with 75,000 workers laid off until after New Year's. Steel production this week totalled 53.7 per cent of capacity of 1,374,000 tons. In Christmas week last year the industry turned out 2,322,000 tons. That's a decline of 41 per cent. Coal production is down 14.8 per cent; crude oil output down 6 per cent.

Railroad carloadings are down 5 1/2 per cent from a year ago.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Preparations for early seed sowing indoors are in order. Small seed boxes, clean pots, soil partially dried out and screened ready for making up seeding mixtures is work to be done when the weather is suitable.

Inspect plants wintering in cold frames. Some may need a little water which may be given when temperatures are above freezing. Remove fallen or decayed leaves.

Cuttings which are being rooted in the greenhouse or porch require careful watering, preferably on mild sunny days.

Hyacinths in pots need more water than daffodils in pots, while drying out of either results in poor flowers.

Peach trees should be sprayed for peach leaf curl before the end of the year. Use a good fungicide and thoroughly cover all portions of the trees.

VANCOUVER TO STAGE PCL ALL-STAR CLASSIC

VANCOUVER (CP)—This city will host the Pacific Coast League all-star baseball game in 1958 as part of the British Columbia centennial celebrations.

General manager Cedric Tallis of the Vancouver Mounties announced Friday that the game will be played some time in July.

Top players from the northern clubs meet their southern neighbors in the annual affair. Vancouver, Seattle, Spokane and Portland players will engage the best from San Diego, Sacramento, Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

CLEVELAND (NEA)—Working his Browns at old League Park here for their seventh National Football League championship game in eight years, Paul Brown talked as if he was pleased with the freezing temperatures and snow.

Brown, the coach with the fantastic record, even turns miserable weather into an advantage for his side.

"When we played Los Angeles in the playoff two years ago," he recalls, "the Rams' front office wanted us to come out there some days before we did. But we said we'd rather work in the snow around here. Our guys worked in stocking caps and bundled up the best way they could. And all it did was rain, sleet and snow."

"We flew out the day before the game, and when our guys started to run on the fast turf of the Los Angeles Coliseum, it was like taking a fat man off the back of each one of them. That was Otto Graham's last game, and we beat the Rams, 38-14."

Another reason why Brown elected to train for two weeks in Cleveland was that he had a hunch that Detroit would knock over San Francisco in the playoff for the Western Division title. Now he has had the Browns training in weather similar to that expected in Detroit Sunday, when the Browns and Lions clash for the professional football crown.

Brown said he hadn't cared who would win the Western Division championship.

"It wouldn't have done us any good to have had a preference, so why have one?" he explained.

"Judging from the way they were knocking one another off in that division, it wouldn't have made a bit of difference which club we played. We were well acquainted with both, and one was as good as the other."

"The only edge we might have had in San Francisco was in the weather. Out there, our guys might have got that weight off their backs as they did in Los Angeles two years ago."

"But it's going to be the Lions and we'll have something figured for them."

"Each game is different. The next game is the only one that counts," Brown replied when asked to explain his tremendous success—in high school, college, the service and with the professionals.

Brown pointed out that the game was much looser than it used to be, but that the basic plays remain about the same.

"The difference is in the blocking and the change from game to game and play to play," he said.

"Brown beats you with execution and influence blocking," said Vince Lombardi, the Giants' offensive coach, after the Browns shaded the 1956 champions in the finale at Yankee Stadium. "He gets the defensive guards outside conscious and then goes over them."

"Once Paul Brown gets the defensive guard following the play, the quarterback gives the ball to Jimmy Brown with no block on that guard at all."

Head coach Jim Lee Howell of the Giants has picked the Browns to beat the Lions.

Paul Brown no doubt is of the same opinion, but he's been pleased with this week's sleet and snow.

That might get the weight off his guys' backs Sunday.

Pass-Catching Hoppy Lions' Major Threat

DETROIT (AP)—Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy's ability to grab a pass is a cinch to be one of the Detroit Lions' major offensive threats when they go against Cleveland Browns here Sunday for the National Football League championship.

A flanking halfback, Cassidy is the No. 2 pass receiver on a team that likes to throw because it has two such accomplished passers as Bobby Layne and Tobin Rote.

In 12 regular season games and one playoff game, the former All-American halfback caught 28 passes for 362 yards. Three times his pass-catching brought a touchdown.

The only man above Cassidy in the Lions' pass receiving list is Jim Doran, a seven-year veteran from Iowa State who snared 33 passes in the regular season for 624 yards and five touchdowns.

LAYNE OUT

This time out, as in his last two games, Cassidy will have only Rote as a front-running quarterback to aim the ball at him. Layne suffered a broken ankle against this same Cleveland team in the Lions' 20-7 victory three weeks ago.

When the subject of Cassidy's pass receiving came up in the Lions' dressing room this week, he gave credit to assistant coach Bob Nussbaumer. Nussbaumer took the job early in the season, making Cassidy act like an end.

"I had never run a pass pattern until I came up with the Lions," said Cassidy, whose university days were at Ohio State. "Oh, I had caught a few passes, all right, but they were those little things you flick out to a man in the flat or something like that."

None of the famous Cassidy running talent evaporated while he worked on being a pass receiver. He has carried 73 times—second only to fullback John Henry Johnson's 129 carries—for 250 yards and three touchdowns.

Buc Bonus Baby

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates announced the signing Friday of Raymond M. Looney, George Washington University football and baseball star, to a bonus contract. The price was not disclosed.

Looney, 21, a left-handed hitter and first baseman, will be assigned to Pirates' Columbus team in the International League.

FOR RUDY PILOUS

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Rudy Pilous switches from junior hockey to a National Hockey League coaching job next week. He exchanges a hot team for a sputtering one for the privilege.

Pilous, 42-year-old pilot of St. Catharines Teepees in the Ontario Junior Hockey League, was named Friday as coach of the last-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Seixas, Mackay Salvage Some Prestige for U.S.

MELBOURNE (UP)—Vic Seixas and Barry Mackay salvaged some prestige for the United States Davis Cup team today when they outlasted their already victorious Australian opponents in the concluding "exhibition" matches of the challenge round.

Seixas, playing in what he announced was his final Davis Cup match, turned back lanky Mal Anderson, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 0-6, 13-11, in a gruelling 127-minute duel that ruined the Aussies' bid for their third straight challenge round sweep.

Then Mackay, a newcomer to these time-honored Aussie-U.S. cup matches, outgunned Ashley Cooper in another five-set marathon, 6-4, 1-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Both matches were played in near 100 degree weather.

It was a remarkable recovery for the doughty Yanks but it only served to reduce Australia's winning margin to 3-2 in the best-of-five series. Seixas and Mackay dropped their opening singles matches Thursday and then allowed the cup to slip from their grasp when the Aussies clinched matters in Friday's doubles match.

So today's matches were supposed to be "just for fun," but both Seixas and Mackay played as if their very lives were at stake.

HE GOT HIM! Seixas, now 34 and a seven-year veteran of the Davis Cup wars, boldly predicted "I'm going out there and get Anderson" before taking the court at Kooyong Stadium.

"Win or lose, this is my last Davis Cup appearance," the dour fighter from Philadelphia added. "I've got a good job waiting for me when I return to the United States next week."

And although the blazing heat sapped his strength and left him dripping wet, Seixas backed up his prediction by producing one of the greatest efforts of his long career.

Even the usually-partisan Aussie fans cheered Seixas wildly at the finish. They had been on his side since early in the final set when they disapproved of some doubtful decisions that went to Anderson.

LENGTHY SERIES The Mackay-Cooper set-to produced a record for it marked the first time in cup history that all four singles matches were extended to five sets. The result also convinced Australian fans that in Mackay the U.S. now has a young man that will have to be reckoned with in future cup action.

The gangling giant from Dayton, Ohio, turned the tables on heavily-favored Cooper in a 91-minute power duel that featured crashing deliveries.

In fact, Cooper broke his racket strings while matching Mackay's blistering stroking in the third set.

The coveted silver bowl was presented to Harry Hopman, non-playing captain of the Aussie team, who remarked: "After what you saw today, you may consider my grip on the Davis Cup slippery."

Centre Bolsters Canadian Entry

TORONTO (CP)—Whitby Dunlops, Canada's representatives at the world hockey tournament at Oslo, Feb. 28 to March 9, Friday announced the signing of centre Connie Broden, last year with Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of the Quebec Hockey League.

Dunlops manager Wren Blair said Broden will make his debut next Wednesday against Kingston CKLs.

BLACK HAWKS' NEW COACH

Pilous will remain as Teepee general manager. He has guided the club in a dual role for the last eight years. Glen Sommer, 27, coach of the St. Catharines junior "B" team will replace Pilous as Teepee coach.

Pilous takes over the Chicago job Jan. 2 two days before the Hawks meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Tommy Ivan, present Hawk coach and general manager, remains with the team as general manager. Ivan has been at the Chicago helm since the late Dick Irvin retired. Irvin died last May 16.

Pilous will meet a lot of old faces in the NHL, most of them in Chicago. In St. Catharines he coached present Hawk regulars Bobby Hull, Elmer Vasko, Ian Cushman and Pierre Pilote. St. Catharines is a Hawk farm team.

"It is with mixed feelings that I leave St. Catharines," Pilous said. "Naturally, I am very happy to have been given the opportunity of coaching an NHL team but my association with hockey in St. Catharines and the many fans who have supported the team made it a very difficult decision."

The Pilous name is synonymous with junior hockey here. He was instrumental in organizing the city's first junior A team in 1943-44. After three years with the now-defunct Falcons, Pilous left to coach and manage professional teams in Louisville, Ky.; San Diego, Calif., and Houston, Texas.

He returned to St. Catharines as general manager and coach of Teepees in the 1950-51 season.

No team Pilous has coached or managed has missed the playoffs. In 1953-54 Teepees won the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior crown.

Three times players coached by Pilous in St. Catharines won the Ted Tilson Memorial Trophy, awarded to the player of the year in the junior league.

Headquarters Quiet, So Pistol May Play

Word has leaked out from Western Hockey League headquarters that Eddie Dorohoy, Victoria Cougars' leading scorer, will be permitted to dress for tonight's game against Vancouver Canucks.

Cougar coach Pat Egan, however, isn't certain.

A threat of suspension hangs over the volatile Dorohoy, who took violent objection to a call by referee Lloyd Gilmour in Thursday's outing against New Westminster Royals.

The Cougar centre drew a 10-minute misconduct and then a game penalty when he went after Gilmour in the second period of Thursday's game.

League president Al Leader reported Friday night that he had not received the referee's report. Leader added that he will talk to Gilmour before handing out any suspension.

Unless Leader acts on the report later today, it is quite probable that the Pistol will be permitted to dress for action against Vancouver when the teams square off in Memorial Arena at 8 tonight.

HE'S WAITING

"I'm not making any plans for tonight, until we're on the ice," Egan said this morning.

"Leader has been in this position before. The last time he handed out the suspension, the team was notified a few hours before game time."

"With Eddie, we've just got enough players to go around. Without him, it's going to be a case of make-shift lines and hope we can score more goals than the Canucks."

Balanced precariously on the thin edge of oblivion, and slipping deeper into the league cellar with nearly every outing, Cougars received yet another weighty blow Friday.

Manager Colin Kilburn announced that left-wing Larry Leach had been recalled by Springfield, Indians of the American Hockey League, and would leave Victoria Jan. 2.

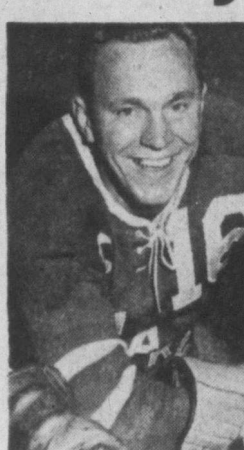

The move is the final chapter in the negotiations which brought winger Stan Baluk to the Cats late last month.

GOOD LINE

It will have the effect of breaking up one of the Cougars' most effective lines, that of Leach, Gordie Wilson and Doug Macauley. Leach and Wilson have been outstanding as penalty-killers.

Vancouver will be without the services of hard-rock defence-man Brent Macnab, who lost his three-year-old son Thursday.

Macnab has returned to his home in Vermillion, Alta., and Canuck coach Art Chapman is expected to move forward Ed McQueen back to the blue line.

WARRIORS BOW 5-3

Flyers Must Like Boucher's Scheme

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Flyers are putting hockey's latest innovation to its severest test to date.

Last week the Western Hockey League's Prairie division announced they would dress only 12 men a game, instead of the usual 15, in a move to cut rocketing costs.

Friday the Flyers whipped first-place Winnipeg Warriors 5-3 for their second win in two nights.

So far the Flyers don't appear to be tiring. Tommy McCarthy former Detroit Red Wing, banged in two first-period goals and Hugh Coffin, Frank Roggeveen and Len Lunde split a hat-trick as Edmonton built up a 3-0 lead and coasted to within three points of first place.

Pete Kapusta, Earl Ingarfield and Murray Wilkie scored for Warriors, who peppered 37 shots at Dennis Riggins in the Flyer net. Ray Mikulan stopped 25 at the other end.

General manager Frank Boucher of the Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals called for the return to less manpower two weeks ago.

The WHL's Coast Division turned down the proposal but it was approved by the inland circuit. Christmas Day's Edmonton-Calgary encounter was its baptism.

Critics of the economy move say players cannot be expected to go all-out for 60 minutes without suitable reserves. Edmonton may prove them wrong.

Tonight there is a full card on both the coast and Prairies. The Vancouver Canucks, minus defenceman Brent Macnab play at Victoria and Seattle travels to New Westminster. Eastward, Winnipeg is at home to Edmonton and Regals visit Calgary.

Canucks will likely shift forward Ed MacQueen to the blue line in place of MacNab. Brent's three-year-old son died Thursday and he is at home in Vermillion, Alta., with his wife.

Ollie Dorohoy, veteran New Westminster Royal forward, will be sidelined for some time due to a fractured leg sustained in Victoria Thursday.

Victoria Rinks Move Up-Island For Bonspiel

Seven rinks from Greater Victoria will take part in the annual Vancouver Island high school boys' bonspiel at Nanaimo on Monday.

Foursomes representing city schools will be skipped by Dave Work, Bud Taylor, Don Moss, Charles McLean, Wally DuTemple, Dave Bishop and Ron Gardiner.

Teams will leave for Nanaimo at 7 a.m. Monday from the Victoria Curling Club. Parents who plan accompanying the boys to Nanaimo in their own cars are asked to contact Gary Taylor.

All skips are asked to contact Taylor before Monday (phone 4-818).

Eight Fatalities In Boxing Game

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight boxing deaths were reported throughout the world in 1957, five in the amateur ranks and three among the professionals, in a Ring magazine year-end survey. It was the second smallest number in 11 years.

Three of the eight deaths were in Germany, two amateurs and a professional.

WISE OLD SANTA BROUGHT THEM JUST WHAT THEY WANTED

Tiny tots like toys—and so do tots who aren't so tiny. Santa Claus knows this, which is one of the reasons he has been able to stay in business for so many years. Another reason is, Santa keeps up with the changing times. As witness his gift to Andy Kerr—a plywood hydroplane hull plus an outboard motor which will drive the tiny craft at an as yet-unknown speed. And for Syd Knott, who is old enough to know what he likes, Santa provided a battery-driven, drum-playing bear, whose flashing eyes outdo the brilliance of Mr. Claus' famous twinklers. In this air age, it was only natural to present Wayne Lloyd with a miniature helicopter, complete with controls which make it perform full-scale 'copter operations at the bidding of its young owner.—(Times photos)

VICTORIA, B.C., DECEMBER 28, 1957 13

MONTE ROBERTS

January hasn't started yet, but the clearance sales have. So...

Going at a greatly reduced price is this shaggy dog story. Only it's not a shaggy dog story, really, it's more of a shaggy lion story.

There was this gentleman, see, and he went to a movie theatre, and he paid out his good money for a seat in the movie theatre.

And when he found his way to his seat, he noticed a somewhat unusual personage in the seat next to him. On closer inspection, this somewhat unusual personage turned out to be a large, well-built, African Lion.

In the mane, this did not bother the gentleman too much, as he had no special aversion to lions. But, on the other hand, he had paid his admission to the theatre for the purpose of watching a motion picture, not for the purpose of sitting next to a large, well-built, African Lion.

The gentleman thought the situation over for a few moments, and decided against raising any objection with the Lion himself.

The reason being, the gentleman was not sure whether or not the Lion would object to being objected to, and the gentleman did not wish to make the Lion any more objectionable than he then was.

So the gentleman decided the best thing to do was to take the matter to the higher authorities, and the highest authority he could find was the manager of the theatre. He found the manager in the manager's office, and he said to the manager: "I do not wish to appear narrow-minded about this, but I have paid my admission to this theatre, and this admission, I feel, entitles me to enjoyment of the entertainment therein presented."

The theatre manager, who had seen the film before, raised his eyebrows at the word "entertainment," but beyond that, gave a courteous reply to the gentleman who was, after all, a paying customer.

"Just what, sir, is your complaint?" asked the manager. "Not enough pop in the popcorn? Did you get no prize in your crackerjack? Is one of our usherettes trying to molest you?"

"No, no," said the gentleman. "It is just this Lion who is sitting next to me. This large, well-built, African Lion."

"Hmmm," said the theatre manager who, being a theatre manager, had heard everything and was surprised at nothing. "Take me to this Lion, and we shall see what we shall see."

The theatre manager, of course, was under the impression the gentleman was under a misapprehension. But, sure enough, when the manager was led down the aisle, there sat the large, well-built, African Lion.

"Heavens to Frank Buck," cried the theatre manager, temporarily losing his accustomed aplomb. "What is a Lion doing in my theatre?"

And the Lion turned his head and growled: "So I read the book, so I wanted to see the picture."

All offers considered, reasonable or otherwise.

Hunt Called Off For Missing Island Man

Resume Search If New Evidence

Police have called off the search for a 74-year-old man who disappeared from his home near Alberni Tuesday.

Relatives said Fred Bristow went outside his Sprout Lake home to gather grass for his pet guinea pigs and did not return. Police said a wide area around the home has been searched without any clue being uncovered.

An officer said the search will be resumed if any definite information is turned up but there is little chance the elderly man could survive long out-doors in the light clothing he was wearing.

Scouts, neighbors and the Alberni mountain rescue squad joined RCMP officers in the four-day hunt.

Crime Shows Slowdown For Christmas

Even crime has slowed down for Christmas in Victoria, according to local police blotters. Last theft reported was an overnight break-in Monday when 18 turkeys and three hams valued at $214 were taken from a Douglas Street business.

A number of auto accidents have dotted the area since the beginning of the week, but injuries have not been too serious.

WARNING GIVEN

Police are grateful the holiday season has gone so well, so far, but still caution against drinking and driving.

Police departments offer help to celebrating motorists who feel they should not drive home. All that's required is a phone call and police will see that the driver gets taken home or sent in a cab.

Otherwise police promise stringent application of the law with regard to impaired driving.

UMBRELLAS 'AT READY' ADVISES WEATHERMAN

The weekend will be dull, weatherwise. Forecaster Bill Mackie said there'll be mixed clouds, rain, with sunshine breaking through sporadically.

"If you're waiting for a bus, take your umbrella," he advised.

The weather situation is expected to change, fast.

Winds will be from the west, between 25 and 30 m.p.h. and temperatures will be a shade cooler than previously—around 30 degrees to the mid-40s.

City MP Denies Asking 'Purge'

Only Attacked Those Civil Servants Playing Politics Says McPhillips

Victoria's member of parliament today denied that he had called for a "purge" of top-ranking federal civil servants earlier this month.

A. De B. McPhillips, freshman Conservative MP for the city, said he had been misquoted in an interview and the statements had "been blown all out of proportion."

Mr. McPhillips returned to the city this week for the holiday season. He leaves Thursday for the resumption of the Commons session.

In an interview Dec. 16, Mr. McPhillips had been quoted as saying many senior civil servants—particularly deputy ministers—"are out and out Liberal partisans."

"That was preposterous," he said today. "The papers were making out that I had called for the axe for all of them. All I actually said, and I'll say it again, was that if any senior civil servant sees fit to play politics he can expect disciplinary action."

"I said the same thing at an Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association meeting in September."

Mr. McPhillips said he would not name names or cite examples of political involvement in the civil service.

"I didn't raise this. It was my answer to people who had asked me what was going to happen to so and so who had been playing on the Liberal side. And I think everyone would agree with my answer."

"However, there is one factor to be remembered. Many of these civil servants, after 22 years, have known nothing but Liberal administration and it would be difficult for some of them to appreciate that there has been a change."

Mr. McPhillips said he did not regard Public Works Minister Howard Green's statement in the House, two days after his own statement, as a rebuke.

Mr. Green, as government house leader, lauded the federal civil service—particularly senior officials and deputy ministers—as the best in the world and added "it would have been impossible for a new government to take over the leadership of the country had it not been for the loyalty and co-operation given us by the senior civil servants."

Mr. McPhillips said Mr. Green had not referred to him by name during the statement.

Boy Breaks Leg As Car Wrapped Around Tree

$900 Damage On Beach Drive

Michael Green, 15, of 2481 Central, received a broken leg when a car driven by Patrick Nevin Mulcahy, 16, of 2491 Central, crashed into a maple tree on Beach Drive at 10.28 p.m. Friday.

Green was taken to Jubilee Hospital.

Damage was about $900, police said after viewing the car wrapped around the tree trunk.

Accident occurred on a slight curve in the 1500 block where the car left the road and struck the tree dead centre.

Tug Floats Free After Grounding Off Oak Bay

The tug Nitinat Chief went aground in Oak Bay at 5 p.m. Friday and worked her way off two hours later, with no damage other than a scuffed keel and scraped paint.

The towboat had picked up a drifting dinghy and was standing off Oak Bay boathouse with the small craft in tow when it went aground.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—We had a beautiful rain here Friday. What causes them?—F.S.

A.—The bow or arch that exhibits prismatic colors is formed in the sky opposite the sun by the reflection, double refraction and dispersion of the sun's rays in falling drops of water. You can get a similar effect with a lawn sprinkler.

Q.—What's a "cotillon?"

A.—It's an elaborate ballroom dance, or a piece of music arranged for such a dance. It was generally danced towards the end of the evening's entertainment, and was popular in the 18th century.

LOOKING BACK ON 1957

Three Men Dominated B.C. Scene

By PETER MURRAY

Three names dominated the British Columbia news scene in 1957—Wenner-Gren, Sloan and Sommers.

The first belongs to a 76-year-old, silver-haired Swedish financier who hopes to tame a huge chunk of the province's north and turn it into an industrial empire.

Axel Wenner-Gren's ambitious scheme to run one of his pet "monorail" railroads up to the Yukon border to tap a wealth of hydro, timber and mineral resources was unveiled last February to the legislature.

Opposition critics immediately accused the Social Credit government of giving away the province's resources.

Suspicion also was aroused because of Wenner-Gren's wartime association with the Nazis and his failure to go through with a similar grandiose plan in Rhodesia.

But the government has stuck to its guns, insisting the deal is a good one for the people of B.C.

So far the Wenner-Gren plans are still on the drawing board. In his agreements with the government, Wenner-Gren has fixed 1960 as the starting date for the development.

Surveys are now in progress and only time will tell if the scheme materializes.

One way or the other, British Columbians will be hearing the name Wenner-Gren a lot more in the years to come.

Gordon McGregor Sloan, 59, is the obvious choice for British Columbia's "Man of the Year."

In September he brought down his monumental second report on the B.C. forest industry, then decided at the year-end to resign as chief justice of the province to become forest adviser to the government.

Starting Jan. 1, he will be the province's top-paid public official with an annual salary of $50,000, compared with the previous high of $20,000 paid to Premier Bennett.

After studying Chief Justice Sloan's 900-page Royal Commission report, the government evidently decided no man was better qualified to help carry out its many recommendations than the author himself.

The case of Robert Edward Sommers, former lands and forests minister in the Social Credit government, moved closer to a climax in 1957.

His appointment as forestry adviser is for 10 years.

Last April Chief Justice Sloan was honored for completing 20 years' service on the Court of Appeal, the highest court of the province. He has been chief justice since 1944.

Besides completing his forestry report and carrying on his duties on the bench, Chief Justice Sloan also found time to help mediate a dispute between the B.C. Government Employees' Association and the government over bargaining rights for civil servants.

The case of Robert Edward Sommers, former lands and forests minister in the Social Credit government, moved closer to a climax in 1957.

It was in December, 1955, that a Vancouver lawyer first made public allegations that Mr. Sommers had accepted bribes in connection with the issuing of forest management licences.

Mr. Sommers immediately sued David Sturdy for libel and slander and the civil suit dragged on until two months ago, when it was dismissed in Supreme Court because the former minister did not appear to press the action.

At that time, Sommers was incommunicado at a secret location in the U.S. where he stayed for three months to get away from "annoying" newspapermen.

Just three days after the slander suit was dismissed, the government, under pressure from all sides, announced the setting up of a royal commission to inquire into the charges against Mr. Sommers.

To conduct the inquiry, the government called again on Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, the man turned to so frequently in times of provincial crisis.

Then, when it appeared that legal objections on the constitutionality of the commission might delay proceedings, the matter was finally placed before the courts.

At 8 on the morning of Nov. 21, two RCMP officers knocked on the door of Sommers' home at 2 Obed Avenue and told him he was under arrest.

The former minister was flown immediately to Vancouver where he appeared in police court along with other individuals and firms alleged to be involved in a bribery conspiracy. The case is now on remand.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Members of the Young Conservatives group at the University of British Columbia are holding a reception at the home of Dr. E. D. Emery, 2064 Fernside, on Sunday, from 8.30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

A. de B. McPhillips, the federal member for Victoria, and Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, V.C., have been invited.

Municipal clerk J. W. Allen will swear in A. C. Wurtele as reeve of Esquimalt immediately before the first council meeting of 1958 on Jan. 6.

The reeve then will swear in three councillors elected earlier this month—Walter Holder, G. K. Sammon and Arthur Fields.

Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, V.C., was to arrive in Victoria today for a brief visit over the New Year holiday. The minister, who represents Esquimalt-Saanich, will return to Ottawa when the Commons re-convenes after the holiday.

Workmen are expected to arrive from England Jan. 6 to begin a three-month job of improving the pipe organ at Christ Church Cathedral.

Reconstruction and expansion of the organ will cost $40,000 and will make it "one of the finest in Western Canada," organist Graham Stead said.

The tradesmen are from the London firm of Hill & Son, Norman and Beard.

Crocuses have started to appear in Victoria.

Mrs. M. J. Olsen, 260 Simcoe, reported discovering a yellow one in her front garden today.

Albert Leonard Potentier, 1243 St. Patrick, was found guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday of assault causing bodily harm. He was accused of assaulting his wife, Doreen.

A $500 bond was posted for good behavior covering the next six months.

The Gyro Club of Victoria will meet Monday noon in the Empress Hotel. A film on the Canadian open golf championship match will be shown.

America as missionaries for the past 12 years. They have been visiting here with Mrs. Clemenger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. MacLaren, 4570 Wilkinson Road, over the Christmas holiday.—(Photo by Campbell Studios)

(BB) "KISS THEM FOR ME" (Odeon)—If only they had toned down the humor that wasn't very humorous and barred Jayne Mansfield from the studio when the cameras got around to grinding, 20th Century-Fox's adaptation of Frederic Wakeman's novel might have turned out better than it did.

The plot's theme is one Second World War servicemen will remember well—the innate suspicion that while they were away on the battlefields civilians were using the war effort to sell everything to everybody. It is exploited by Cary Grant and three of his U.S. Navy Air Arm buddies as they go on a four-day short leave in an effort to shake their battle fatigue. Their target: liquor and lassies. But no sooner do they get in the groove than civilian brass has plans for them, to speak to the factory worker in an effort to whip up production and stamp out absenteeism. All of which is too much for Grant who bops the high brass in the mouth and runs off with his fiancée Suzy Parker.

POSSIBLY it is because the book was written 13 years ago that so much of the action appears dated and stale. Only now and then does "Kiss Them for Me" remind one of the long queues for hotel rooms, the jam-packed bars and restaurants, the bright-eyed hustle of the populace, and the overall partying air that made unrealities so real.

There are good lines, but mainly they fall to Grant who is altogether excellent.

One such is when Suzy asks him why his ex-wife wants to meet him again, and he replies, "Maybe just to consummate the divorce."

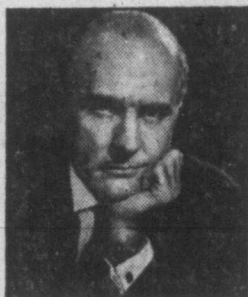

Miss Parker, a former model, appears to better advantage when she has little or nothing to say. Miss Mansfield was simply miscast. What was excellent for "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" is merely burlesque for a film with the intentions of "Kiss Them for Me."

Photography and sets were excellent but did little to save the film from its own mediocrity.

Dirty fighter: Matt Dillon, marshal played by Jim Arness in CBS-TV's "Gunsmoke," isn't 100 per cent like the idealized Western hero. If it's necessary, he'll use some rough tactics himself on "the bad guys" such as shooting from ambush. "It's nonsense always to give the other guy a chance," said writer Normal Macdonnell.

Producers of the "Lassie" TV series discovered quite a coincidence. Three of the newly cast principals—Cloris Leachman, Jon Sheppard and George Chandler—are Northwestern University Alumni.

Rose Colored Spyglass Makes '58 Look Hopeful

By AUDREY S.L.D. JOHNSON

As another Happy New Year approaches, most of us are at least sub-consciously busy proving the poet's adage that "hope springs eternal."

We all know, of course, in our heart of hearts that the new year will be the same old mixture of sunny days, dark days and plain ordinary old grey days. But that's not really the point.

What matters is that this could be the new year in which we'll win an Irish sweep prize, meet the dream man or girl, balance our budget, land the big fish (job, human or sporting-wise), or get our Christmas shopping done before Dec. 24.

But sometimes it's fun to broaden one's horizon and train the spyglass on some "possibles" that are not purely personal.

For example, here are some of the things I would like to spot through my 1958 spyglass: Beacon Players live theatre booming along on Yates Street in the heart of movie row—especially if people are patronizing both types of entertainment and learning to appreciate the completely different character of each.

A substantial Canada Council grant to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

A jazz cellar adding its stimulating heartbeat to the lively arts in Victoria.

Butchart Gardens summer symphony concerts becoming the nucleus for a midsummer arts festival of our own.

Firm plans to provide Victoria with a first class auditorium really getting under way.

(Oh—Oh—on that last I'm afraid my spyglass must really have a rose-colored lens.)

And now to look backward for a moment. For Canada this has been an important year in the arts world; theatre history was made when the Stratford Festival's uniquely wonderful permanent theatre was opened—the only one of its kind in the world. (Incidentally, a net profit of $55,581 was made by the festival during the 1957 season.)

Canada Council awards started to flow with most symphony organizations across the country benefitting as a result.

Nearer home, felicitously, a running start has been made on a West Coast arts festival in Vancouver (lamentably), and what is most important of all to us in Victoria, the new fire-proof wing for the Art Gallery.

In the meantime Victorians all had better take a long sleep and a bottle of energy pills during the first two weeks of 1958. It's going to be a year of 365 crowded days and nights with centenary celebrations filling the year with sound and fury.

Auspicious things begin to happen in mid-January when Boyd Neel, one of the world's orchestral experts and leading conductors steps on the Victoria Symphony podium to conduct a pair of concerts.

The symphony organization brings us another highlight with the guest appearance in March of the richly endowed Lois Marshall, whose voice is already echoing in soprano halls of fame.

Anna Russell comes to us too in March, with her implish lampoons on music's most revered institutions.

And very soon after we have bicarbonated our way out of our New Year's Eve smog, the fabled Yehudi Menuhin will be making a long-hoped-for appearance at the Royal.

Well, there's the meat in the sandwich of events we'll all be chewing on between now and fish'n-garden time—though no doubt some surprise ingredient will add extra relish to the diet before we're through.

And that's my last word for 1957. (Plenty of my friends will find something wrong with that statement.)

By golly, they're right already. I have four more words—Happy New Year Everybody!

OTHER LEADING WOMEN

Literature and art—Gabrielle Roy of Montreal.
Music—Maureen Forrester, Montreal contralto.
Stage, screen and radio—Regina-born Frances Hyland.
Sport—Marlene Stewart Streit, Toronto, golfer.

For the third year in a row Gabrielle Roy, a Montreal author, has topped the literature and art division. Her latest book, Streets of Riches has been hailed as a highly sensitive book. It relates the experiences in 18 separate stories of Petite Misere (Little Miss Misery).

Pretty auburn-haired Maureen Forrester of Montreal tightened her hold on the top spot in the field of music when she made her New York debut last February with Bruno Walter conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Miss Forrester surprised the musical world when she announced last October she had been married since 1954 to Canadian-born Eugene Kash, now a London conductor.

Miss Forrester's professional career reached a high point in 1955 when she became the first Canadian singer to tour Europe in 25 years.

There were tiny covered buttons at the back of the dress, and the long sleeves were lily-point. A headdress of orange blossoms held her illusion net veil, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and freesias.

A gown of white French satin brocade was worn by the fair-haired bride as she entered the church on the arm of her father. The full-length gown featured a high Empire waistline and the wide skirt extended into a long train at the back. A strand of pearls at the simple round neckline, a gift of the groom, was the only jewelry worn.

Best man for the ceremony was Acting Sub-Lieut. Norman Justin Etheridge, RCN, and usher was Acting Sub-Lieut. John A. Rowland, RCN.

Duke of Kent Room in the Empress Hotel was setting for a reception where the bride and groom cut a three-tier cake. Bowls of white chrysanthemums and holly, flanked by candles, decorated the room.

Electric blue taffeta dresses in a ballerina length style were worn by bridal attendants, Miss Christine Mackenzie, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Sheila Olson and Miss Carol MacMillan. The dresses featured draped necklines with three-quarter length sleeves.

They wore matching taffeta headpieces of flat bows and all carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

The young couple will live at Texas Terrace, Kingsville, Texas.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Hon. Ellen Fairclough Named Canada's Woman of Year; Four Others Chosen

The first woman ever to be named to the Canadian cabinet has been chosen Canada's woman of the year.

She is Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, chosen as secretary of state by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker following the Progressive Conservative federal election victory June 10. Mrs. Fairclough was also voted woman of the year in public affairs in a Canadian Press poll of Canadian daily newspaper women's editors.

A slender, silver-haired woman in her early 50s, the member for Hamilton West is no tyro in public life. She was elected to the House of Commons in 1951

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Seedhouse, 1162 Oscar Street, will celebrate their golden wedding on New Year's Day at the home of their daughter, Mrs. P. W. Mackereith, 3461 Belhune Avenue. They will be "at home" there from 3 until 5 p.m. and again from 7 until 9 p.m. They were married in Toronto in St. Matthew's Church on Jan. 1, 1908, with Rev. Canon Farncomb officiating. They came to Victoria in 1911 and lived for 46 years in their home at the corner of Douglas and Audley Streets. There are four children, Edward Seedhouse, Victoria; Sidney Horace Seedhouse of Ontario; Mrs. Mackereith (Ethel), and Mrs. A. E. Vaughan (Edith), both of Victoria. The couple have nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

FAMILY HERE FROM PERU

VISITORS FROM CALGARY

Former Victorians, Mr. and Mrs. Mort Graham have been visitors in the city from Calgary over the Yuletide with their small daughter, Lisa Ann. They have been staying with the baby's paternal grandmother, Mrs. D. Graham, Cranleigh Place, and also visiting the maternal grandmother, Mrs. K. Kerr, Tovey Crescent. Mrs. Graham is the former Miss Jane Kerr.

Mackenzie-Davidson Vows Said In Morning Ceremony in Cathedral

St. Andrew's Cathedral was the scene of a lovely wedding this morning when Miss Mary Simonne Mackenzie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mackenzie of Purcell Place, became the bride of Acting Sub-Lieut. William Rankin Davidson, RCN, who is now stationed in Kingsville, Texas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Davidson of Ottawa.

The church was decorated with late December greenery and flowers for the ceremony. Rev. Father R. Cunningham officiated.

A gown of white French satin brocade was worn by the fair-haired bride as she entered the church on the arm of her father. The full-length gown featured a high Empire waistline and the wide skirt extended into a long train at the back. A strand of pearls at the simple round neckline, a gift of the groom, was the only jewelry worn.

Couple Repeat Vows In Shady Creek Church

Shady Creek United Church at Saanichton was decorated with holly and deep red poinsettias, Thursday, for the wedding of Edna May Galt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Galt, of Royal Oak, and George Thomas Routley, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Routley, of Port Coquitlam.

Rev. J. G. G. Bompas officiated at the service and Mrs. C. Pederson played traditional bridal selections.

Wearing a white gown of lace with full skirt flaring to waltz length, the bride entered the church on her father's arm. Fitted bodice had a bow of silk and panels of the silk at back to the hem of her skirt. A bandeau held her fingertip veil of illusion with lace appliques and she carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations and holly.

Miss Joanne Galt, maid of honor, and Miss Pat Pitt-Brooke, bridesmaid, wore sheath gowns of red velvet with back panels lined with grey satin. They wore pearl pins and earrings, white feather hair bandeaux, and carried white fur muffs with holly sprigs.

Brother of the groom, Donald Routley, was best man and ushers were Len Osborne and Des Smith.

During signing of the register, Arlene Tiftord sang "Because." For receiving guests at Echo Inn, Brentwood, mother of the bride wore a blue jersey dress with pink and blue velour hat and white carnations, en corsage. Mother of the groom wore shadow turquoise brocade with turquoise accessories and veils. The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations.

A Christmas tree, holly and poinsettias decorated the reception rooms. Toast to the bride was proposed by Stanley Scurrah.

For a honeymoon motoring in the United States, Mrs. Routley wore a brown and yellow knitted suit with brown trim and yellow velour hat and dark brown wool stole. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Routley will live in North Vancouver.

Sir Charles and Lady Wright are entertaining today with an after-five party at their home on Admirals Road. Among guests will be members of the Pacific Naval Laboratory with whom Sir Charles is associated. The hosts will be assisted by their daughter, Miss Patricia Wright.

Life Memberships At WMS Meeting

At the Christmas week meeting of Fairfield United Woman's Missionary Society, WMS life memberships were presented to Mrs. Fanny Hunter and Mrs. E. G. Freeman. Mrs. H. Carlyle made the presentations on behalf of the Women's Association.

Mrs. B. Wellwood presided; Mrs. Mary Youson and Mrs. Barbara Brown gave a program of holiday music and tea was served under convener'ship of Mrs. E. MacGinnis. Accompanist was Mrs. T. R. Haythorne. Guest speaker was Mrs. Geoffrey Smith, who, with her husband, Rev. Smith, and three sons, is home on furlough from Northern Rhodesia.

She gave a word picture of interesting women she had met during her mission work as representative of United Church of Canada.

The speaker said that African women are much like women of other countries with the same ideals, loves and ambitions.

FINAL BULLETINS

B.C. Man Dies in California

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP)—William J. Agnew, 20, of Vancouver, B.C., died here from injuries received in an automobile accident Thursday night north of here. Agnew, a telephone company employee at Vancouver, suffered head and internal injuries.

Drillers Battle Wild Well

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP)—An oil well near this town 10 miles northwest of Edmonton was still blowing wild today, creating a dangerous ground pool of oil and gas. Crews were working to choke the flow of oil and at the same time avoid a fire. The well blew wild Friday when drillers were within 200 feet of their 41,800-foot completion target.

Canadian Official Killed in U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (CP)—Police reported that Charles H. Herbert, 52, a member of the Canadian department of northern affairs and natural resources, was killed today in a traffic accident on the Whitehorse Pike south of here.

Gas Fumes Kill 4 Children

KERHONKSON, N.Y. (AP)—Four of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Miller died of gas poisoning which killed all of the family except the father at their home. The mother, Elizabeth, 32, was in critical condition. The only child to survive was Nancy, 11. She is expected to live.

Ike Shelves Nuclear Carrier

WASHINGTON (UP)—The navy's second nuclear-powered aircraft carrier was reported today to have been abandoned on the planning table of President Eisenhower's missile-heavy defence budget for next year. Informed sources said the navy has agreed to hold off plans to begin full-scale construction of the giant ship in order to have funds to step up work on its missile-armed submarine fleet.

Kluszewski Traded to Pittsburgh

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)—Big Ted Kluszewski of the Cincinnati Redlegs was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates today in a straight player deal for Dee Fondy. Rumors had been flying in recent weeks that the big first baseman would be traded following a miserable 1957 season that saw Kluszewski mainly in the role of a pinch hitter.

Election Upset, Queen's Visit Top 1957 News

Victory of the Conservative party in the June federal election was the top news event in Canada during 1957.

Running a close second in the opinion of Canada's newsmen was the visit to the nation by Queen Elizabeth in October, highlighted by the first opening of Canadian parliament by a ruling monarch.

A close third was the suicide in April of Canadian Ambassador E. H. Norman. The envoy's death was the culmination of a long developing story involving charges of Communist associations during his student days.

Major happenings in Canada during the year as compiled by Canadian Press:

JANUARY

8—George Drew, former Progressive Conservative leader, resigns seat in Commons. 10—Gordon commission on Canada's economic prospects forecasts 26,500,000 population in 25 years. 11—CPR firemen's strike ends; pay increases awarded by conciliation board to be paid. 17—New RCN aircraft carrier Bonaventure commissioned at Belfast.

FEBRUARY

6—Senator C. G. Power heads Senate committee to investigate land use. 21—Ontario budget forecasts record revenues of $594,000,000. 28—Federal government announces plans for airlift of 24,500 British and French immigrants.

MARCH

1—Alberta budget includes oil dividend $20 payment for Albertans; eight killed in RCAF bomber crash near Ottawa. 2—French Premier Mollet, Foreign Minister Pineau, arrive at Ottawa. 6—Federal and Ontario governments agree on essentials of hospital insurance plan. 14—Federal budget boosts old age pensions and family allowances.

WHITE HOUSE DENIES U.S. WEAK IN ARMS

'THROW BOOK AT BECK' CLAIM MADE

SEATTLE (AP)—Arguments on motions seeking new trials for Dave Beck and his son were in abeyance for 12 days after the defence played its trump card—an affidavit accusing a jury foreman, Charles Hickling, of saying "they ought to throw the book at Beck."

The foreman, who headed the jury which convicted the teamsters' union president of grand larceny, denied making the statement.

After Charles S. Burdell, defence attorney, submitted the affidavit and also one of his own explaining how it was obtained, superior judge George H. Reville recessed the hearing until Jan. 9 because of prior commitments.

Wolves Score Shutout Win To Hold Lead

LONDON (UP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers, whose 18-game unbeaten streak was snapped Thursday, retained their six-point lead in the English soccer league's first division race today by defeating Sunderland, 2-0.

West Bromwich, the second place team, scored an easy 5-1 victory over Burnley.

Preston replaced Manchester United in third place by shutting out Portsmouth, 2-0. Manchester United, the defending league champion, was held to a 2-2 draw by Manchester City.

Tottenham, fresh from its Thursday triumph over Wolverhampton, entertained Newcastle and was held to a 3-3 tie.

Will Attain Goal—Dulles

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today that there is discontent in the Soviet areas of the world and that the West is on the right track in the quest for peace.

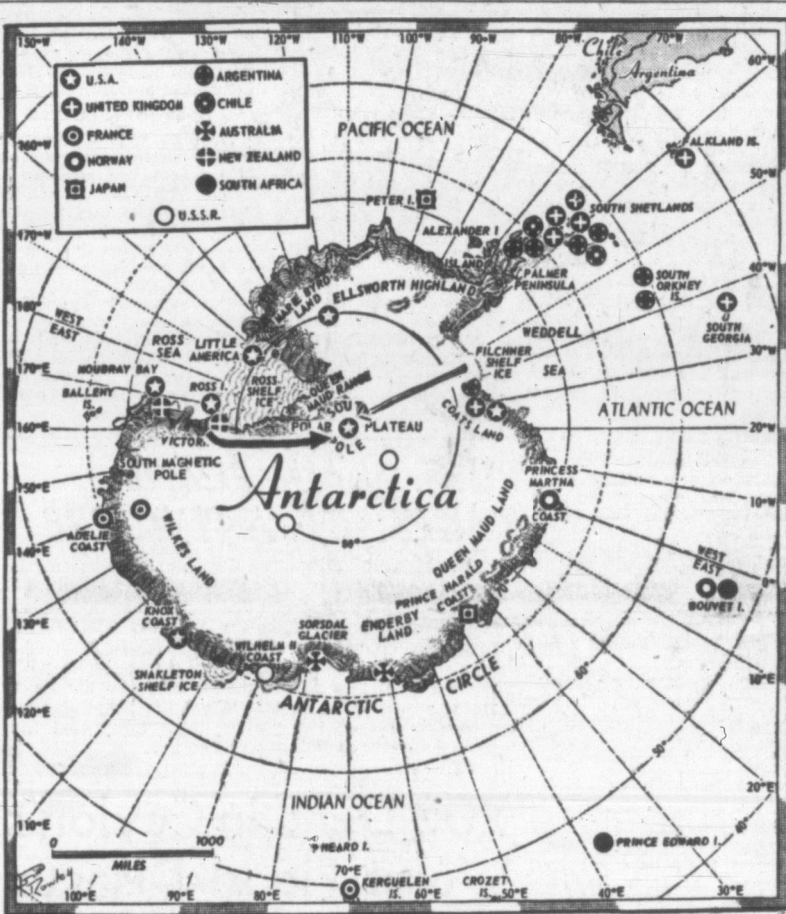

In a year-end statement to the New York World-Telegram and Sun, Dulles said the future will not be without difficulties and there is no cause for complacency. But he said that "we shall attain our objective—a just and enduring peace for mankind."

Hillary Doing Right Says Scott Veteran

Scientist Sir Charles Wright, 920 Admirals Road, who took part in the famous Robert Scott expedition to the Antarctic in 1911-12, said today Sir Edmund Hillary "is doing the right thing" in dashing to the South Pole.

"This will place Hillary nearer the British team trekking from the opposite side of the Pole," he said. "It will enable him to prepare the way for Fuchs and his men."

Sir Charles said Sir Hillary

'Point of No Return' Reached by Hillary

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Friends of Sir Edmund Hillary, who visited Victoria in March, 1954, today turned their eyes to the Antarctic where the conqueror of Mount Everest is making his "hell-bent dash" for the South Pole.

The famous alpine climber is a member of a British-Commonwealth expedition presently engaged in one of the last great adventures left to man—the crossing on foot of the vast Antarctic continent.

Among those watching with interest the progress of the expedition is Esquimaux Capt. Eric Revfem of the Royal Canadian Navy, who served time in the polar region several years ago.

Capt. Revfem who is well acquainted with the climatic and physical difficulties of the Antarctic, said the British-New Zealand explorers have only six or seven weeks to reach base camp before winter sets in.

MAY BE TRAPPED

He did not rule out the possibility that the expedition may become trapped in the vast expanse of ice, rock and snow covering over six million square miles.

Failure of the expedition to reach base camp in time would leave the explorers exposed to frigid winds—winds which blow constantly with a velocity more than twice that on any other continent.

News service reports today said that Hillary and his four-man Antarctic team, tired and suffering from "strain" have passed the "point of no return" on their dash to the Pole.

The New Zealanders, riding converted farm tractors and helped by two dog teams, clipped another 41 miles off the trip during the night. They are now only about 240 miles from the pole.

TO WAIT AT POLE

Hillary plans to wait at the South Pole (where the Americans have established a base by air—not by land), for an 11-man British party led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs, which is making the 2,000-mile trek across the continent.

Serving on the Fuchs team is John Lowe, also an Everest, and one of Hillary's best friends.

Lowe was a member of the Mount Everest team which lectured with Hillary in Victoria three years ago.

Fuchs left Shackleton Base on the Atlantic side in November and began his journey across the continent. This party is now behind schedule. They were expected to reach the South Pole by Christmas and a week later meet Hillary advancing from the Pacific side.

Gaither Report Stories Scored

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—The White House said today that the United States is not weak in defences in relation to Russia "at this time," despite unofficial versions of the Gaither report to the contrary.

As for the future ability of this country against the growing power of Russia, press secretary James C. Hagerty said that President Eisenhower would go into this matter in some detail in his State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 9.

The president worked on the message at his farm here today. He planned to continue preparation of the document next week when he confers with key administration officials.

The Gaither report is a secret document. It is the result of a survey by an Eisenhower-appointed committee initially headed by H. Rowan Gaither, Jr., San Francisco lawyer and former head of the Ford Foundation. The committee conducted an exhaustive survey of America's military power as compared with the Soviet Union.

Recent published and unofficial versions of the report said the Gaither committee painted a doleful picture of the future of this country as compared with the scientific gains of Russia in the development of new weapons, particularly missiles.

Secrecy Still Shrouds Report

The White House, according to Hagerty, was particularly concerned about accounts published and broadcast within the past few days to the effect that the U.S. now is in a woefully weak world position. Hagerty said these reports credited the Gaither report with such a conclusion.

Reporters asked Hagerty when and if they could expect to get copies of the report, and if the versions published thus far were true.

Hagerty said first that the document still was secret and could not be released. He said he had anticipated questions on the report and had a three-point position to state today:

"As far as I know there is no factual information in the Gaither report that has not been available to the committees of Congress, particularly the 'Johnson committee.' (This referred to the Senate preparedness subcommittee headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson.)

"Stories that have been printed which indicate that the U.S. is in a position of weakness at this time are not true; they are not in the report and are completely contrary to the report. The report says just the opposite."

"The president will give in the State of the Union message his estimate of the military posture of our country as it is now and what has to be done in the future to continue that strength."

Hagerty said the president's conclusions on American defences in his message to Congress would be based on recommendations and reports from the Gaither committee, and also another survey group headed by Dr. James R. Killian, now special scientific adviser to the president, plus Eisenhower's own estimate of the situation.

Condition Critical

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—Delphine Richard, Moncton newspaper photographer, remained in critical condition in hospital today—but four other victims of a three-car crash Friday at Springhill Junction, N.S., were reported resting comfortably.

Six End Marathon

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Six young musicians sank wearily onto their chairs early today after a 30-hour non-stop jazz session claimed as a world endurance playing record for dance bands.

Macmillan Readies Answer to Bulganin

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan today called a meeting of key ministers reportedly to decide on Britain's answer to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's 3,000-word letter earlier this month.

Macmillan hopes to get the answer off before he begins his Commonwealth tour Jan. 7. The prime minister returned to No. 10 Downing Street this morning from the Christmas holiday at his Sussex home.

TOP LEVEL MEET

Within half an hour he had called in key ministers, including Minister of Defence Duncan Sandys and Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft. Britain, the U.S., and all other NATO countries got similarly worded letters from Bulganin before the Paris summit conference.

Among other things, the letters suggested "personal contacts" between Soviet and Western leaders.

The NATO summit meeting agreed, under considerable pressure from the smaller European nations, to pave the way for talks—at least on the disarmament issue—with Moscow.

But the NATO communique stipulated that these talks should be held later next year at the foreign ministers' level and only after diplomatic and UN disarmament commission channels have been exhausted.

WEST DIVIDED

The Western allies are known to be divided on the question of what level the talks with Russia should be held and how broad an agenda should be discussed.

Informed sources here today said that Macmillan, in his reply to Moscow, will not exclude the possibility of summit talks. But like the U.S., he is not likely to commit Britain without a definite objective.

Man's Body Found

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—The battered body of a man was found today in his apartment and police said he had been dead at least 72 hours. They believe he was slain. Police withheld the man's name.
